Nixon Makes Plea For Cooperation

. . . LEGAL ACTION IS POSSIBLE

Washington (AP) — The Nixon administration asked labor unions Tuesday to halt all current strikes and to start no new ones during the 90-day wage-price freeze period. And it hinted broadly at legal action to bar walkouts if its request is ignored.

"I am requesting that the labor and management leaderships cooperate by terminating stoppages and returning to the bargaining table during the period of the wage-price freeze," said the chief federal labor mediator, J. Curtis Counts.

Counts told a news conference the administration believes it has the legal authority under the law authorizing the wage-price freeze to order all strikers back to work for the 90 days, but prefers voluntary cooperation.

No Comment

A spokesman for the 13.5-million-member AFL-CIO had no comment on the request, but said the labor organization's executive council will discuss it at a scheduled Thursday meeting on the wage-price-rent freeze issues.

"We are not holding a club over them," Counts said but added he was not ruling out the possibility of mandatory back-to-work orders for union workers who refuse to do so voluntarily.

He said some 150,000 workers currently are involved in 363 strikes, including the walkout of dockworkers that has paralyzed West Coast shipping for weeks.

Others now on strike include New York Telephone workers and a number of workers in steel-fabricating and rubber-manufacturing plants.

Also during the freeze period, some 80,000 bituminous coal miners are scheduled for strike Sept. 30 if they don't get a new contract and many of the contracts affecting more than 200,000 aerospace and airline workers expire.

Fine Possible

Counts said he believes the $5,000 fine for each instance of price-freeze violations in Nixon's executive order could also be applied to striking unions if the administration decided to forcibly halt a walkout.

The action came amid rising hostility and suspicion among union leaders toward the effect of Nixon's new economic actions on the nation's workers.

AFL-CIO President George Meany has said the program, which includes investment tax benefits for business, is a bonanza for corporations but will hurt workers.

Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson reported that Meany appears out of step with the needs and desires of American workers.

Counts, asked about the effect of Hodgson's statement on administration relations with labor, said "I would not think that would pour any salve on the wounds. It might pour a little oil on the fire."

Cooperation Urged

Counts said labor historically has cooperated with such wage-price actions in times of national emergency and that he hopes for such cooperation now.

"One of the responsibilities we think we have is to terminate these stoppages in an effort to get settlements during this period," he said.

He added that the government wants unions and companies to continue negotiating for contract benefits to take effect after the freeze is lifted, but to do so without union strikes or company lockouts.

Asked how long the administration might wait for voluntary cooperation before determining whether to try forcibly halting any strikes, Counts said, "that isn't too long a period."

Counts is director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service which works for labor contract settlements in major disputes on voluntary basis.

He acknowledged that "there is going to be resistance from both sides to continuing negotiations during the freeze," but that federal mediators would work to persuade this course on companies and unions.

Labor Department officials said settlements reached during the freeze will not be retroactive.

Floyd Smith, president of the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists, said the freeze is unfair to many workers.

BURY MY HEART AT WOUNDED KNEE by Dee Brown

It was the fall of 1878 and 297 Northern Cheyennes were escaping northward from impossible malarial reservation conditions in Oklahoma's Indian Territory. Ten thousand soldiers and 3,000 white men who were not soldiers harried the fleeing Cheyennes unceasingly, thinning the defending warriors, picking off the old and young who fell behind. In the last two weeks of September soldiers caught up with them five times, but each time they found their way out.

Six weeks of flight had left their clothing and blankets in tatters; there was never enough to eat: they were still so short of horses that half the men were taking turns riding and running.

Dull Knife said that they should go to Red Cloud's agency and ask the Sioux to give them food and shelter. Some kept running, but about 150 turned northwestward with Dull Knife — a few warriors, and the old, the children, the wounded.

On October 23 Dull Knife's column was only two sleeps from Fort Robinson, Nebr., when a driving snowstorm caught them on the open plain. Suddenly, out of the swirling blizzard appeared a ghostly troop of cavalry. The Cheyennes were surrounded.

Wanted No Trouble

The soldier chief, Capt. John B. Johnson, sent an interpreter forward and quickly arranged a parley. Dull Knife told the captain that he wanted no trouble; all he wanted was to reach Red Cloud or Spotted Tail so that his people could find food and shelter.

Red Cloud and Spotted Tail had been moved far north to Dakota, the captain informed him. No longer was there a reservation in the Nebraska country, but Fort Robinson had not yet been closed. The soldiers would take them to the fort.

At first Dull Knife objected, but as dusk came on there was an icy bite in the blizzard; the Cheyennes were freezing and starving. Dull Knife said he would follow the soldiers to the fort.

The soldiers made camp along the creek, posting guards around the Cheyennes. The chiefs talked uneasily among themselves, wondering what the soldiers would do with them.

Dismantled Their Guns

They decided to dismantle their best guns and pistols, leaving the broken ones to be turned in if the soldier chief ordered them to give up their arms. All through the hours of darkness they took the guns apart, giving the barrels to the women to conceal beneath their clothing, tying springs, locks, pins, cartridges, and other small pieces to beads and moccasins as though they were ornaments.

Sure enough, the next morning Capt. Johnson ordered his men to disarm the Cheyennes. They placed their broken rifles, pistols, and bows and arrows in a little pile and the captain let the soldiers take them for souvenirs.

On October 25 they reached Fort Robinson and were assigned a log barracks that

State Drivers Most Affected By Laws Effective Aug. 27

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska drivers will be among those most affected by the bushel of 1971 legislative enactments which become effective next week.

All bills enacted by the 1971 session which did not contain the emergency clause will become operative Aug. 27.

That date will be three calendar months after the May 26 adjournment of this year's legislative session, a time span mandated by the state constitution.

Emergency Clause

Bills which contained the emergency clause became effective immediately upon their passage and approval by the governor.

As of a week from Friday, Nebraska drivers will be able to travel faster at night on state highways — but they will also be subject to a tough new drunk driving statute molded after the law in Great Britain.

The speed limit bill, LB756, increases the night-time speed limit for automobiles from 60 to 65 m.p.h. on state highways. The daytime limit remains at 65 m.p.h.

Truck speeds on state highways will also increase — from 60 to 65 m.p.h. during the day, and from 50 to 60 m.p.h. at night.

The Interstate Highway speed limit for automobiles will remain at 75 m.p.h. except where otherwise posted.

The new drunk driving law, LB948, will authorize law enforcement officers to require any driver to submit to an alcohol breath test on a pre-arrest basis.

An officer may require any driver to submit to the test "if the officer has reasonable grounds to believe such person has alcohol in his body."

If the test indicates the presence of .10 of one percent of alcohol, the driver would be subject to arrest.

Refusal Illegal

But, furthermore, he may also be arrested for refusing to submit to the test.

Once arrested, the driver may then be required to submit to a more scientific blood or urine test to determine alcohol content.

It is unlawful to operate any motor vehicle if the driver has .10 of one percent of alcohol or more in his blood, breath or urine.

The pre-arrest test procedure is designed to crack down on drunk driving in the state

Americans Are Buying Up Imports

New York (UPI) — Americans were reported Tuesday to be buying heavily in foreign cars, French wines, diamonds and other imported goods already in this country before President Nixon's new 10% surcharge went into effect.

European and Japanese automobiles still were selling at Friday's prices and dealers and distributors were uncertain about how soon prices would go up and how much.

Fiat, for example, said was operating on a basis that it had at least a 45-day supply of cars landed in this country. On these cars customers will not have to pay the import surcharge, which for automobiles will be 6.5% because there already is a 3.5% surcharge in effect. Fiat said it might not have to raise prices until its 1972 models in late autumn.

The foreign car distributors are assuming they will not be allowed during the 90-day price freeze to tack on the prices of newly landed cars any loss on foreign exchange due to the decline of the dollar in the international market.

Volkswagen Co., the leading auto importer, said the import surcharge was bound to hurt the company's sales potential in the United States and a Volkswagen spokesman even said the import surcharge probably would result in a generally higher prices for Americans.

Wines, liquors and jewelry were among the items customers seemed most eager to stock up on before the 10% surcharge could boost prices. Since 80% of all the diamonds sold in the United States are imported — the rest are resales — the prospect of a surcharge had dealers concerned.

Tent City To Fold After Eight Days

After eight days in existence Tent City will begin closing down.

The decision came after a Tuesday afternoon meeting of the City-Wide Tenants Association and residents of Tent City.

In a prepared press release, they said, "The decision to close entirely will be made only after we are sure the last remaining families have some place to go." But according to the release "a homeless mother and her two children were told by a Mrs. Dority, the caretaker of a house at 2245 West Q, that they could not rent the apartment because her family was receiving ADC assistance."

"The vast majority of Tent City families have been forced to return to substandard houses and overcrowded conditions," they said, and "many homeless families are still forced to double up with other families in rundown homes and inflated rents."

"We feel that we have made our situation clear to the people of Lincoln," they said, "but the response from the people who are in a position to take the steps to ease the housing crisis has been unsatisfactory."

Mrs. Bea Richmond, president of the City-Wide Tenants Association, said that although progress has been made in some areas, no visible progress has been made with the mayor.

She said that although he has promised to appoint a task force, there has been no definite action and she has heard no real commitment. Nothing has been said about building homes or stopping the destruction of homes for the proposed Northeast Radial.

Petitions signed by more than 700 persons in support of the concept of Tent City and the need for governmental action on housing were presented to the mayor and City Council. Tuesday evening.

A Lincoln Action Program spokesman said that they have received 713 signatures on petitions in support of the Tent City residents so far and estimated that this only accounted for half of the petitions, that there is an equal number still circulating.

He said the group would be trying for 2,000 signatures.

The press release said the University of Nebraska has said it will discourage their students from going to the Housing Authority for assistance, but they have said nothing about building married student housing, so students will continue to force poor families out of the rent assistance program.

Mrs. Richmond said the main reasons for closing Tent City are the harassment through phone calls, hate mail and verbal abuse, the intense heat and threats from governmental agencies and landlords. She said that the continued existence of Tent City was beginning to hurt low income people rather than help them.

There were still two families left Tuesday night who were homeless and Mrs. Richmond said, "We will stay until homes are found. If it takes until Christmas, I guess we'll be here till Christmas."

Council Urged To Put Housing Issue To Vote

By TOM EKVALL
Star Staff Writer

The City Council Tuesday evening was urged to take the initiative to put on the election ballot the issue of allowing city tax funds to be used "to come to grips with the housing problem."

Bruce Hamilton, director of the Lincoln Legal Aid Society, told the mayor and council at a public hearing on the city budget, that "more governmental action is needed to provide low income housing."

He said the city must act more positively and in a more broad-reaching way to meet the needs of low income persons.

Hamilton added that he hopes the council will recognize the housing problem as an important enough issue to let the people decide.

Hamilton said the city is not enforcing the housing code and added that the code would be hard to enforce because of a shortage of adequate housing for low income centers.

He said the addition of three staff personnel in the housing administrator's budget is a wise move.

"This effort, though, is insufficient," Hamilton said.

Mrs. Jeanne Agee, president of the Lincoln League of Women Voters, also appeared in support of the increased staffing of the housing administrator's office.

Mrs. Agee urged that the city plan to go rapidly into the federally subsidized, concentrated code enforcement program, which provides loans and grants to residents for rehabilitation.

"We see housing code enforcement and the necessary rehabilitation as a service to the community rather than a punitive activity, since it will encourage home owners to keep these properties from deteriorating," she said.

Mrs. Agee said the city has the opportunity to act now "before the action is forced on us" in noting that rehabilitation in some cities has come only after violent action.

Tuition Increases To Be Permitted

Washington (AP) — Tuition and fee increases for colleges and private schools which were previously announced with the semester opening in September will be permitted to take effect as scheduled despite the presidential freeze on prices and wages, a Treasury Department spokesman announced Tuesday.

The spokesman said Treasury Secretary John B. Connally made the ruling on grounds that most such increases were announced months ago and advance payments and deposits have been made for most students under the new fee schedule.

In view of these payments, the spokesman said, it has been determined that the fee increases were in effect before the Aug. 14 freeze date.

NU Awaits Word

In Lincoln, at the University of Nebraska, Vice Chancellor Howard Neville said if the order means what news wire stories indicate, "we will go ahead" with the anticipated increases in tuition rates.

Neville said, however, the university is awaiting definite word from Washington sources.

In the Lincoln Public Schools, officials were still waiting for clarification of the order to see if the schools should wait or go ahead and pay teacher salary increases negotiated last spring.

The school district has budgeted for the salary hikes, which have been announced but were not to take effect until the start of the fall term.

One spokesman said if the freeze goes into effect on the teacher salary increases, it will raise questions about whether the district should go ahead with a request for the local property tax levy it had announced earlier.

Nixon Appeals For Support From Americans

(c) New York Times News Service

New York — President Nixon appealed for support and sacrifice from the American people to back up his new economic program. Speaking at a dinner in New York City, Tuesday night, the President said that his aim was to give everyone who wanted to work the chance to do so and to create 20-million new jobs in the next 10 years.

Uncertainty Continues

London — Foreign bankers and politicians and American tourists spent another day of uncertainty Tuesday in the wake of President Nixon's Sunday evening speech. Although no country responded to Nixon's invitation to raise the value of its currency, cabinet meetings were scheduled in several European nations and the Common Market arranged for a council of ministers meeting (More On Page 26.)

Meeting Is Successful

Washington — President Nixon met with House and Senate leaders for two and one-half hours at the White House and was apparently successful in his efforts to gain their support for his emergency tax reduction proposals. Some leaders flatly predicted congressional approval, although none was willing to rule out any possible changes in the package.

Decision Protested

New York — Terence Cardinal Cooke, addressing the Knights of Columbus dinner attended by President Nixon, said that denial of government aid to parochial schools was "unreasonable and discriminatory" and deprived Catholic parents of their constitutional rights The speech was the first major response by a high-ranking American Catholic to the recent Supreme Court decision barring such aid (More On Page 33.)

Surcharge A 'Lever'

Washington — Administration officials said that President Nixon viewed the 10% surcharge on imports as a type of lever that could be used to force other countries — most notably Japan — to make appropriate upward revaluations of the currencies. This puts the United States, the world's largest market, in the position of judging what is "appropriate" in other countries exchange rates.

Stock Advance Continues

New York — Led by the automotive issues, the stock market continued its advance, although not at the record proportions of Monday. The volume on the New York Stock Exchange on Tuesday dropped from a record 31.72 million shares to 26 79 million, the third heaviest trading day in history The Dow-Jones Industrial Average rose 10.95 points (More On Page 34.)

Diplomatic Offensive Launched

Washington — A diplomatic offensive launched by Peking has been concentrated, according to American officials, in countries with close ties with either the United States or the Soviet Union. This assessment was made following the establishment of relations between Peking and Iran, which followed by a week of similar ties with Turkey and Peru.

Court Action Needed

Dallas — Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama said that the federal government would have to take him to court if it wanted him to stop issuing orders to halt school busing. He made the statement after announcing that he would order a third school board to ignore a court ordered desegregation plan. Wallace said he would abide by any ultimate court decision. (Another Story On Page 15.)

Full Control Restored

Washington — Full control over the Bureau of Indian Affairs has been restored to the bureau's head, Louis R. Bruce, according to the Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B Morton. Morton ammended an earlier order diluting some of Bruce's powers. Young activist Indians had protested that the order negated efforts to give Indians more voice in their own affairs. (More On Page 21.)

Guidelines Planned

Washington — The Office of Emergency Preparedness said that policy guidelines on the wage and price freeze would be issued by the end of the week. The Cost of Living Council, which was set up by the president's order, also met again to make decisions on which areas would be under the controls and which would not.

Death And Destruction Accompany Typhoon

World News

Hong Kong (UPI) — Typhoon Rose lashed Hong Kong with 115 mile per hour winds in the predawn hours Tuesday, leaving a path of death and destruction in which a Hong Kong-Macao ferry boat capsized and 37 ships were driven aground.

Authorities reported at least 25 persons died as result of the typhoon and its torrential rains. The death toll could rise much higher with at least 10 persons and possibly as many as 95 missing and feared dead. Forty persons were hospitalized and 300 others suffered lesser injuries.

Twenty-seven of the vessels ripped from their mooring and driven ashore were ocean-going vessels, including the USS Regulus, a 75h Fleet supply ship

They said the worst single incident ashore occurred when tons of mud crashed down on a small hut in the new territories district, burying four children Only one survived Two others were killed in a landslide on Hong Kong Island

Reports conflicted on the number of persons aboard the 2,600-ton ferry Fatshan which plies between Hong Kong and the Portuguese enclave of Macao, 45 miles away A government spokesman said 70 to 80 crewmen were believed aboard the craft and most of them were missing. No passengers were aboard.

The ferry smashed into two other ships and then flipped onto its side in about 30 feet of water, 40 feet off Lantao, the largest of the many islands in this colony. Only four survivors were known to have made it to shore. Four bodies were recovered from the vessel.

The storm was the worst to hit Hong Kong in 10 years and authorities said 1,500 persons lost their homes and another 13,168 persons were temporarily homeless as a result of forced evacuation from areas flooded or hit by landslides

Stanley Ho, managing director of the Shun Tak Shipping Co. which owns the vessel, said it was believed 66 crewmen were aboard the ferry and that most of them were safe on an island near the ship which he said capsized in 30 feet of water

Ho and the government spokesmen said there were no passengers aboard the ferry

Ho said four Britons were among the crew members, including Capt I L Price 69, who was reported to have been thrown overboard and was among the missing

The Regulus carried a crew of 14 officers and 205 enlisted men One crewman suffered a severe concussion and broken ribs Five others sustained minor injuries, according to a spokesman for the U.S. Consulate General

When the powerful winds of Rose sent the Regulus crashing into the shore of Kau Yi Chau Island, the impact smashed the bow and caused the vessel to buckle amidships.

Ship commander, Capt. F L. Nelson, sent out an SOS asking for help in evacuating the crew Tugboats of the marine department responded but were able to rescue only a few crewmen

The HMS Hubberston, a minesweeper of the British Royal Navy, reached the Regulus shortly after dawn and began evacuating the Regulus crew with the use of rubber rafts Another Royal Navy minesweeper, the HMS Bossington, arrived and joined the rescue operation

'We recovered in difficult conditions 108 of the crew and during this time a Hong Kong air helicopter landed on board the Regulus and took off an injured man,' Lt Cdr Nigel Turner, captain of the Hubberston, said The Bossington took another 72 crewmen from the Regulus

Six Witnesses Fail To Place Medina At Massacre Scene

Ft. McPherson, Ga. (UPI) — The prosecution ran through six additional witnesses Tuesday without placing Capt. Ernest L. Medina in a position to have known a massacre was occurring at My Lai.

One of the witnesses, Lt. William L. Calley's radio operator, said Calley never told him to report the slaughter to Medina.

Medina's court-martial was adjourned for the day about 2 p m CDT when the prosecution temporarily ran out of witnesses

The trial apparently is moving along much faster than the government expected since Medina's defense counsel, F. Lee Bailey, has asked very few questions on cross examination

The prosecution has said it intends to call 48 witnesses, and Bailey — seemingly convinced the government cannot prove its case — said he may not call any

Medina, 34, of Montrose, Colo., is charged with 102 murders at My Lai, two by his own hand and 100 through the acts of his troops. Calley, a platoon leader under Medina, also was tried for 102 murders and was convicted of 22 of them. He has his life sentence under appeal.

Charles Sledge, Calley's radio operator and now a truck driver in Sardis, Miss., was asked by Bailey:

"Did Lt Calley ever tell you to report to Capt. Medina that people were being slaughtered at My Lai?"

"No sir," Sledge answered

The other witnesses who testified Tuesday were Ronald Grzesik of Holyoke, Mass., and Thomas W. Turner of Bellevue, Neb., both members of Calley's platoon, Robert Maples, Freehold, N.J., a machinegunner during the March 16, 1968 My Lai operation, James R. Bergthold, Niagara Falls, N.Y., Maples' assistant gunner, and Robert Mauro of Brooklyn, N.Y., operator of a grenade launcher.

All of the witnesses testified to the killing that took place at My Lai, but none placed Medina on the scene while the slaughter was in progress Most said they saw Medina either before or after the sweep

The first three witnesses called during he opening day of the trial Monday likewise failed to directly tie Medina to the slaughter

Only one witness — Grzesik — has testified to seeing Medina at a location where he could have seen the bodies

Grzesik said he came across Medina just south of the village, and that bodies were visible from there This is the spot where Medina, during the Calley trial, also testified he first saw the bodies.

Grzesik also testified that he had seen a small boy shot during the sweep, but said he did not know who was responsible. "But I don't think Capt. Medina would shoot anybody," he said.

Turner and Sledge both testified that following the operation they saw Medina fire several shots close to a prisoner of war he was interrogating, but Sledge added "I would like to emphasize that he (Medina) could have shot him if he wanted to He was close enough and a good enough shot I think he was just trying to scare him"

Norfolk, NPPD Revise Agreement On Takeover

Nebraska News

Norfolk (AP) — The complex formula setting up accounting procedures after the city takeover of Nebraska Public Power District facilities divided the Norfolk City Council exactly in half before the issue was finally resolved.

At issue were several changes in the original agreement between NPPD and the city of Norfolk. The proposed changes all were suggested by NPPD.

An agreement was approved by the council last March and the city is scheduled to assume ownership of NPPD local facilities on Jan. 1 and then lease the system back to NPPD.

The original agreement called for the city to receive 30% of the total revenue of which 15% would be reinvested back into the system. The city then would have had the option to pay an additional 5% in lieu of taxes, leaving Norfolk with 10% of the revenue.

The new changes in the agreement give the city a flat 10% of the revenue along with another 5% in lieu of taxes which amounted to $26,238 last year.

The controversy Monday night surrounded the in lieu of tax payment. That money is divided up between the city and four other area governmental agencies.

Councilman Glenn Zobel contended the city would lose $5 million over the next 25 years under the new arrangement because revenue generated in the city by users of NPPD would be shared by nonusers outside the city. The city would get about 22% in lieu of tax payments, he said.

A motion to hire an accounting firm to study both procedures ended in a tie 4-4 vote. Mayor Edward Vrzal cast the tie-breaking vote against the accounting firm proposal.

A motion to approve the new changes to the old agreement then won 5-3 approval by the council.

NPPD said its agreement provides for the city to assume ownership of the system, effective Jan. 1, 1972. The city then will lease the system to NPPD, which will assume full operational responsibility.

NPPD said Norfolk was the largest city to agree to the electrical distribution lease agreement.

NPPD will pay the city 10% of the adjusted retail revenue annually plus in lieu of tax payments. In addition, Norfolk will receive a discount on the electricity consumed for street lighting and other municipal operations.

"It is estimated that Norfolk will realize in excess of $7.7 million in lease payments, tax payments and municipal discounts over the 15-year life of the agreement," according to M. V. Goldsberry, NPPD's Norfolk district manager.

Goldsberry estimated that the 10% lease payments alone will exceed $5 million, in lieu of tax payments will be more than $1.8 million and the discounts will amount to $822,000.

Norfolk is headquarters for a NPPD district that also has offices in Oakland, Scribner, Tilden, Newman Grove, Tekamah, Walthill and Dodge.

Twiehaus, Volk Cited For SPF Contributions

Twiehaus

Volk

Two members of the Nebraska SPF Association were recognized for outstanding contributions to the association Tuesday, during the 11th annual SPF swine conference at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

Dr. Marvin J. Twiehaus, chairman of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Department of Veterinary Science, and John Volk, hog producer from Battle Creek, received awards for specific contributions to the SPF program over the past year. Richard Coupe, Nebraska SPF coordinator, made the award presentations.

Volk received the SPF Herd Production Award for 1970. He enrolled in the SPF program in 1960 with Hysterectomy Purebred Hampshire Stock and since then has expanded his herd, producing over 3,000 hogs annually. He has recently introduced Yorkshire and Duroc breeds into his program.

The Nebraska hog producer presently serves as treasurer and board member of the Nebraska SPF Accrediting Agency and is a past representative to the National SPF Convention.

Twiehaus was recognized for the "greatest contribution" to the Nebraska SPF program in 1970. He currently serves as chairman of both the Nebraska and national SPF health committees, whose responsibility it is to establish health standards for the SPF program.

Outside the program, Twiehaus has received numerous awards recognizing his contributions specifically in the field of animal disease control and eradication.

Community Services To Weigh Applications

The Lincoln Community Services board of directors will consider Wednesday recommendations for funding for two additional community programs.

The programs recommended for funding, both contingent upon other agreements, are operated by Justice, Inc. and the Southeast Nebraska Health Planning Council.

Two other agencies, Indian Center and Home and Neighborhood Development, have also applied for Community Services support.

The applications will be considered when the board meets at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Lincln Center Building.

Those approved will be provided financial support through the United Fund.

Board President Larry Connealy noted that the planning division considers new applications to assess the "value of their services to the community and possible duplication of services" and then the agency relations division "reviews the recommendation for membership offered by the planning division and determines if United Fund support is available."

Here is a rundown on the four agencies with the division recommendations:

—Justice, Inc was recommended for funding by the planning division: the agency relations division "recommended that funds be available to the program sponsored by this group but that approval be contingent upon an agreement with an established community agency who might properly administer the service," such as Lincoln Legal Services.

—The Southeast Nebraska Health Planning Council was recommended for funding by the planning division; the agency relations division "will recommend funds for the local support of this agency contingent upon the local county government to provide the same amount."

—The Indian Center was not recommended for funding by the planning division, because "there were funds available for the agency to operate for the next program year."

—Home and Neighborhood Development (HAND) was recommended for funding by the planning division, but the agency relations division decided against funding. "Our decision was based on the belief that the city-wide housing program of the Lincoln Action Program would cover this area and that existing agencies could cover the other services of HAND," said division chairman Leo J. Beck Jr.

Ammunition Explosions Slow Firemen

Albia, Iowa (AP) — Exploding military small arms ammunition hindered volunteer firemen who battled flames from a 41-car train derailment about 10 miles northeast of here Tuesday night.

The 41 cars were part of an 89-car Burlington Northern freight bound from Grand Island, Neb., to Chicago.

A railroad spokesman at Ottumwa, Iowa, said an ammunition car in the middle of the train caught fire and the ammunition began to explode. The explosions and fire touched off blazes in adjacent freight cars and by late Tuesday night the flames spread to 20 cars.

There were no reports of injuries.

Officer Larry Merrill of the Albia police said police were busy from early evening — when the derailment occurred — keeping spectators from the scene.

The railroad official said the ammunition car was from a military arsenal at Hermiston, Ore., and bound for the Army Ordnance Depot at Savannah, Ill.

Mary E. Frazell Is Dead At 101

Grand Island (AP) — Funeral services for one of Grand Island's oldest residents, Mrs. Mary E. Frazell, will be conducted at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the chapel of Apsel-Butler-Geddes Funeral Home. Burial will be in Grand Island Cemetery.

Mrs. Frazell died Monday at the age of 101.

She was born in Bristol, Ind., and moved to Grand Island with her parents, William and Mary Culbertson, in 1888. She was married to Lewis Frazell on Oct. 29, 1901, in Grand Island and lived variously in St. Joseph, Mo., Omaha and Grand Island before returning permanently to Grand Island in 1913.

She is survived by a daughter, Miss Willisdene Frazell of Grand Island.

Council Lets Royal Grove Remain Open

The Royal Grove, a popular nightspot at 340 West Cornhusker, has been allowed by the City Council to stay in business, but on a probationary status.

The council at its regular Monday meeting adopted a resolution saying there appeared to be insufficient evidence under the state liquor control act to revoke the Royal Grove's liquor license.

The resolution calls for the council to review the situation in three months to determine whether any positive action has been taken to control activities outside the licensed premise which in the past have created a nuisance to residents.

The first paragraph of the story on the council's action on the Royal Grove was inadvertently omitted in Tuesday morning's Star.

Five Minard Children 'Neglected'

Papillion (AP) — The Sarpy County attorney's office has filed a petition in juvenile court alleging that the five children of slain Omaha Patrolman Larry D. Minard "are neglected."

Deputy County Attorney Chris M. Arpts said that Mrs. Richard Matteson, Minard's widow, who remarried last January, was not home Monday morning when a fire damaged a house in which the children — aged five to 12 — had been left.

The fire caused about $5,000 damage.

La Vista Police Chief David Davenport said when he and firemen arrived at the Matteson home, they found the five children outside and a second-floor bedroom in flames.

The children reported their mother had not been home for four days, Davenport said.

The children's foster father returned Monday afternoon, but Davenport said Mrs Matteson had not returned by late Monday night.

Arpts said he authorized Davenport to drive the children to Omaha and place them temporarily in the custody of a brother of the late policeman.

Arpts said the petition was not a criminal complaint and said "The Juvenile Court will have to determine whether the children are to be placed in foster homes or returned to the mother."

One of the children told firemen he had been playing with matches in the bedroom where the fire began.

Minard was killed last Aug. 17 when he apparently touched a booby-trapped suitcase in a vacant house.

Citizens responded in the following weeks with contributions which were set up as a $50,000 trust fund for Minard's children, along with $12,000 for other policemen and firemen injured in the line of duty.

Two Omaha men, David Rice, 23, and Edward Poindexter, 26, were convicted of first-degree murder in Minard's death and are serving life sentences in the Nebraska Penal Complex.

Two Fined, Counts Dropped Against Five In Disturbances

Omaha (AP) —Two persons were fined and charges were dismissed against five others Tuesday in connection with July disturbances in Memorial and Elmwood parks here.

William C. McNeeley, 19, and Bruce M. Ricks, 24, were fined $100 and $50 respectively in Municipal Court for failure to disperse in connection with the disturbances on July 9.

Judge Theodore L. Carlson dismissed for lack of evidence charges against Barbara Irene Solomon, 17, loitering and prowling; Thomas E. Smithson, 20, park curfew violation; David M. Mangelsen, curfew violation, and Christopher J. Leary, 16, loitering and prowling.

The judge upheld a motion by Asst. City Prosecutor J. Patrick Mullen to dismiss a loitering and prowling charge against Gary Norman Thomsen, 19, when police witnesses did not appear.

All seven persons are from Omaha.

New Policy On Psychiatric Welfare Patients Criticized

Omaha (AP) — A member of the Douglas County Health Board Tuesday criticized a new state policy placing a 30-day annual limit on private hospitalization for psychiatric welfare patients.

Dr. Chester H. Farrell said the policy, effective Friday, "amounts to a civilian order to discharge a patient irrespective of his condition and, in effect, forces the abandonment of a patient."

The policy, outlined in a recent directive from State Welfare Director Lawrence L. Graham, permits further treatment in state or county hospitals or by private psychiatrists on an outpatient basis or in a clinic.

Graham said the new directive resulted from continuous review of Nebraska welfare policies in an effort to "bring Nebraska in line" with what "states around us are doing."

Some Stays Prolonged

He said the length of stay for psychiatric patients has been in many cases quite prolonged with numerous stays of three months or as long as seven months or more when the national average for psychiatry is 7.2 days to 18.1 days."

Farrell accused the state of "discriminating against psychiatric patients by imposing the limits.

Norfolk, NPPD Revise Agreement On Takeover

Norfolk (AP) — The complex formula setting up accounting procedures after the city takeover of Nebraska Public Power District facilities divided the Norfolk City Council exactly in half before the issue was finally resolved.

At issue were several changes in the original agreement between NPPD and the city of Norfolk. The proposed changes all were suggested by NPPD.

An agreement was approved by the council last March and the city is scheduled to assume ownership of NPPD local facilities on Jan. 1 and then lease the system back to NPPD.

The original agreement called for the city to receive 30% of the total revenue of which 15% would be reinvested back into the system. The city then would have had the option to pay an additional 5% in lieu of taxes, leaving Norfolk with 10% of the revenue.

NPPD said its agreement provides for the city to assume ownership of the system, effective Jan. 1, 1972. The city then will lease the system to NPPD, which will assume full operational responsibility.

NPPD said Norfolk was the largest city to agree to the electrical distribution lease agreement.

NPPD will pay the city 10% of the adjusted retail revenue annually plus in lieu of tax payments. In addition, Norfolk will receive a discount on the electricity consumed for street lighting and other municipal operations.

"It is estimated that Norfolk will realize in excess of $7.7 million in lease payments, tax payments and municipal discounts over the 15-year life of the agreement," according to M. V. Goldsberry, NPPD's Norfolk district manager.

Goldsberry estimated that the 10% lease payments alone will exceed $5 million, in lieu of tax payments will be more than $1.8 million and the discounts will amount to $822,000.

Council Lets Royal Grove Remain Open

The Royal Grove, a popular nightspot at 340 West Cornhusker, has been allowed by the City Council to stay in business, but on a probationary status.

The council at its regular Monday meeting adopted a resolution saying there appeared to be insufficient evidence under the state liquor control act to revoke the Royal Grove's liquor license.

The resolution calls for the council to review the situation in three months to determine whether any positive action has been taken to control activities outside the licensed premise which in the past have created a nuisance to residents.

The first paragraph of the story on the council's action on the Royal Grove was inadvertently omitted in Tuesday morning's Star.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Clearly in the limelight at the moment is President Nixon's bold economic program to halt inflation. But sitting in the wings is the other half of the nation's economic problem—declining profits, slow retail sales and a generally sluggish state of affairs.

When the economy moves, it moves in inflationary circles but part of the problem is that not all the economy is on the move. The situation is often referred to as the worst of two worlds—inflation and a recession, although the latter is generally conceded to be not quite that bad.

Nixon hopes his economic package, mainly the wage, price and rent freeze, will have an effect, also, upon the sluggish end of the economy. These things, coupled with a better international monetary situation and tax reduction, are expected to restore the confidence of consumers in the U.S. dollar.

Confident of the dollar, the American people will then go out and spend their money, the theory goes. But if there is one thing you really can't predict, it is the fiscal behavior of the American people.

No one really knows for sure why the people are not spending today as they did a few years ago, why savings are running at record high rates. The experts have opinions but those opinions vary.

To a nationwide extent that adds up to billions of dollars, the American people have the means of buying but not the will. The most accepted explanation seems to be a kind of unknowing fear of the economy.

With excessive inflation, people are just so uncertain about things that they save their money instead of spending it, to whatever degree this is possible for them. Other factors are a part of the puzzle—such things as the fear of unemployment and the high cost of credit.

Families with a breadwinner who feels he may lose his job are not going to go on a spending spree. Many families will take a second look at purchases when the credit they need costs them perhaps as much as six per cent a year more today than it might have a year ago.

Putting it another way, U.S. consumers are exercising their traditional right of choice, are setting the values by which they intend to live. They are looking at both what they need and what they feel it would be nice to have, giving priority to the first and frequently eliminating the second.

This is a lesson in the economics of the free enterprise system. This is a competitive system, not a controlled one. It is not controlled even today, despite the large corporate structures of the land and the fantastic technological revolution of the past 10 years.

Despite the skills of merchandising and the miracles of research and development, you still have to build a better mousetrap to make it in our economy. And that, in the end, is what will prove to be the strength of the nation, as it has always done in the past.

★

Is it not the government that will put the economy through the wringer? It is not the President's new program that will return the nation's economy to what we all want it to be.

All of these things will help but it is still the free market that will determine our future. Ours is a profit motive economy and that is where the game is played. We all have something to sell, either a product, a service or ourselves.

If it is ourselves we are selling, we are offering our abilities to the highest bidder — taking a job at the best pay we are able to get. Whoever hires us gambles on the belief that he can make more out of what we do for him than he is paying us.

When we spend what we make, as either employers or employes, we sit in judgment on business, industry and the professions. Additionally, in this way we determine the ultimate trend of economic affairs and constitute what is truly the free enterprise system.

We Should All Start Over In The Matter Of Money

WASHINGTON — Our lecture on economics today has to do with the revaluation of all the world's currency. Think about it; you can't get anything for a penny or even a nickel these days, any more than you can get something for a single peseta, a single lira or a quesero.

What with inflation, it's going to be ridiculous when a loaf of bread costs a dollar. What every country should do is start all over again, with its smallest coin worth something — if only a postage stamp — in real goods. This would be much more realistic and is something that should be done every century or so.

Contrary to public opinion, at least somebody in Northern Ireland is doing something other than hurling rocks. The Lambeg Industrial Research Association has come up with a way to convert automobile exhaust fumes into harmless carbon dioxide (which plants breathe) and water.

That's all very good, of course, but if they could find a way to convert carbon dioxide and water into gasoline, then they'd have something better than an oil field in Texas! Which reminds me, there's a man in England who has invented an auto engine that runs perfectly on fertilizer; I guess he'll call his firm the Smell Oil Company.

Liquor Locations Opposed

Residents of Bishop Heights and other areas surrounding the Treasure City complex in the vicinity of 27th St. and Nebraska Hwy. were successful Monday in persuading the City Council to recommend denial of a package liquor license to be located adjacent to the shopping center. Some 365 area residents signed petitions opposing the license. An earlier request for a Class C license for a cocktail lounge in the same location was similarly opposed by the neighborhood and the council, and the license application was subsequently denied by the State Liquor Control Commission.

In arguing for the package license, the applicant's attorney noted that there are liquor stores in other shopping centers and that the residents opposed his client because of their distaste for the size and location of the Treasure City complex. The neighborhood's representative said no, the bulk of opposition was directed at a liquor store, period.

Whatever the reason, and we suspect there is some truth in the arguments of both sides, it is clear that residents do not want another liquor store in the area. But there is some irony in the council's action. In the past it has been generous in aiding the commercial development in that area. It's latest action is akin to shutting the barn dorn several years after the horse ran off

The council handled another controversial liquor item Monday by deciding that there does not appear to be sufficient evidence under the provisions of the State Liquor Control Act to revoke the liquor license of the Royal Grove, a night club on West Cornhusker Hwy.

Nearby residents had complained to the council about unnecessary noise, other disturbances and lewd activities caused by Royal Grove patrons either in the parking lot or on surrounding private property.

The council, urging management to take appropriate steps to curtail such activity and directing the police department to keep closer tabs on the operation of the night club, said it would consider taking "whatever action is appropriate and necessary to remedy the situation" if positive action does not result in 90 days.

The management of the Grove and the police department, hopefully for all concerned, can iron out difficulties that offend the neighborhood. But the council shouldn't wait 90 days to act if problems can't be solved. The council should be as sympathetic toward citizens who complain about the nuisance factor of an existing business as it is toward residents who protest a potential nuisance.

'We're Sorry, But . . .'

The Kent State University incident of May 4, 1970, is now only part of our national memory. Laid to rest along with the bodies of the four students slain by Ohio National Guardsmen was any further official action to determine the true facts behind the tragedy which shook the foundations of the country.

After the shootings — a National Guard response to campus protest triggered by the invasion of Cambodia by U.S. and South Vietnamese troops—a Portage County, Ohio, grand jury issued a report exonerating the guardsmen, indicting 25 of the students on riot-related charges and criticizing the Kent State administration.

Upon release of the Ohio grand jury report, the U.S. Deppartment of Justice resources already committed and the intensive examinaton of the results of the investigations, Atty. Gen. John Mitchell said last Friday, "it appears clear that further investigation by a federal grand jury could not reasonably be expected to produce any new evidence which would contribute further in making a prosecutive judgment."

Of course, Mitchell said, the killings were "unnecessary, unwarranted and inexcusable," and, "we can only hope that any type of recurrence can be avoided by this experience and that incidents like this will never again be part of our national life."

How can a government answer to its people in this manner? Is the solitary judgment of the attorney general that a grand jury might not produce any new evidence sufficient criterion to sweep a tragedy of such proportions under the carpet? If the killings were so "inexcusable"—which, in fact, they were—the public has a right to hear from a federal grand jury what did or did not happen and where the blame should lie.

Nixon's Action May Be Too Little, Too Late; Speculation On Procedure Following 90 Days

WASHINGTON — The full economic consequences of President Nixon's weekend decisions and his Sunday night speech remain to be seen, although they are bound to be significant. But it is already clear that the speech was a graphic demonstration of one of the durable verities of American politics — that the greatest political power of a president is the power to act.

It is true enough, at least to the sophisticated, that Nixon's various actions and proposals represented tacitly the ignominous failure of his own touted "game plan" for the American economy. In the compass of 20 minutes on television, he did almost everything he had said he would not do, and almost everything that, supposedly, his previous economic policies had been designed to avoid.

It is also probable — and par for the course — that there is a certain amount of hokum in what the President, with his penchant for hyperbole, called the "most comprehensive new economic policy to be undertaken in this nation in four decades." If spending actually is going to be cut by $4.7 billion, what is the net stimulative effect of the tax cuts? And what does it mean to put off the fiscal effect of welfare reform and revenue-sharing for a year, when passage this year was dubious in the case of the former and hopeless in the case of the latter?

It may well be true, moreover, that Nixon's new array of economic action is too little and too late — that it all or much of it ought to have been done months ago, and is being done now only because Nixon has been suffering the lash of his Democratic opponents, all of whom took turns at the Texas labor meeting last week in belaboring him with the failure of his economic policy. (Democrats, of course, peddle their own brand of hokum and none of them ever mentions the great responsibility of the Johnson administration for the inflation with which Nixon has been grappling).

But never mind all that; the President HAS acted. Senator Muskie has no power to freeze wages and prices. Senator McGovern can recommend a "full employment alternative," but that avails nothing. Senator Jackson can demand a public works bill to create jobs, but so what? Only the President can act, and that he has acted vigorously — however tardily — is a political fact of the first magnitude.

At a stroke, Nixon's spectacular pronouncements have wiped out any previous appearance of hesitance or dogmatism. He has made his Democratic opponents look helpless by comparison. He has refuted their charges that he has callously done nothing to solve the economic problems of the people.

The catch is, of course, that if progress against inflation and unemployment, in particular, is not demonstrable as a result of the new economic program—and demonstrable in the fairly near future—what will the President do for an encore?

In fact, the most interesting economic and political question arising from Nixon's speech is what he intends to do at the end of the 90-day wage-price freeze. No doubt the administration itself is not yet sure, and no doubt the course of events will influence the decision. But the President can hardly back away from any wage-price policy three months from now; that would surely invite a swift new round of increases. Nor, to judge from his statements Sunday night and earlier, is he likely to impose a formal system of wage-price "controls" with its resulting bureaucracy and public irritation.

That leaves in all probability a long-term policy of guidelines and "jawbone" and it is by no means clear that that combination would be effective enough—under serious economic and political challenge—to negate what the Democrats see as their major issue against Nixon next year. That is why the program announced with such fanfare Sunday night is a political as well as an economic gamble.

Two other political points:

Although the 10 per cent protective tariff announced by Nixon will most obviously benefit the automobile industry (in combination with suspension of the 7 per cent auto excise tax), it will do the President no harm in the South, which he so prizes politically, and where "Japanese import" is a fighting label.

All of this, moreover, may well mark the emergence of John Connally over John Mitchell and George Schultz as Nixon's strongest man. After Connally's virtuoso performance during his televised news conference, the odds are better than ever that there will be a remarkable Republican ticket next year, featuring one man who looks like Richard Nixon and another who sounds like Lyndon Johnson.

ANTHONY LEWIS

The British Troubles

DUBLIN, Ireland — James Callaghan, the British Labor Party's shadow home secretary, was commenting the other day on the political context of the violence in the streets of Belfast. "If they wish Northern Ireland to live in relative peace," he said, "both sides will have to give up something."

A sound judgment, that. Any sensible man can see that a way out of the terror must begin with compromise and restraint. The only flaw in the argument is that, over hundreds of years of trouble between the British and the Irish, peace has been endlessly frustrated by the refusal of one side or the other to give up anything it considers essential.

The political history of these two islands is enough to discourage the most determined Dr. Pangloss. One thing about it may be overlooked: The troubles take place in Ireland, but their wrecking effect again and again has been felt in British politics.

King Richard II's fatal mistake nearly 600 years ago, as Shakespeare described it, was to pursue his Irish wars. While he was bogged down across the Irish Sea, Bolingbroke massed his rebellious forces. On Richard's return, there was nothing for him but to make that beautiful sad speech about the death of kings, and then to abdicate.

Elizabeth's Earl of Essex found that defeat in Ireland led to loss of her affection and, eventually, his head. And so, again and again, Britain's effort to subdue and colonize Ireland brought disorder upon herself.

At the end of the 19th Century, there seemed to be a chance of peaceful compromise in the idea of Irish home rule, but the extremist Protestant Ulsterman would have none of it; in the wreckage of that hope, the great Liberal Party began to disintegrate. Fifty years ago Britain tried to rid herself of the Irish burden by partition, but that only hid for a while the passions, the hatreds that are now exploding again.

If Edward Heath has any feeling for history, and he does, he must be contemplating that melancholy record. Like so many of his predecessors, he must wish there were some way to escape the Irish Question, some way simply to drop all British responsibility in Ireland. But history bars that course.

There are voices in Britain now urging a policy of unconditional withdrawal, as if Ulster were Vietnam, but this is not a case of troops having intruded just a few years ago into an alien culture halfway around the world Britain has had a role in her neighboring island for so long that no conceivable government in London could just wash its hands of the affair and coolly watch the all-out civil war that would certainly develop.

The reality facing Heath is that Britain's responsibility in Northern Ireland is likely to grow, not diminish. For few observers in Belfast think Brian Faulkner is likely to survive as prime minister there indefinitely, and his disappearance would call into question the whole Stormont system — the provincial government that has managed affairs in Ulster under the total control of the Protestant Unionists for the last 50 years.

It is commonly said that the next step after Faulkner will be "direct rule," with London governing in Northern Ireland as in Scotland, without any provincial regime. Some regard that prospect as a happy one, because it would end the sectarian character of government in Ulster. But the sectarian feelings would remain in those two bitter, separated communities — and the overburdened British troops would still have the job of trying to impose peace on a country with no agreed political structure.

No, direct rule is unlikely to work any better than earlier formulas, unless there is at last some advance toward political accommodation between the Protestants and Catholics of the north. The necessity is to make the Catholics feel that whatever government exists is theirs, too, not just a Protestant business in which they have no stake. Only that way will the loyalty of decent people be won back from indecent terrorists.

Jack Lynch, the prime minister here in Dublin, did not please Heath when he said the Stormont government had to be replaced by something that included Catholics. That was rocking the boat. But it happens to be the truth, and there will be no lasting peace in Belfast until it is accepted.

What worries Heath and his colleagues about that truth is that it will be resisted by the Protestant ultras. But sooner or later some British government will have to face those Orangemen, as should have happened a century ago. In the end, this is a British problem, and the last British battle in Ireland will have to be with the little Britons of Ulster

ADC Mothers

Lincoln, Neb.

Prominent among the victims of our male supremacist culture are female heads of the family. Since the economic system provides for women only as secondary wage earners, they and their children suffer from extreme poverty. Moreover, lack of community child care facilities puts the whole burden of socializing the children on the mother and prevents her from holding gainful employment. Faced with the failure of the system to allow women to support their families, the legislature chose as a solution the creation of a "substitute man"—the 1935 Social Security Act providing aid to dependent children.

Throughout society, one finds the view that poverty is due to the ADC mother's ability to function. Compulsory pregnancy, lack of birth control, discrimination against women in education and jobs are, of course, not viewed as the problem. Fathers are responsible for some support but the system allows him to live on $310 per month whereas this amount on welfare budget supports a mother and three children. And most mothers are extremely fortunate if they get any support, at all. It would be very simple for Social Security offices or Internal Revenue to collect child support as they collect taxes and Social Security. Only our male chauvinist system supplies law-enforcement mainly when it benefits itself.

Right now in Nebraska, the patriarchial system is in need of jobs for men. So they found the way to make employment of ADC mothers unlucrative by the introduction of "ratable reduction." This means that these women will eventually give up their jobs entirely to make room for men.

The time has come to recognize that child-caring mothers are providing a vital economic function in society. Raising a family is hard work and should be adequately compensated with wages enabling mothers to provide for their families without ADC, welfare, food stamps and rent subsidies.

The vast majority of women in this country are taxpayers. This tax money should be channeled back to women instead of being given to male projects like the Pentagon or NASA.

Yours in powerful sisterhood . . .

Six Trees

Lincoln, Neb.

For the past few days I have been trying to influence the city employes to choose another route for a relief sewer project — whatever that is — other than the west side of the 4100 block on North 62nd St.

Last Wednesday I discovered a city employe beside my home measuring the girth of the tree trunks. I was informed that all six trees would be removed.

These are a pinoak, hackberry, a tree of paradise, a young sugar maple, a silver maple three feet around — and most of all, a huge silver maple which is 10½ feet around its trunk.

The huge silver maple is easily a century old. It shades our backyard and home. It shades the cars of people attending St. Patrick's. It shades the cars of the Havelock Grade School teachers, and the cars of our guests. This tree is irreplaceable. Why must this living landmark be killed for a sewer project which could just as easily be engineered elsewhere?

Another factor to be considered — the air-pollution measuring device for the Havelock area is located only a few feet from its branches. This silver maple is "doing its thing" in creating moisture, oxygen and whatever else trees are supposed.

All six trees survived the October snow storm without losing a single branch. All six seem to be in excellent health.

With the state of today's environment, the public interest in ecology and our great loss of elms from disease in recent years, we should preserve every tree we can, especially these unusually old specimens of slow-growing varieties.

Anyone with suggestions, please call 466-5519.

This is a belated congratulation for the Elks who voted to remove the restriction of race from their membership requirements.

Since I have been a severe critic of them, I am duty-bound to congratulate them on their vote.

Now they can work to persuade the members of other Elks Clubs to see their point of view.

The management of the Grove and the police department, hopefully for all concerned, can iron out difficulties that offend the neighborhood. But the council shouldn't wait 90 days to act if problems can't be solved. The council should be as sympathetic toward citizens who complain about the nuisance factor of an existing business as it is toward residents who protest a potential nuisance.

'We're Sorry, But . . .'

The Kent State University incident of May 4, 1970, is now only part of our national memory. Laid to rest along with the bodies of the four students slain by Ohio National Guardsmen was any further official action to determine the true facts behind the tragedy which shook the foundations of the country.

After the shootings — a National Guard response to campus protest triggered by the invasion of Cambodia by U.S. and South Vietnamese troops—a Portage County, Ohio, grand jury issued a report exonerating the guardsmen, indicting 25 of the students on riot-related charges and criticizing the Kent State administration.

Upon release of the Ohio grand jury report, the U.S. Deppartment of Justice resources already committed and the intensive examinaton of the results of the investigations, Atty. Gen. John Mitchell said last Friday, "it appears clear that further investigation by a federal grand jury could not reasonably be expected to produce any new evidence which would contribute further in making a prosecutive judgment."

Of course, Mitchell said, the killings were "unnecessary, unwarranted and inexcusable," and, "we can only hope that any type of recurrence can be avoided by this experience and that incidents like this will never again be part of our national life."

How can a government answer to its people in this manner? Is the solitary judgment of the attorney general that a grand jury might not produce any new evidence sufficient criterion to sweep a tragedy of such proportions under the carpet? If the killings were so "inexcusable"—which, in fact, they were—the public has a right to hear from a federal grand jury what did or did not happen and where the blame should lie.

Nixon's Action May Be Too Little, Too Late; Speculation On Procedure Following 90 Days

WASHINGTON — The full economic consequences of President Nixon's weekend decisions and his Sunday night speech remain to be seen, although they are bound to be significant. But it is already clear that the speech was a graphic demonstration of one of the durable verities of American politics — that the greatest political power of a president is the power to act.

It is true enough, at least to the sophisticated, that Nixon's various actions and proposals represented tacitly the ignominous failure of his own touted "game plan" for the American economy. In the compass of 20 minutes on television, he did almost everything he had said he would not do, and almost everything that, supposedly, his previous economic policies had been designed to avoid.

It is also probable — and par for the course — that there is a certain amount of hokum in what the President, with his penchant for hyperbole, called the "most comprehensive new economic policy to be undertaken in this nation in four decades." If spending actually is going to be cut by $4.7 billion, what is the net stimulative effect of the tax cuts? And what does it mean to put off the fiscal effect of welfare reform and revenue-sharing for a year, when passage this year was dubious in the case of the former and hopeless in the case of the latter?

It may well be true, moreover, that Nixon's new array of economic action is too little and too late — that it all or much of it ought to have been done months ago, and is being done now only because Nixon has been suffering the lash of his Democratic opponents, all of whom took turns at the Texas labor meeting last week in belaboring him with the failure of his economic policy. (Democrats, of course, peddle their own brand of hokum and none of them ever mentions the great responsibility of the Johnson administration for the inflation with which Nixon has been grappling).

But never mind all that; the President HAS acted. Senator Muskie has no power to freeze wages and prices. Senator McGovern can recommend a "full employment alternative," but that avails nothing. Senator Jackson can demand a public works bill to create jobs, but so what? Only the President can act, and that he has acted vigorously — however tardily — is a political fact of the first magnitude.

At a stroke, Nixon's spectacular pronouncements have wiped out any previous appearance of hesitance or dogmatism. He has made his Democratic opponents look helpless by comparison. He has refuted their charges that he has callously done nothing to solve the economic problems of the people.

The catch is, of course, that if progress against inflation and unemployment, in particular, is not demonstrable as a result of the new economic program—and demonstrable in the fairly near future—what will the President do for an encore?

In fact, the most interesting economic and political question arising from Nixon's speech is what he intends to do at the end of the 90-day wage-price freeze. No doubt the administration itself is not yet sure, and no doubt the course of events will influence the decision. But the President can hardly back away from any wage-price policy three months from now; that would surely invite a swift new round of increases. Nor, to judge from his statements Sunday night and earlier, is he likely to impose a formal system of wage-price "controls" with its resulting bureaucracy and public irritation.

That leaves in all probability a long-term policy of guidelines and "jawbone" and it is by no means clear that that combination would be effective enough—under serious economic and political challenge—to negate what the Democrats see as their major issue against Nixon next year. That is why the program announced with such fanfare Sunday night is a political as well as an economic gamble.

Two other political points:

Although the 10 per cent protective tariff announced by Nixon will most obviously benefit the automobile industry (in combination with suspension of the 7 per cent auto excise tax), it will do the President no harm in the South, which he so prizes politically, and where "Japanese import" is a fighting label.

All of this, moreover, may well mark the emergence of John Connally over John Mitchell and George Schultz as Nixon's strongest man. After Connally's virtuoso performance during his televised news conference, the odds are better than ever that there will be a remarkable Republican ticket next year, featuring one man who looks like Richard Nixon and another who sounds like Lyndon Johnson.

ANTHONY LEWIS

The British Troubles

DUBLIN, Ireland — James Callaghan, the British Labor Party's shadow home secretary, was commenting the other day on the political context of the violence in the streets of Belfast. "If they wish Northern Ireland to live in relative peace," he said, "both sides will have to give up something."

A sound judgment, that. Any sensible man can see that a way out of the terror must begin with compromise and restraint. The only flaw in the argument is that, over hundreds of years of trouble between the British and the Irish, peace has been endlessly frustrated by the refusal of one side or the other to give up anything it considers essential.

The political history of these two islands is enough to discourage the most determined Dr. Pangloss. One thing about it may be overlooked: The troubles take place in Ireland, but their wrecking effect again and again has been felt in British politics.

King Richard II's fatal mistake nearly 600 years ago, as Shakespeare described it, was to pursue his Irish wars. While he was bogged down across the Irish Sea, Bolingbroke massed his rebellious forces. On Richard's return, there was nothing for him but to make that beautiful sad speech about the death of kings, and then to abdicate.

Elizabeth's Earl of Essex found that defeat in Ireland led to loss of her affection and, eventually, his head. And so, again and again, Britain's effort to subdue and colonize Ireland brought disorder upon herself.

At the end of the 19th Century, there seemed to be a chance of peaceful compromise in the idea of Irish home rule, but the extremist Protestant Ulsterman would have none of it; in the wreckage of that hope, the great Liberal Party began to disintegrate. Fifty years ago Britain tried to rid herself of the Irish burden by partition, but that only hid for a while the passions, the hatreds that are now exploding again.

If Edward Heath has any feeling for history, and he does, he must be contemplating that melancholy record. Like so many of his predecessors, he must wish there were some way to escape the Irish Question, some way simply to drop all British responsibility in Ireland. But history bars that course.

There are voices in Britain now urging a policy of unconditional withdrawal, as if Ulster were Vietnam, but this is not a case of troops having intruded just a few years ago into an alien culture halfway around the world. Britain has had a role in her neighboring island for so long that no conceivable government in London could just wash its hands of the affair and coolly watch the all-out civil war that would certainly develop.

The reality facing Heath is that Britain's responsibility in Northern Ireland is likely to grow, not diminish. For few observers in Belfast think Brian Faulkner is likely to survive as prime minister there indefinitely, and his disappearance would call into question the whole Stormont system — the provincial government that has managed affairs in Ulster under the total control of the Protestant Unionists for the last 50 years.

It is commonly said that the next step after Faulkner will be "direct rule," with London governing in Northern Ireland as in Scotland, without any provincial regime. Some regard that prospect as a happy one, because it would end the sectarian character of government in Ulster. But the sectarian feelings would remain in those two bitter, separated communities — and the overburdened British troops would still have the job of trying to impose peace on a country with no agreed political structure.

No, direct rule is unlikely to work any better than earlier formulas, unless there is at last some advance toward political accommodation between the Protestants and Catholics of the north. The necessity is to make the Catholics feel that whatever government exists is theirs, too, not just a Protestant business in which they have no stake. Only that way will the loyalty of decent people be won back from indecent terrorists.

Jack Lynch, the prime minister here in Dublin, did not please Heath when he said the Stormont government had to be replaced by something that included Catholics. That was rocking the boat. But it happens to be the truth, and there will be no lasting peace in Belfast until it is accepted.

What worries Heath and his colleagues about that truth is that it will be resisted by the Protestant ultras. But sooner or later some British government will have to face those Orangemen, as should have happened a century ago. In the end, this is a British problem, and the last British battle in Ireland will have to be with the little Britons of Ulster.

ADC Mothers

Lincoln, Neb.

Prominent among the victims of our male supremacist culture are female heads of the family. Since the economic system provides for women only as secondary wage earners, they and their children suffer from extreme poverty. Moreover, lack of community child care facilities puts the whole burden of socializing the children on the mother and prevents her from holding gainful employment. Faced with the failure of the system to allow women to support their families, the legislature chose as a solution the creation of a "substitute man"—the 1935 Social Security Act providing aid to dependent children.

Throughout society, one finds the view that poverty is due to the ADC mother's ability to function. Compulsory pregnancy, lack of birth control, discrimination against women in education and jobs are, of course, not viewed as the problem. Fathers are responsible for some support but the system allows him to live on $310 per month whereas this amount on welfare budget supports a mother and three children. And most mothers are extremely fortunate if they get any support, at all. It would be very simple for Social Security offices or Internal Revenue to collect child support as they collect taxes and Social Security. Only our male chauvinist system supplies law-enforcement mainly when it benefits itself.

Right now in Nebraska, the patriarchial system is in need of jobs for men. So they found the way to make employment of ADC mothers unlucrative by the introduction of "ratable reduction." This means that these women will eventually give up their jobs entirely to make room for men.

The time has come to recognize that child-caring mothers are providing a vital economic function in society. Raising a family is hard work and should be adequately compensated with wages enabling mothers to provide for their families without ADC, welfare, food stamps and rent subsidies.

The vast majority of women in this country are taxpayers. This tax money should be channeled back to women instead of being given to male projects like the Pentagon or NASA.

Six Trees

Lincoln, Neb.

For the past few days I have been trying to influence the city employes to choose another route for a relief sewer project — whatever that is — other than the west side of the 4100 block on North 62nd St.

Last Wednesday I discovered a city employe beside my home measuring the girth of the tree trunks. I was informed that all six trees would be removed.

These are a pinoak, hackberry, a tree of paradise, a young sugar maple, a silver maple three feet around — and most of all, a huge silver maple which is 10½ feet around its trunk.

The huge silver maple is easily a century old. It shades our backyard and home. It shades the cars of people attending St. Patrick's. It shades the cars of the Havelock Grade School teachers, and the cars of our guests. This tree is irreplaceable. Why must this living landmark be killed for a sewer project which could just as easily be engineered elsewhere?

Another factor to be considered — the air-pollution measuring device for the Havelock area is located only a few feet from its branches. This silver maple is "doing its thing" in creating moisture, oxygen and whatever else trees are supposed.

All six trees survived the October snow storm without losing a single branch. All six seem to be in excellent health.

With the state of today's environment, the public interest in ecology and our great loss of elms from disease in recent years, we should preserve every tree we can, especially these unusually old specimens of slow-growing varieties.

Anyone with suggestions, please call 466-5519.

Congratulations

Lincoln, Neb.

This is a belated congratulation for the Elks who voted to remove the restriction of race from their membership requirements.

Since I have been a severe critic of them, I am duty-bound to congratulate them on their vote.

Now they can work to persuade the members of other Elks Clubs to see their point of view.

OFF THE RECORD By Ed. Reed

"I wouldn't mind the rat race so much if it didn't seem fixed."

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

On his first voyage to the New World, Columbus went economy class. (Paper towels. Pay for your own cocktails.) He had three ships and 88 men.

On October 12, 1492, he sighted Watling Island. (Whatever happened to Watling? There's a question.)

He returned to Spain. Showed his treasures to Isabel and Ferdinand.

"Am I glad to see you," said the Queen. "Ferdy, hop down to the hockshop and pick up the jewels. Now, Christopher," she said, "What can we do for you?"

The Genoese navigator thought this over.

He said: "How about next time let me travel up front with the rich?"

☆ ☆ ☆

On the second time around-o, Christopher had a fleet of ships. He had 1,500 Spaniards, all eager to get in the Caribbean real estate business.

He landed on the West Coast of Puerto Rico. So the other day, I borrowed a car, and drove over to see how round the world was.

I find a number of towns claim Columbus: Aguadilla, Aguada, Boqueron Bay near Cabo Rojo and Anasco.

"No matter what they say," said the mayor of Aguadilla stiffly, "we here in Aguadilla maintain that Columbus landed on our shores."

☆ ☆ ☆

Columbus did not stay in Puerto Rico. (But one of his gentlemen adventurers was Juan Ponce de Leon. He came back as governor. The south coast town of Ponce is named for the family.)

It was raining like billy-o in the hills. The river where Columbus filled his casks was running the color of coffee-and-cream.

This is a flowery season in this flowered island. The roads are lined with flame trees. They grow like a lacy parasol, topped with flame-colored blossoms.

☆ ☆ ☆

It is beautiful coast land where the discoverer landed. The beaches are white sand, strung with coco palms. A sea of green sugar cane waves in the wind from the coast to the mountains.

The latest news on the landing came a few years ago from Mr. Aurelio Tio, an engineer and a Columbus buff. He went to Seville and studied the Archives of the Indies.

He said Columbus must have landed at Anasco Bay.

Samuel Eliot Morrison who wrote the two-volume "Admiral of the Ocean Sea," had favored Boqueron Bay. But after reading Mr. Tio's ideas, he wrote him:

"Your arguments in favor of Anasco Bay seem to me irrefutable. Columbus after spending the night in the roadstead of Cabo Rojo, would have sailed on the starboard tack, then come about and sailed east toward the shore.

"The first good anchorage with promise of fresh water would have been off the beach at Anasco Bay. Your valuable work has convinced me I was wrong . . ."

☆ ☆ ☆

Naturally, Mr. Tio was delighted with this letter. But it caused a lot of gloom at Aguadilla, Aguada, Cabo Rojo et al.

As I recall, Christopher Columbus is buried in three places.

He has a very fine tomb in the Seville Cathedral. They have another tomb where he is buried at Santo Domingo. And it seems to me, they discovered him again in Havana—or somewhere in the islands.

So if the great navigator can be buried in that many places, I don't see why he couldn't have landed in all these places.

He got around a lot, Columbus did.

Work On Bike Ordinance Done

. . . PROPOSED ROUTES OK'D BY MAYORAL COMMITTEE

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The Mayor's Bicycle Committee Tuesday put the finishing touches on a new bicycle ordinance and approved proposed bicycle routes suggested as alternatives to travel on arterial streets.

The proposed bike ordinance, which Councilwoman Helen Boosalis said would be introduced Monday before the City Council, would not prohibit bicycle travel on arterial streets.

However, it would permit the traffic engineer, with council approval, to regulate use of arterial streets by bicyclists during peak traffic hours.

Traffic Engineer Robert Holsinger has indicated that Vine, Capital Parkway and O Street should probably be restricted during peak hours because of traffic conditions.

Hearing Required

Mrs. Boosalis emphasized council approval of any action taken by the traffic engineer would require a public hearing and the opportunity for null airing of any protests.

The new ordinance requires bicycles to travel near the right-hand curb of all streets.

However, it will permit cyclists to move to the left of the traveled portion of a street to make a left turn at an intersection after yielding the right of way to any approaching motor vehicle from the rear and properly signaling.

Bike riders must ride on the right side of one-way arterial streets unless it is posted for left side travel for bikes. However, the ordinance permits crossing into proper lanes for left-hand turns and to avoid mandatory right-hand turn lanes if the bicyclist yields the right-of-way to motor vehicles.

Bicycle travel on sidewalks, except in designated congested areas and downtown Lincoln, is permitted provided the bicyclists yields to pedestrians, according to the ordinance. If there is no improved sidewalk, the bicycle rider may travel in the sidewalk "space."

The committee voted to request the City Council to include in the 1971-72 budget approximately $5,000 for installation of signs on the proposed 39 miles of bicycle routes, $800 for bicycle racks at four "pilot" locations, $150 for printing the map of bike routes, and $10,000 for a bicycle-pedestrian bridge at Eden Park pool.

The proposed bicycle routes, which do not preclude the use of arterial or other streets, are designed to give bicycle riders a "safe alternative" to traveling on arterials.

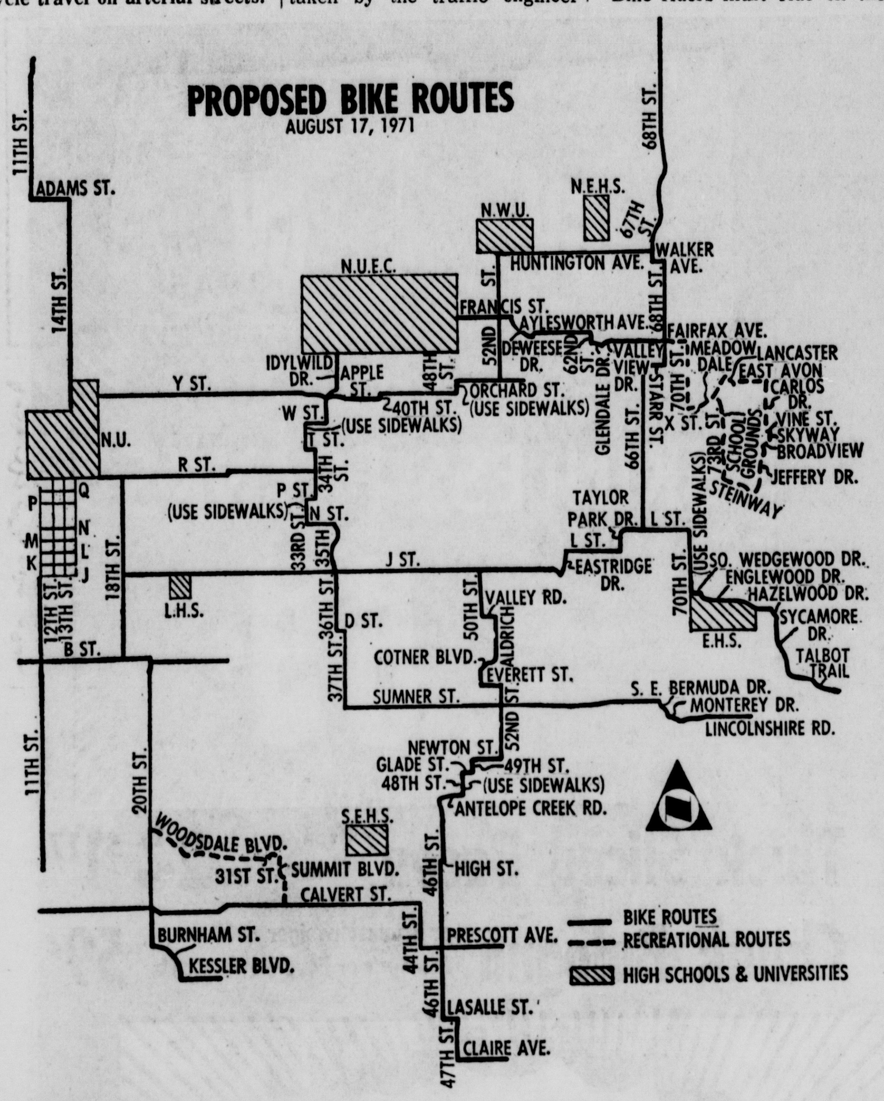
All 'Tested'

The routes, all of which have been "tested" by bicycle riders, were chosen for level grade, accessibility and safety, according to Bob Kuzelka of the City Planning Dept. They are considered "crosstown primaries" for bicycles.

The mayor's committee indicated long-range planning would continue relative to construction of bicycle routes on Sheridan Boulevard, Capital Parkway and 66th north of O. Reconstruction of the latter street is being planned.

The committee indicated the new ordinance, if introduced Monday, would undergo public hearing on Aug. 30 and would become effective about Sept. 20, if approved by the council without deviation from the normal period of enactment of an ordinance.

The committee was advised that this would coincide with "Bicycle Week" during which a number of bicycle safety clinics and activities are being planned.



THIRTY-NINE MILES . . . of bicycle "primary" routes are mapped.

Citizens Ask Council To Hike Budget

By TOM EKVALL
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln citizens one by one went before the City Council — as in years past — to request additional funds in the budget for increased city services and higher employe salaries.

Only one of the 75 citizens addressing the council urged it to reduce the cost of government — that person being former councilman Tom Allman.

Allman, who led efforts in the council last year to cut the budget for various city services, said: "I am one citizen concerned enough with the over-all economy to take time to extend my wish and hope the cost of doing business at city government can be decreased."

Analyst Supported

He said he supports the proposal of Council Chairman Dick Hartsock to hire a fiscal analyst to assist the council in reducing the cost of government, or, in the alternative, to use a committee of laymen to do the job.

Main items of concern at the public hearing were funds for housing, recreation, a jail exercise area, bicycle routes, and employe salaries.

A new item to come before the council was a request by Mrs. John Braeman, representing the Lincoln chapter of National Organization for Women (NOW) for greater city involvement and responsibility in the are of child care.

Mrs. Braeman said New York City has established a Human Resources Administration and within that agency, an Agency for Child Development. She urged that the city give consideration to such a proposal here.

'Community Resources'

"NOW believes that child care centers should be community resources, like parks and libraries, to be used or not at the discretion of individual citizens," she said.

A request for $2,500 to be added to the recreation program for a pilot project at Prescott School for activities for pupils before and after class hours was presented by another person.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf announced at the hearing that wages for city employes would be frozen for a 90-day period or until the city receives other directives.

Meanwhile, representatives of the local fire fighters and American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes appeared in support of higher wages than those being proposed. ed.

16th Of 17 Cities

Mike Merwick, representing the fire fighters, said that out of 17 cities of comparable size in the North Central area of the nation, Lincoln ranks 16th in wages for firemen.

Merwick said the union wants an increase which would put the city in the middle.

The AFSCME representative said those in laboring jobs should receive an increase of 45 cents an hour across the board.

Both unions are still in negotiation with the city. Proposals from both sides have been kept secret to date while negotiations are in progress.

Consultant Money Urged

Charles Noren, an attorney speaking for the City Employes Association, a non-union group, urged that $15,000 be added to the budget for hiring a professional consultant to assist in a study of the city's personnel system.

Noren said the next three months would be an ideal time for a study since everything is at a status quo.

Mrs. Kathy Hamilton, representing the Lincoln League of Women Voters, expressed her concern no funds were budgeted for a jail exercise area.

Police Chief Joe Carroll said there is no excess space at present in the jail area for an exercise area.

Councilman Bob Sikyta said he would like to see explored the work farm concept.

Bicylist Appears

One request before the mayor and council came from a 14-year old bicyclist.

David Boomer, a member of the Mayor's Bicycle Safety Committee, asked that $15,800 be added to the budget for construction of a pedestrian-bicycle bridge across Antelope Creek by Eden Drive, signing of bicycle routes and four bicycle racks, three of them to be at city facilities.

Boomer said regarding the proposal: "We had a long list and we cut, cut, cut."

Ed Perry, representing the Lincoln Swim Club, also urged that the proposed Muny Pool be winterized.

Schwartzkopf Again Vetoes Plans For Rezoning On West O And 84th

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf Tuesday vetoed for the second time a change of zone to highway commercial use on property at West O and S.W. 40th.

Schwartzkopf also vetoed two zoning changes requested by James Strauss in the vicinity of 84th and Van Dorn to permit development of a shopping center and apartments.

The West O zoning, requested by Gerald Lewis to build a truck service operation, was vetoed earlier by the mayor. The City Council, though, lacked five votes necessary to override the veto then, because of one member declaring a conflict of interest. The vote was 4-2 to override the veto.

The council later approved the rezoning as a reintroduced application by a vote o 5-2 when Councilman Dick Hartsock said he no longer had a conflict of interest.

Schwartzkopf again cited as reasons for denial the lack of utilities to the area, his opposition to strip zoning and the resulting effects and a desire not to make West O into another Cornhusker Hwy.

The mayor said he disapproved the 84th and Van Dorn proposals because he feels such a development will substantially deter the redevelopment of older residential areas for apartment use.

Schwartzkopf also said the high-density apartment development could have a harmful effect on nearby residential areas and that the zoning changes are "premature based on the growth that Lincoln is now experiencing."

The Planning Commission had recommend denial by votes of 8-0 on both the Lewis and Strauss developments.

Consolidation Of Rail Tracks Urged By Airport Authority

The Airport Authority Tuesday urged the Railroad Transportation Safety District to pursue the consolidation of the Union Pacific and Burlington Northern tracks in the airport area.

Airport Authority member Robert Phillips said he had received a letter from the railroad district board about what projects the Airport Authority wants pursued.

Also approved was a proposal by the Air National Guard for a jet engine test stand to be located in the Air National Guard area.

Ervin Wursten, superintendent of operations, said in a report that the J79 engine used on the F4 Phantom type aircraft would have a noise level reading of less than 50 decibels in the immediate vicinity if a test stand is used.

Wursten said a level of 85 decibels is considered tolerable to the human ear before protection is needed.

"This isn't going to completely eliminate it (the noise)," he added.

There was no discussion at the meeting about a lawsuit filed by Novo Leasing against the authority concerning a rental car lease arrangement.

Ed Carter, an attorney for the authority, said the copy of the suit is still being studied and that nothing could be projected at thist ime.

Aircraft operations for the month of July were reported to be down 5,895 from that for the same month last year. Passengers enplaned and deplaned by Frontier Airlines were also down for the month by 6% while United Air Lines experienced at 7% increase.

Minnesota Pair Is Found Guilty In Bank Holdup

Omaha (AP) — A Douglas County District Court jury found both Ronald L. Reed, 20, and Larry L. Clark, 19, guilty on three counts stemming from the attempted holdup of the Ames Plaza Bank last Oct. 20.

The seven-woman, five-man jury deliberated for about five hours before bringing in the verdict against the two St. Paul, Minn., men.

Reed and Clark were charged with felonious entry of the bank, shooting with intent to kill, wound or maim and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony. An off-duty policeman acting as a bank guard was wounded in the holdup try.

Work On Bike Ordinance Done

. . . PROPOSED ROUTES OK'D BY MAYORAL COMMITTEE

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The Mayor's Bicycle Committee Tuesday put the finishing touches on a new bicycle ordinance and approved proposed bicycle routes suggested as alternatives to travel on arterial streets.

The proposed bike ordinance, which Councilwoman Helen Boosalis said would be introduced Monday before the City Council, would not prohibit bicycle travel on arterial streets.

However, it would permit the traffic engineer, with council approval, to regulate use of arterial streets by bicyclists during peak traffic hours.

Traffic Engineer Robert Holsinger has indicated that Vine, Capital Parkway and O Street should probably be restricted during peak hours because of traffic conditions.

Hearing Required

Mrs. Boosalis emphasized council approval of any action taken by the traffic engineer would require a public hearing and the opportunity for null airing of any protests.

The new ordinance requires bicycles to travel near the right-hand curb of all streets.

However, it will permit cyclists to move to the left of the traveled portion of a street to make a left turn at an intersection after yielding the right of way to any approaching motor vehicle from the rear and properly signaling.

Bike riders must ride on the right side of one-way arterial streets unless it is posted for left side travel for bikes. However, the ordinance permits crossing into proper lanes for left-hand turns and to avoid mandatory right-hand turn lanes if the bicyclist yields the right-of-way to motor vehicles.

Bicycle travel on sidewalks, except in designated congested areas and downtown Lincoln, is permitted provided the bicyclists yields to pedestrians, according to the ordinance. If there is no improved sidewalk, the bicycle rider may travel in the sidewalk "space."

The committee voted to request the City Council to include in the 1971-72 budget approximately $5,000 for installation of signs on the proposed 39 miles of bicycle routes, $800 for bicycle racks at four "pilot" locations, $150 for printing the map of bike routes, and $10,000 for a bicycle-pedestrian bridge at Eden Park pool.

The proposed bicycle routes, which do not preclude the use of arterial or other streets, are designed to give bicycle riders a "safe alternative" to traveling on arterials.

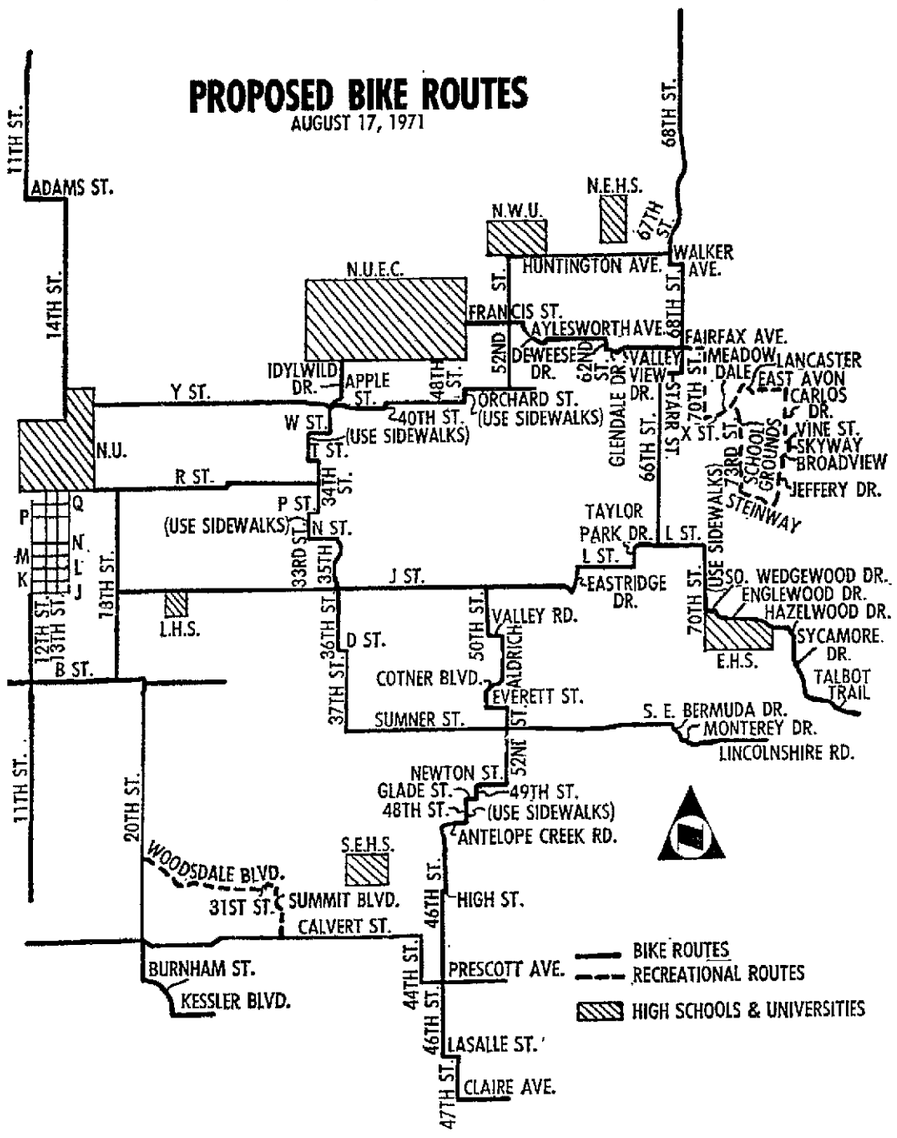
All 'Tested'

The routes, all of which have been "tested" by bicycle riders, were chosen for level grade, accessibility and safety, according to Bob Kuzelka of the City Planning Dept. They are considered "crosstown primaries" for bicycles.

The mayor's committee indicated long-range planning would continue relative to construction of bicycle routes on Sheridan Boulevard, Capital Parkway and 66th north of O. Reconstruction of the latter street is being planned.

The committee indicated the new ordinance, if introduced Monday, would undergo public hearing on Aug. 30 and would become effective about Sept. 20, if approved by the council without deviation from the normal period of enactment of an ordinance.

The committee was advised that this would coincide with "Bicycle Week" during which a number of bicycle safety clinics and activities are being planned.



THIRTY-NINE MILES . . . of bicycle "primary" routes are mapped.

Citizens Ask Council To Hike Budget

By TOM EKVALL
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln citizens one by one went before the City Council — as in years past — to request additional funds in the budget for increased city services and higher employe salaries.

Only one of the 75 citizens addressing the council urged it to reduce the cost of government — that person being former councilman Tom Allman.

Allman, who led efforts in the council last year to cut the budget for various city services, said: "I am one citizen concerned enough with the over-all economy to take time to extend my wish and hope the cost of doing business at city government can be decreased."

Analyst Supported

He said he supports the proposal of Council Chairman Dick Hartsock to hire a fiscal analyst to assist the council in reducing the cost of government, or, in the alternative, to use a committee of laymen to do the job.

Main items of concern at the public hearing were funds for housing, recreation, a jail exercise area, bicycle routes, and employe salaries.

A new item to come before the council was a request by Mrs. John Braeman, representing the Lincoln chapter of National Organization for Women (NOW) for greater city involvement and responsibility in the are of child care.

Mrs. Braeman said New York City has established a Human Resources Administration and within that agency, an Agency for Child Development. She urged that the city give consideration to such a proposal here.

'Community Resources'

"NOW believes that child care centers should be community resources, like parks and libraries, to be used or not at the discretion of individual citizens," she said.

A request for $2,500 to be added to the recreation program for a pilot project at Prescott School for activities for pupils before and after class hours was presented by another person.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf announced at the hearing that wages for city employes would be frozen for a 90-day period or until the city receives other directives.

Meanwhile, representatives of the local fire fighters and American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes appeared in support of higher wages than those being proposed. ed.

16th Of 17 Cities

Mike Merwick, representing the fire fighters, said that out of 17 cities of comparable size in the North Central area of the nation, Lincoln ranks 16th in wages for firemen.

Merwick said the union wants an increase which would put the city in the middle.

The AFSCME representative said those in laboring jobs should receive an increase of 45 cents an hour across the board.

Both unions are still in negotiation with the city. Proposals from both sides have been kept secret to date while negotiations are in progress.

Consultant Money Urged

Charles Noren, an attorney speaking for the City Employes Association, a non-union group, urged that $15,000 be added to the budget for hiring a professional consultant to assist in a study of the city's personnel system.

Noren said the next three months would be an ideal time for a study since everything is at a status quo.

Mrs. Kathy Hamilton, representing the Lincoln League of Women Voters, expressed her concern no funds were budgeted for a jail exercise area.

Police Chief Joe Carroll said there is no excess space at present in the jail area for an exercise area.

Councilman Bob Sikyta said he would like to see explored the work farm concept.

Bicylist Appears

One request before the mayor and council came from a 14-year old bicyclist.

David Boomer, a member of the Mayor's Bicycle Safety Committee, asked that $15,800 be added to the budget for construction of a pedestrian-bicycle bridge across Antelope Creek by Eden Drive, signing of bicycle routes and four bicycle racks, three of them to be at city facilities.

Boomer said regarding the proposal: "We had a long list and we cut, cut, cut."

Ed Perry, representing the Lincoln Swim Club, also urged that the proposed Muny Pool be winterized.

Schwartzkopf Again Vetoes Plans For Rezoning On West O And 84th

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf Tuesday vetoed for the second time a change of zone to highway commercial use on property at West O and S.W. 40th.

Schwartzkopf also vetoed two zoning changes requested by James Strauss in the vicinity of 84th and Van Dorn to permit development of a shopping center and apartments.

The West O zoning, requested by Gerald Lewis to build a truck service operation, was vetoed earlier by the mayor. The City Council, though, lacked five votes necessary to override the veto then, because of one member declaring a conflict of interest. The vote was 4-2 to override the veto.

The council later approved the rezoning as a reintroduced application by a vote o 5-2 when Councilman Lick Hartsock said he no longer had a conflict of interest.

Schwartzkopf again cited as reasons for denial the lack of utilities to the area, his opposition to strip zoning and the resulting effects and a desire not to make West O into another Cornhusker Hwy.

The mayor said he disapproved the 84th and Van Dorn proposals because he feels such a development will substantially deter the redevelopment of older residential areas for apartment use.

Schwartzkopf also said the high-density apartment development could have a harmful effect on nearby residential areas and that the zoning changes are "premature based on the growth that Lincoln is now experiencing."

The Planning Commission had recommend denial by votes of 8-0 on both the Lewis and Strauss developments.

Consolidation Of Rail Tracks Urged By Airport Authority

The Airport Authority Tuesday urged the Railroad Transportation Safety District to pursue the consolidation of the Union Pacific and Burlington Northern tracks in the airport area.

Airport Authority member Robert Phillips said he had received a letter from the railroad district board about what projects the Airport Authority wants pursued.

Also approved was a proposal by the Air National Guard for a jet engine test stand to be located in the Air National Guard area.

Ervin Wursten, superintendent of operations, said in a report that the J79 engine used on the F4 Phantom type aircraft would have a noise level reading of less than 50 decibels in the immediate vicinity if a test stand is used.

Wursten said a level of 85 decibels is considered tolerable to the human ear before protection is needed.

"This isn't going to completely eliminate it (the noise)," he added.

There was no discussion at the meeting about a lawsuit filed by Novo Leasing against the authority concerning a rental car lease arrangement.

Ed Carter, an attorney for the authority, said the copy of the suit is still being studied and that nothing could be projected at thist ime.

Aircraft operations for the month of July were reported to be down 5,895 from that for the same month last year. Passengers enplaned and deplaned by Frontier Airlines were also down for the month by 6% while United Air Lines experienced at 7% increase.

Minnesota Pair Is Found Guilty In Bank Holdup

Omaha (AP) — A Douglas County District Court jury found both Ronald L. Reed, 20, and Larry L. Clark, 19, guilty on three counts stemming from the attempted holdup of the Ames Plaza Bank last Oct. 20.

The seven-woman, five-man jury deliberated for about five hours before bringing in the verdict against the two St. Paul, Minn., men.

Reed and Clark were charged with felonious entry of the bank, shooting with intent to kill, wound or maim and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony. An off-duty policeman acting as a bank guard was wounded in the holdup try.

Cheyenne Firm In Determination To Remain In Northern Region

had been built to house a company of 75 soldiers. Although the 150 Cheyennes were crowded they were glad for shelter. The soldiers gave them blankets, plenty of food and medicine and there was friendliness and admiration in the eyes of the guards who kept watch over their barracks.

Each day, Dull Knife asked the post commander, Maj. Caleb Carlton, when they could go on to Red Cloud's new agency. Carlton told him they would have to wait until he received orders from Washington. To show his sympathy for the Cheyennes, he gave permission for a few warriors at a time to go out after wild game, lending them hunting rifles and ponies.

New Commander

Early in the Moon When the Wolves Run Together, their friend Maj. Carlton left the fort and a new commander came, Capt. Henry W. Wessells.

It was during this moon the white men called December that Red Cloud was brought down from Dakota to counsel with them.

"Our hearts are sore for you," Red Cloud said. "Many of our blood are among your dead. This has made our hearts bad. But what can we do, the Great Father is all-powerful. His people fill the whole earth. We must do what he says. We have begged him to allow you to come to live among us. We hope he may let you come. What we have we will share with you. But remember, what he directs, that you must do.

"We cannot help you. The snows are thick on the hills. Our ponies are thin. The game is scarce. You cannot resist, nor can we. So listen to your old friend and do without complaint what the Great Father tells you."

Grown Cautious

So Red Cloud had grown old and cautious in his later years. Dull Knife had heard he was a prisoner on his own Dakota reservation. The Cheyenne chief arose, looking sadly on the seamed face of his old Sioux brother. "We know you for our friend, whose words we may believe," he said. "We thank you for asking us to share your lands. We hope the Great Father will let us come to you. All we ask is to be allowed to live, and to live in peace. I seek no war with anyone. An old man, my fighting days are gone.

"We bowed to the will of the Great Father and went far into the south where he told us to go. There we found a Cheyenne cannot live. Sickness came among us that made mourning in every lodge. Then the treaty promises were broken, and our rations were short. Those not worn by diseases were wasted by hunger. To stay there meant that all of us would die.

"Our petitions to the Great Father were unheeded. We thought it better to die fighting to regain our old homes than to perish of sickness. Then our march was begun. The rest you know."

Dull Knife turned toward Capt. Wessells: "Tell the Great Father that Dull Knife and his people ask only to end their days here in the north where they were born. Tell him we want no more war. We cannot live in the south; there is no game. Here, when rations are short, we can hunt. Tell him if he lets us stay here Dull Knife's people will hurt no one. Tell him if he tries to send us back we will butcher each other with our own knives."

Captain Promised

Wessells stammered out a few words. He promised to let the Great Father know what Dull Knife had spoken.

Less than a month later, January 3, 1879, a message came to Capt. Wessells from the War Department. "Unless they are sent back to where they came from, the whole reservation system will receive a shock which will endanger its stability. The Indians should be taken back to their reservation."

In the fashion of the War Department the order was for immediate action, regardless of the winter weather. It was the Moon When the Snow Drifts into the Tepees, the season of bitter cold and raging blizzards.

"Does the Great Father desire us to die?" Dull Knife asked Capt. Wessells. "If so we will die right here. We will not go back!"

Wessells replied that he would give the Cheyennes five days to change their minds. During that time they would be kept prisoners in the barracks and would receive no food, or wood for the heating stoves.

Huddled Together

And so for five days the Cheyennes huddled together in the barracks. Snow fell almost every night, and they scraped it off the window ledges for water. But there was nothing to eat except scraps and bones left from previous meals, and the frost in the barracks bit at hands and faces.

On Jan. 9 Wessells summoned Dull Knife and the other chiefs to his headquarters. Dull Knife refused to go, but Wild Hog, Crow, and Left Hand went away with the soldiers. After a few minutes Left Hand came running out with his wrists manacled, soldiers crowding upon him but before he was silenced he shouted so that the people in the barracks would know what had happened.

Wild Hog told Capt. Wessells that not one Cheyenne would go south again, and the captain had ordered him put in irons. In an attempt to escape, Wild Hog tried to kill the soldiers, but they had overcome him.

After a while Wessells came outside the barracks and talked to them through the windows. "Let the women and children out," he ordered, "so they will no longer suffer."

"We'll all die here together sooner than be sent south," they answered.

Moonlight On Bayonets

Wessells went away, and then soldiers came and put chains and iron bars over the doors of the barracks. Night came, but moonlight glittered on the steel bayonets of the six soldier guards.

One of the warriors pushed the cold stove aside and lifted a section of planking. Below were five gun barrels, hidden there since the first day. From ornaments and moccasins, they began collecting triggers and hammers and cartridges. Soon they had the rifles and a few pistols back together again.

The young men painted their faces and put on their best clothing, while the women made little stacks of saddles and bundles beneath each window so that everyone could leap out quickly. Then the best marksmen among the warriors took positions at assigned windows, each choosing one of the guards outside as his target.

At 9:45 p.m. the first shots were fired. At the same moment, every window sash burst outward, and the Cheyennes poured from the building. Seizing the rifles of the dead and wounded guards, they ran toward the line of bluffs beyond the bounds of the post. They had about 10 minutes' start on foot before the first mounted troops galloped in pursuit, some riding in their winter underwear.

The warriors quickly formed a defense line while the women and children crossed a creek. Because of their few weapons, the warriors kept firing and falling back. More soldiers were coming all the time, fanning out into an enveloping arc, and they were shooting every Indian that moved across the snow.

More Than Half

In the first hour of fighting, more than half the warriors died, and then the soldiers began overtaking scattered bands of women and children, killing many of them before they could surrender. Among the dead was Dull Knife's daughter.

When morning came, the soldiers herded 65 Cheyenne prisoners, 23 of them wounded, back into Fort Robinson. Most were women and children. Only 38 of those who had escaped were still alive and free; 32 were together, moving north through the hills and pursued by four companies of cavalry and a battery of mountain artillery. Six others were hidden among some rocks only a few miles from the fort. Among the latter was Dull Knife; the others were his wife and surviving son, his daughter-in-law and grandchild, and a young boy named Red Bird.

For several days the cavalrymen followed the 32 Cheyennes, until at last they trapped them near Hat Creek Bluffs in a deep buffalo wallow. Charging to the edge of the wallow, the cavalrymen emptied their carbines into it, without drew, reloaded, and repeated the action until no fire was returned by the Indians. Only nine Cheyennes survived, most of them being women and children.

During the last days of January, traveling only by night, Dull Knife and his party made their way north to Pine Ridge. There they became prisoners on Red Cloud's reservation.

"Does the Great Father desire us to die?" Dull Knife asked Capt. Wessells. "If so we will die right here. We will not go back!"

Wessells replied that he would give the Cheyennes five days to change their minds. During that time they would be kept prisoners in the barracks and would receive no food, or wood for the heating stoves.

Huddled Together

And so for five days the Cheyennes huddled together in the barracks. Snow fell almost every night, and they scraped it off the window ledges for water. But there was nothing to eat except scraps and bones left from previous meals, and the frost in the barracks bit at hands and faces.

On Jan. 9 Wessells summoned Dull Knife and the other chiefs to his headquarters. Dull Knife refused to go, but Wild Hog, Crow, and Left Hand went away with the soldiers. After a few minutes Left Hand came running out with his wrists manacled, soldiers crowding upon him but before he was silenced he shouted so that the people in the barracks would know what had happened.

Wild Hog told Capt. Wessells that not one Cheyenne would go south again, and the captain had ordered him put in irons. In an attempt to escape, Wild Hog tried to kill the soldiers, but they had overcome him.

After a while Wessells came outside the barracks and talked to them through the windows. "Let the women and children out," he ordered, "so they will no longer suffer."

"We'll all die here together sooner than be sent south," they answered

Moonlight On Bayonets

Wessells went away, and then soldiers came and put chains and iron bars over the doors of the barracks. Night came, but moonlight glittered on the steel bayonets of the six soldier guards.

One of the warriors pushed the cold stove aside and lifted a section of planking. Below were five gun barrels, hidden there since the first day. From ornaments and moccasins, they began collecting triggers and hammers and cartridges. Soon they had the rifles and a few pistols back together again.

The young men painted their faces and put on their best clothing, while the women made little stacks of saddles and bundles beneath each window so that everyone could leap out quickly. Then the best marksmen among the warriors took positions at assigned windows, each choosing one of the guards outside as his target.

At 9:45 p.m. the first shots were fired. At the same moment, every window sash burst outward, and the Cheyennes poured from the building. Seizing the rifles of the dead and wounded guards, they ran toward the line of bluffs beyond the bounds of the post. They had about 10 minutes' start on foot before the first mounted troops galloped in pursuit, some riding in their winter underwear.

The warriors quickly formed a defense line while the women and children crossed a creek. Because of their few weapons, the warriors kept firing and falling back. More soldiers were coming all the time, fanning out into an enveloping arc, and they were shooting every Indian that moved across the snow.

More Than Half

In the first hour of fighting, more than half the warriors died, and then the soldiers began overtaking scattered bands of women and children, killing many of them before they could surrender. Among the dead was Dull Knife's daughter.

When morning came, the soldiers herded 65 Cheyenne prisoners, 23 of them wounded, back into Fort Robinson. Most were women and children. Only 38 of those who had escaped were still alive and free; 32 were together, moving north through the hills and pursued by four companies of cavalry and a battery of mountain artillery. Six others were hidden among some rocks only a few miles from the fort. Among the latter was Dull Knife; the others were his wife and surviving son, his daughter-in-law and grandchild, and a young boy named Red Bird.

For several days the cavalrymen followed the 32 Cheyennes, until at last they trapped them near Hat Creek Bluffs in a deep buffalo wallow. Charging to the edge of the wallow, the cavalrymen emptied their carbines into it, without drew, reloaded, and repeated the action until no fire was returned by the Indians. Only nine Cheyennes survived, most of them being women and children.

During the last days of January, traveling only by night, Dull Knife and his party made their way north to Pine Ridge. There they became prisoners on Red Cloud's reservation.

Stir up something new with Dinty Moore. Vegetable Stew.

(He'll pay you 25¢ to try your hand.)

Now Dinty makes a stew that you can invent things with.

Dinty's new Vegetable Stew is a perfect base. Because it contains more than just vegetables. There's also a delicious meat gravy.

So no matter what kind of meat you add, the meal you invent is bound to have a rich, hearty flavor.

Add a pound of browned ground beef, and it's a great way to serve hamburger. (For families who thought they'd had hamburger every way imaginable.)

Or just mix in any leftover meat you have. And the leftovers become a great main dish.

Try Dinty's latest. It's the vegetable stew for meat-eaters.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

Taurus individuals can be stubbornly sensitive about money. These persons carry almost constant apprehension about being in debt. They feel a need to collect, to have plenty for proverbial rainy day.

☆ ☆ ☆

ARIES (March 21-April 19): One who played role in past makes reappearance. Bring forth creative resources. Rid yourself of unnecessary burdens. You will have greater freedom of movement, choice. Streamline methods. Young person makes promise.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on new approach to home, domestic area. Leo individual figures prominently. Brighten surroundings. Make conciliatory gesture to family member. Lay groundwork for solid foundation. Means build for future.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Short journey may be necessary in connection with relative. Add to knowledge by exchanging ideas. Rise above petty differences. Trust intuitive intellect. You receive answers if patient, persistent.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Examine ways of adding to income. Highlight versatility. Heed counsel of Sagittarius individual. Study potential. Social contact could prove meaningful. Sense of humor results in profit. Message becomes increasingly clear.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Lunar cycle high; take initiative. Break barriers of restriction. Clear emotional debris. Stress added independence of thought, action. Romantic involvement appears favorable. By giving, you also receive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Communicate with one confined to home, hospital. Gemini is involved. What at first appears ludicrous could indeed be practical. Lend efforts to group, club project. Results should be gratifying. Move ahead.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be gracious in role of host, hostess. You meet one with key to fulfillment of hopes, wishes. Be receptive, open-minded. Increase circle of friends. Surprise accolade is due. Avoid false modesty. You deserve acclaim.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Professional endeavors are emphasized. Perceive hidden meanings. Control tendency to brood. Distance to goal not as far as you might imagine. Capricorn can show the way. See persons, situations in realistic light.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good lunar aspect coincides with meaningful contacts. You can provide inspiration to Scorpio person. Thoughts turn to far away places; you may now be en route. Added responsibility brings extra regard.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Face up to financial misunderstanding. May involve mate, partner, other close associate. Refuse responsibility for funds not your own. Clear air in connection with money involvement. Aries can aid; ask and receive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Some ideas should be held in abeyance. Permit one close to you to have spotlight. Restraint now results in future gain. Be positive about legal aspects. Marriage, partnership dominate thoughts. Take notes.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on attention to dependents, including pets. If in transit, check accommodations. Don't rely too heavily on promises of others. Do some personal investigating regarding reservations, appointments. You'll be glad.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you attract others to you with their questions, problems. You are drawn to law, medicine and theater. Many claim you possess deep spiritual insight. You are better at helping others than when at aiding yourself. This fact is driven home during August. Recent emotional wound is healing. Know this and be optimistic.

Duis Says No-Fault Auto Insurance Not Answer

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

State Sen. Herbert J. Duis of Gothenburg said Tuesday that no-fault insurance — whereby insurance companies pay for their clients' injuries regardless of guilt — is not the answer to the auto insurance dilemma.

"No-fault insurance just builds on top of the existing structure It starts at the wrong point to improve auto insurance. What we need is to start fresh instead of in the middle of the present structure," he said.

The 55-year-old senator, himself a real estate and insurance broker, said what is needed is to divide policies in two.

"Basically, auto insurance isn't written properly," he said. "We should write two policies, one written on the car and one written on the driver."

The first policy would include comprehensive and collision insurance; the second would cover medical expenses, bodily injury, property damage and earnings loss.

According to Duis, this plan would allow immediate relief as would no-fault, but without limiting the right to sue which some no-fault plans feature.

"It's not utopia," Duis said, "but it's a lot simpler than the no fault plan. I don't know exactly what the insurance companies' reaction would be, but I know the trial lawyers would be more agreeable to it than no-fault."

Premiums Different

Duis said his plan should lower premiums on injuries to others and increase premiums for medical expenses.

The role of the Legislature in this matter would be to put a mandatory minimum on benefits for the policyholder. This would leave the policy-holder free to sue the other party, and it would allow insurance companies to develop premiums to pay losses.

To this end, Duis plans to make his suggestions known to the legislative interim study committee on auto insurance which will make recommendations to the Legislature in January.

"This system fixes responsibility where it belongs while providing immediate compensation," Duis said.

Explosion Kills 5

Sasebo, Japan (UPI) — Five workers were killed and three injured in an explosion on the 55,300-ton oil tanker "Tsugaru Maru" as the ship was undergoing repairs at the shipyard here. Police said fumes built up in an oil tank and were ignited by a worker's blow torch.

Welfare Official Suggests One-Figure ADC Payments

A State Welfare Department official has said Nebraska's payments to some 12,000 Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) families should not be tied to specific budget items such as a $68 monthly rent maximum.

Instead, welfare research and planning chief Richard Nelson says one-figure total budget payments could be made and families could then spend the money as they wish.

Nelson said his department would possibly request comments on the proposal from the regional office of the Health, Education and Welfare Department in Kansas City.

The State Welfare Department has ordered some cuts in ADC payments, and the cuts have touched off a round of controversy.

Nelson made the suggestion at a meeting of the Lancaster Welfare Rights Organization after one ADC mother said some recipients do things such as not use a washing machine in a home in order to receive cash provided for laundromats.

Cut Anticipated In Aid For State Lunchroom Facilities

Between $500,000 and $1.25 million will apparently be cut from federal funds for Nebraska's lunchroom facilities program, according to Allen A. Elliot, director of the food services division of the State Education Department.

The reason Elliot gave for the cutback was the Nixon administration's opposition to the size of the grant.

Lincoln schools should not be affected by the disappearance of funds, since the equipment has already ben purchased.

However, Omaha, Grand Island, Columbus, Ralston and Blair can no longer expect these funds to be available.

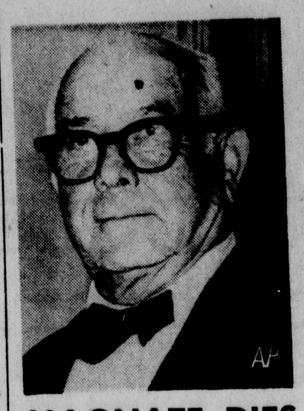
Elliot said the state has no funds to refinance the lunch room equipment program, which was crated to supplement the Child Nutrition Act and the National School Lunch Act.

Although the reduction has not been officially announced, Elliot said it is imminent.

He added that Nebraska's congressmen are trying to persuade the U.S. Department of Agriculture to reconsider the cutback.

Horse Meat Bought

Paris (AP) — Horse meat, a French staple for years, is being imported in increasing quantities. France's horse population has dropped drastically and production can't keep up even though the demand is slackening, the weekly magazine Express reported.



MAGNATE DIES

Spyros P. Skouras, retired chairman of 20th Century Fox film studio died at his home in Rye, N.Y. He was 78.

All-Black City Welcomes Wallace

Hobson City, Ala. (AP) — The mayor of all-black Hobson City put the welcome sign out Tuesday for Gov. George C. Wallace with the expressed hope that the governor can get by with his promised intervention in another school integration dispute.

But a Negro minister said Wallace's attempt to block the pairing of the predominantly black Calhoun County Training School at Hobson City with white schools in nearby Oxford "is going to hurt us."

Despite the governor's disavowal of racial motivation, the Rev. J. L. Stringer said, "Wallace is coming here to perpetuate segregation. I know that. You know that. Everybody knows that."

The governor, accepting an invitation from Mayor Joe Striplin, plans to issue an executive order in Hobson City Wednesday afternoon directing the city school boards here and in Oxford to disregard the pairing plan formulated by a federal court.

The court on Aug. 6 ordered all pupils in the first three grades in both Hobson City and Oxford to attend the Training School here and those in the 4th through 12th grades to attend school in Oxford.

Hobson City, chartered by the state in 1899, is one of the oldest all-Negro communities in the nation.

Wallace, announcing his decision to sign the executive order here, said the issue is not one of segregation or desegregation but the preservation of the autonomy of the city schools.

"The black and white groups are together," in supporting his intervention, the governor said, and he feels it will be "good for race relations."

Cut Anticipated In Aid For State Lunchroom Facilities

Between $500,000 and $1.25 million will apparently be cut from federal funds for Nebraska's lunchroom facilities program, according to Allen A. Elliot, director of the food services division of the State Education Department.

The reason Elliot gave for the cutback was the Nixon administration's opposition to the size of the grant.

Lincoln schools should not be affected by the disappearance of funds, since the equipment has already ben purchased.

However, Omaha, Grand Island, Columbus, Ralston and Blair can no longer expect these funds to be available.

Elliot said the state has no funds to refinance the lunch room equipment program, which was crated to supplement the Child Nutrition Act and the National School Lunch Act.

Although the reduction has not been officially announced, Elliot said it is imminent.

He added that Nebraska's congressmen are trying to persuade the U.S. Department of Agriculture to reconsider the cutback.

Horse Meat Bought

Paris (AP) — Horse meat, a French staple for years, is being imported in increasing quantities. France's horse population has dropped drastically and production can't keep up even though the demand is slackening, the weekly magazine Express reported.

All-Black City Welcomes Wallace

Hobson City, Ala. (AP) — The mayor of all-black Hobson City put the welcome sign out Tuesday for Gov. George C. Wallace with the expressed hope that the governor can get by with his promised intervention in another school integration dispute.

But a Negro minister said Wallace's attempt to block the pairing of the predominantly black Calhoun County Training School at Hobson City with white schools in nearby Oxford "is going to hurt us."

Despite the governor's disavowal of racial motivation, the Rev. J. L. Stringer said, "Wallace is coming here to perpetuate segregation. I know that. You know that. Everybody knows that."

Morning Ceremony

Baskets of white and lavendar gladioli appointed the chancel of St. Patrick's Catholic Church on Saturday morning, Aug. 14, for the marriage of Miss Mary Ann Donaldson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John August Donaldson of Tejuigalpa, Honduras, and Jerome Patrick Breen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip H. Breen of North Platte.

Wearing alike lavendar frocks in the empire mode were Mrs. Richard Hansen of Provo, Utah who served as matron of honor, and bridesmaids Miss Beverly Ann Terrell of New York City, N.Y., and Miss Susan Renee Breen of North Platte.

Dennis Breen served as best man, and groomsmen and ushers included Robert Edis, Dennis Rock, William Breen and David Sprague, all of North Platte.

The bride appeared in a gown of Irish linen, in the ivory tone, and re-embroidered lace. The lace formed an overlay for the fitted bodice which was ornamented with minute buttons from the high, ring collar to the Empire waistline. The lace was repeated to pattern the leg o'mutton sleeves of sheer organza, and in rosettes which bordered the hem of the long, softly gathered skirt. Her lace-bordered veil was held in place with a Camelot cap of jeweled lace, and she carried a cascade bouquet of lavendar and white gladioli.

The bride attended the University of Nebraska where she received a degree in interior decorating.

Mr. Breen also attended the University of Nebraska

Guests Keep The Dull Moments Away

By all of the rules, regulations and calendars summer doesn't really say its farewells until four weeks from next Tuesday, but for all practical reasons summer ends and autumn begins three weeks from Saturday. That is when the University of Oregon comes to town to do battle with the Cornhuskers—

But between now and then Lincoln isn't just devoting its time to thumb-twiddling, and our guest book tells us that there will be no dull moments around for quite some time.

We learned this morning that Dr. and Mrs. Harry Senger and their two sons, Jeffrey and Richard, will be arriving from Wellesley, Mass., early next week for a visit with Mrs. Senger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William I. Aitken, and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. Taylor Greer.

* * *

All ready in town, according to or grapevine, are Mrs. Edward J. Fitzgerald, Jr., (Sue Healey) and her three children including six year-old Anne — sons John, who is four and a half years old, and two year-old Michael, who arrived a few days ago from Ledyard, Conn. The Fitzgerald foursome found the welcome mat ready and waiting at the home of Mrs. Fitzgerald's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Healey.

Of course the visitors, who will be joined here next week by Mr. Fitzgerald, also will be spending some time with Mrs. Fitzgerald's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Healey.

The eastern section of the country seems to be particularly popular as far as our guest list is concerned. We just this moment heard that Mr. and Mrs. Cullen Serr and their two children, Kevin and Allison are spending a week in Lincoln visiting with Mrs. Serr's mother, Mrs. O. V. Calhoun.

MISS CATHERINE SKELLEY

Announcement is made this morning by the Rev. and Mrs. Richard Skelley of O'Neill, of the engagement of their daughter, Catherine, to Gregory Hershberger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hershberger of Milford.

The wedding is planned for Sunday, Dec. 26.

Miss Skelley was graduated from Bryan Memorial Hospital School of Nursing, and currently is careering as a registered nurse at the hospital.

Mr. Hershberger is a senior at the University of Nebraska.

MISS MARY ANN RICHARDS

This morning Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Richards make anouncement of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Mary Ann, to Ron Childers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Childers of Tulsa, Okla.

Sunday, Oct. 10, has been chosen as the wedding date.

Miss Richards is a graduate of Union College and now is careering as a nurse in Denver, Colo.

Mr. Childers also was graduated from Union College and currently is serving with the armed forces in Germany.

THE LINCOLN STAR, WEDNESDAY, AUG. 18

Visiting in Lincoln as a guest of the State Department was Sabah Kushkaki (left), editor of The Daily Caravan in Afghanistan. Mrs. Martin Luschei, a former schoolmate of Mr. Kushkaki's, showed him around.

BY PHYLLIS WOOLLEN

Sabah Kushkaki, publisher of The Daily Caravan newspaper in Afghanistan and a guest of the U.S. State Department on a tour of our country, finds that American youth are seeking radical changes.

"To me, as an outsider," Mr. Kushkaki observed during a stay in Lincoln, "the leaders (of the U.S.) are geared toward winning the war in Southeast Asia. Youth in the country feel neglected, that they cannot trust the leadership, and that they must find a new approach to solving the problems."

The purpose of Mr. Kushkaki's 40-day visit across the country under a State Department grant is to examine journalism teaching and techniques here to update his efforts in Afghanistan.

Lincoln is not new to Mr. Kushkaki, although it has undergone tremendous change, he relates, since his days as an undergraduate student at the University of Nebraska from 1953-57. Following his graduation from the University of Nebraska, Mr. Kushkaki received his M.A. degree in journalism at Syracuse University in New York . . . In 1963, he returned to the states with the King and Queen of Afghanistan in his role as head of the government's news agency.

In addition to publishing and editing The Daily Caravan, Mr. Kushkaki also teaches journalism at Kabul University in Afghanistan. During his stay in the U.S. he will visit professors at universities and colleges across the country.

One of the highlights of Mr. Kushkaki's visit thus far has been an eyewitness blastoff of Apollo 15. As a guest of the State Department, he was invited on a tour of the Cape area the day before the moon trip. "One can only admire and appreciate the hard work of taking man to the moon after seeing the inner working of the gigantic project," he reports.

The Daily Caravan, which was originated three years ago by Mr. Kushkaki, editorially is independent. Mr. Kushkaki is in the process of hopefully converting the paper to a shareholding company.

Commenting on his general impressions during this visit, the Afghanistan editor notes, "I am happy to be in the U.S. after all of these many years. I am happy to see the general consciousness and awareness of the people in the U.S. The problems that are prevailing in this country are solvable, for when a nation is conscious of its problems and willing to work to overcome them, they will be able to solve them."

During his stay in Lincoln, Mr. Kushkaki visited with one of his classmates from the University of Nebraska, Mrs. Martin Luschei of San Luis Obispo, Calif. Mrs. Luschei, daughter of Mrs. Blanche Berry, is publisher of Solo Press and a poet.

A CHILD'S WORLD

BY PHYLLIS WOOLLEN

Editor's note: In the weeks to come we will discuss specific case histories that parents have encountered with the rearing of their children. We will utilize the experience and expertise of the staff members of the Lincoln Child Guidance agency to provide professional consultation, although none of the case histories we present will be from their files since they are kept confidential.

While we hope this column will provide some insight to parents, we by no means prescribe that it be adopted to all situations.

We invite our readers to submit problems that they might be having within their home. No letters will be answered individually, but certain problems as chosen by the author of the column will be discussed with staff members at Child Guidance and incorporated in future columns. Mail letters to: Child World, The Lincoln Star, Lincoln, Neb. 68501.

CASE I

Tommy is nine years old. At his young age he frequently suffers from severe stomach aches and headaches. These maladies seem to have become increasingly worse during the years.

Tommy's parents have been naturally concerned with Tommy's health, but visits to doctors have shown that nothing is physically wrong with the child. At a visit to the last pediatrician, the doctor suggested that perhaps Tommy's problems were emotionally based, rather than physically, and suggested that the family consult the Child Guidance agency.

On the first visit to the agency, one of the staff members sat down with the entire family to discuss the problem. The first step was to pinpoint when Tommy's attacks occurred. This was more difficult than it seemed, for there seemed to be no specific time, and all Tommy knew was that his aches hurt him very much.

In the course of meetings with the staff member, it was discovered that Tommy's father also suffered from stomach maladies, often keeping him home from work. Doctors could not find anything physically wrong that would cause the father's illnes, but Tommy's father thought that possibly there was something wrong genetically and that Tommy suffered from the same thing.

It became clear that Tommy's illnesses were a learned reaction. While his father used ill health to avoid certain situations such as work for conflicts with his wife, Tommy found that he, too, could avoid distatesful tasks if he were ill. In the beginning, his headaches and stomach aches were subconsciously used for just a few situations such as staying home from school, but they eventually became a habitual mechanism that applied to all things he didn't want to do.

The use of devices such as headaches, stomachaches, or eves dizzy and fainting spells to avoid certain situations is not uncommon. If a child is deemed healthy by a physician, then the family might take steps to alleviate the device. The first step would be to make sure the device doesn't work. By giving the child some latitude in his activities, a parent can teach a child that there is no need for devices and that a person can sometimes just cop out.

It also is wise for the family to examine itself and see if another member of the family unconsiously uses a device to avoid unpleasant situations in his life.

In Tommy's case, Tommy was shown why he had stomachaches and headaches, and although his father never admitted to the emotional foundation for his own illnesses, Tommy was put on the road to good health.

MONEY MATTERS

(The Budget—Part II)

President Nixon's surprise announcement on Sunday evening makes this the perfect time to remind you once again about the importance of budgeting.

The price and rent freeze should help to balance your personal budgets — but then the wage angle of the 90-day freeze undoubtedly will take away some added income upon which you may have been counting.

Hopefully, the freeze will bring inflation to a slower pace, if not a standstill, and will help to shape up the economy.

Returning to our personal budgets — a budget, you recall, is a plan for spending income, and should be general and flexible and personalized.

Again, budgeting is financial planning — it is a general plan for organized spending and saving drawn up ahead of time, not a record of expenditures set down after the fact.

When starting a financial plan, however, you have to first keep track of what amount goes where in order to estimate your regular expenditures and then evaluate the budget to see where you can cut down.

The best way to formulate a budget is to gather the whole family around the conference table and have a family council, said Dr. Gary D. Hansen, chairman of the Department of Family Economics and Management of the College of Home Economics at the University of Nebraska.

The first thing to be discussed is the family unit's set of goals — for the near and distant future.

Then you should add up your various financial resources including wages, dividends, and all others.

Thirdly, identify the fixed expenses — rent, car payments, insurance, utilities, and so forth — and seasonal, quarterly or annual expenses such as car licenses, taxes, and back-to-school expenses, as well as tuition.

And then there are the variables such as clothing and food. Try to estimate these flexible expenses and day-to-day living costs as best you can.

Other variables in setting up a budget, according to Dr. Hansen, are the composition of the family — a family of two will have different goals and expenses than a family of six — and certain obligations such as caring for the elderly and higher education for the children.

Also, the budget should reflect individual choices of home environment, dress and appearance, and entertainment.

NEXT WEEK — Family contributions and evaluation.

A "turret topped" tea table is a great eighteenth century rarity This example was made in Boston about 1750-1765. There is room for 14 teacups.
(Museum of Fine Arts Bayou Bend Collection, Houston, Texas)

TERRY KOVEL

Historians of the 21st century will probably debate about the social significance of the barbeque grill and its effect on eating habits. We still wonder about the changes brought by tea in the 18th century. A new drink required new dishes, new furniture and new social customs.

A "tea board" or special table was found in many American colonial homes. These tables had great variety. One very rare 18th century style was scalloped all around the top. It has been claimed that only three exist. Each scallop evidently was a safe place for a tea cup and saucer. The center of the table held the teapot, sugar, and other serving pieces. At tea time, each guest was handed a filled cup of tea. The scalloped tea tables shows the size of some gatherings. There were spaces on the table for 12 to 14 cups.

Q. How old is the brass door knocker?

A. Door knockers were made of iron until the early 18th century. The famous hand knocker is known as Queen Anne's hand. It was made during the 1770s. The Queen's hand had a lace cuff and held a ball that hit the door. Trades people often had knockers that showed their work. There were popular designs such as dolphins, Methuselah's head, and the lion head holding a ring and urns.

Early knockers are usually unpolished on the back. The front which was polished regularly through the years, should show signs of wear. The patterns should be slightly blurred. New knockers are made in the old patterns, but lack the wear and are often lighter in weight.

Q. My paperweight has a complicated picture of a man, snake and the words Amazon Insurance Co. There is a black picture against a white background. It is inside the clear glass and the entire weight looks hand blown. Do you know anything about this type of weight? I have seen others with black line drawings inside that seem to have been made by the same method.

A. On September 5, 1882, William H. Maxwell filed a patent for a new method of making paperweights. A thin plate of clear or colored glass was painted with the proper design using a vitrifiable color. Actually, the design was painted with a material that became glassy when heated. After the design was painted, it was placed in a mold with clear glass. Next, it was fired and the design plate was attached to a lump of clear glass molded in the desired shape. Then, the whole piece was placed on the punty rod and the top was covered with clear molten glass.

The rest of the work on the paperweight was done by blowing and hand work in the same manner as any handmade paperweight. The weights were usually advertisements for stores or factories. They were made by Brown, Maxwell and Co. Ltd. of Rochester, Pa.

Abby:—but Durocher said it last

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Let's set the record straight. Someone asked you who said, "Nice guys finish last," and you replied, "Leo Durocher said it."

Durocher wittingly, or unwittingly lifted this quote from the late Damon Runyon, and it's high time someone made that correction publicly. It is amazing how many news people attribute this quote to Durocher.

M.C.

DEAR M.C.: I am unable to find proof that either Runyon or Durocher said it, but I would appreciate knowing. (Where are you, George Seldes?) In any case, Damon Runyon may have said, "Nice guys finish last," FIRST, but Durocher said it LAST!

DEAR ABBY: Please don't laugh at me, but I am a grown woman and I am absolutely scared to death of mice!

Yesterday a little mouse ran out from under the stove to the refrigerator and I became hysterical, started to scream for help and jumped up on the kitchen table. My two children, ages 7 and 9 also became hysterical and my poor husband had a terrible time quieting us down.

I felt foolish frightening the children that way, but I couldn't help it. My husband was so mad at me he refused to set the trap. How can I overcome this childish fear of mice?

PETRIFIED

DEAR PET: Go to a pet shop and look at the mice for a while. Then BUY (you heard me) a pair. (The white ones are adorable and they make great pets.) Get instructions on how to care for them properly, and keep them in a cage. Soon you and your children will lose your fears of the furry creatures. (P.S. Be sure you get either two males or two females—unless you want to go into the breeding business.)

Bridal Attendants

Naming the members of her bridal party this morning is Miss Margaret Mary Trumble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Trumble.

Miss Donna Trumble and Mrs. John Hess of Salt Lake City, Utah, both sisters of the bride-elect, will serve as maid of honor and matron of honor respectively. The brides-maids will be Miss Angela Buchanan of Washington, D.C., Miss Elizabeth Dolby of Eldon, Mo., and Miss Rita Drackert of Kansas City, Mo.

Brian Buchanan of Washington, D.C., will serve his brother, John Buchanan, as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers will be Charles Kugan, Michael Paterni, John Swagart and Thomas Buchanan, all of Washington, D.C.; Fred Trumble of Red Oak, Iowa, and Dennis Trumble.

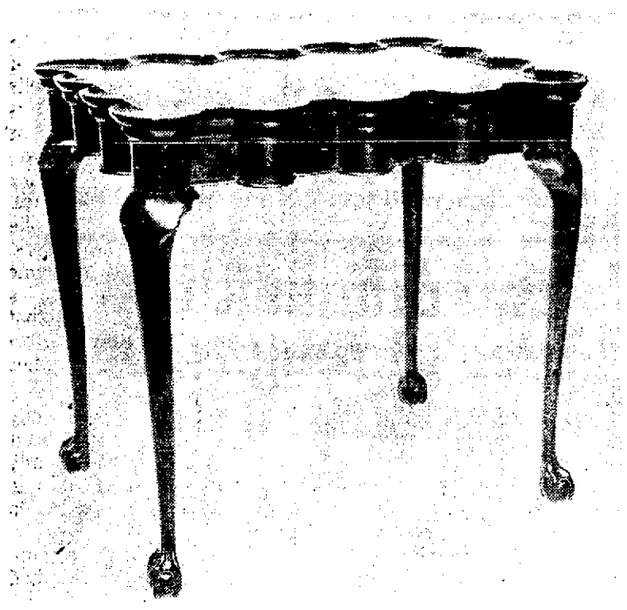
Know Your Antiques



A "turret topped" tea table is a great eighteenth century rarity This example was made in Boston about 1750-1765. There is room for 14 teacups.
(Museum of Fine Arts Bayou Bend Collection, Houston, Texas)

TERRY KOVEL

Historians of the 21st century will probably debate about the social significance of the barbeque grill and its effect on eating habits. We still wonder about the changes brought by tea in the 18th century. A new drink required new dishes, new furniture and new social customs.

A "tea board" or special table was found in many American colonial homes. These tables had great variety. One very rare 18th century style was scalloped all around the top. It has been claimed that only three exist. Each scallop evidently was a safe place for a tea cup and saucer. The center of the table held the teapot, sugar, and other serving pieces. At tea time, each guest was handed a filled cup of tea. The scalloped tea tables shows the size of some gatherings. There were spaces on the table for 12 to 14 cups.

Q. How old is the brass door knocker?

A. Door knockers were made of iron until the early 18th century. The famous hand knocker is known as Queen Anne's hand. It was made during the 1770s. The Queen's hand had a lace cuff and held a ball that hit the door. Trades people often had knockers that showed their work. There were popular designs such as dolphins, Methuselah's head, and the lion head holding a ring and urns.

Early knockers are usually unpolished on the back. The front which was polished regularly through the years, should show signs of wear. The patterns should be slightly blurred. New knockers are made in the old patterns, but lack the wear and are often lighter in weight.

Q. My paperweight has a complicated picture of a man, snake and the words Amazon Insurance Co. There is a black picture against a white background. It is inside the clear glass and the entire weight looks hand blown. Do you know anything about this type of weight? I have seen others with black line drawings inside that seem to have been made by the same method.

A. On September 5, 1882, William H. Maxwell filed a patent for a new method of making paperweights. A thin plate of clear or colored glass was painted with the proper design using a vitrifiable color. Actually, the design was painted with a material that became glassy when heated. After the design was painted, it was placed in a mold with clear glass. Next, it was fired and the design plate was attached to a lump of clear glass molded in the desired shape. Then, the whole piece was placed on the punty rod and the top was covered with clear molten glass.

The rest of the work on the paperweight was done by blowing and hand work in the same manner as any handmade paperweight. The weights were usually advertisements for stores or factories. They were made by Brown, Maxwell and Co. Ltd. of Rochester, Pa.

September Bride-Elect Is Honored

That 'badluck' day — Friday, the 13th, was a very happy day for numerous persons — There were brides who chose it for their wedding day, and there were brides-to-be who were off hither and yon to parties in their honor.

One of those brides-elect was Miss Lou Ann Hilt whose marriage to Dean Meyer will be solemnized on Saturday, Sept. 18.

On Friday evening, Aug. 13, Miss Hilt was the incentvie for an informal party and shower for which Mrs. Duard Henderson and Mrs. Herman Hahn were hostesses at the home of Mrs. Hahn.

Opening lead — nine of diamonds.

Let's say you're in six diamonds and West leads a trump. You win with the ten and cash the ace, on which both opponents follow suit. How would you play the hand from this point on?

If you were to extract the only remaining trump you would, in effect, be basing the success or failure of the slam on a 3-3 division in hearts. In the actual case you would go down, for you would eventually lose both a spade and a heart.

A distinctly better method of play (which would fail in the actual case) would be to stop drawing trumps after two rounds and lead the K-Q and another heart.

This method of play would succeed if it developed that East had only a doubleton heart, whether or not he had the missing trump. If he discarded, you could ruff a heart in dummy. If he ruffed, you would later be able to discard a spade on the heart ace and then ruff a spade.

However, the third and best way of playing the hand is to lead a club to the ace at trick three, ruff a club, play a heart to the queen, ruff another club, play a heart to the king and ruff dummy's last club with your last trump.

Now you enter dummy with a spade, draw West's last trump with the jack as you discard a spade, then cash your two remaining aces to bring you to twelve tricks. The only loser, with this method of play, is a heart. In effect, you score six trump tricks, instead of five, and this makes the big difference in the outcome.

Lincoln Residents Observe A Very Special Day

For Mr. and Mrs. Homer F. Reichardt, who reside with their daughter, Miss Iade Mae Reichardt at 2245 So. 52nd St., today isn't just another Wednesday — it's their 75th wedding anniversary.

Mr. Reichardt, who is 97 years old, is a native of Bureau County, Illinois, but Mrs. Reichardt, 96, is a dyed in the wool Nebraskan. Her birthplace was Seward County, and it was in Seward County that the couple was married on Aug. 18, 1896.

Almost all of their lives have been spent in Nebraska. There was one brief period away from the state — a move to Kansas. But back to Nebraska they came and until 1946 when Mr. Reichardt decided to take life a little easier, he was a farmer. Most of the farming was done about three miles north of Aurora, and it was to Aurora they moved to really enjoy life.

Mr. and Mrs. Reichardt resided in Aurora until five years ago when ill health brought them to Lincoln.

Mr. and Mrs. Reichardt have four daughters, Mrs. Cecil R. Carnes of Aurora; Mrs. D. B. Pearson of Thedford — both of whom, by the way, have celebrated their 50th wedding anniversaries; Mrs. Glen Gundy of Washington, Ill., and Miss Ida Mae Reichardt whom we already have mentioned as residing in Lincoln. The one Reichardt son, Russel Reichardt, resides in Aurora.

Their family also includes 14 grandchildren, 35 great-grandchildren, and seven great-great-grandchildren.

Morton Restores All Powers Of Chief Of Indian Affairs

©The New York Times

Washington — The Department of the Interior disclosed Tuesday that Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton had restored full power to the chief of the Bureau of Indan Affairs.

Morton amended his original order that had diluted the power of the Indian commissioner, Louis R. Bruce, and placed more authority in the hands of the new deputy commissioner, John O. Crow.

Morton is currently on a one-month tour of department projects in the West.

Bruce and Crow agreed, in a wide-ranging news conference on Indian problems, that Bruce was "still making all major policy decisions."

They sought to allay fears voiced publicly by young activists and reform-minded Indians in the bureau that the agency was being returned to "old line bureaucrats" and negating efforts to gain for Indians more voice in their own affairs.

Bruce denied that an effort was being made to silence the young Indians by the appointment of Crow and by a realignment of agency personnel.

Crow, he said, had met with activists and told them that their support and ideas were needed "all the way down the line."

"There is no question how I feel," Bruce said. "I'm trying to make some changes to help Indians. They want to be heard. They want more influence, more Indians in the bureau. I think we're filling those needs."

Of about 100 top jobs in the bureau, about 50 were held by Indians covering policy-making areas, Crow estimated. At the same time, Bruce said, there was some difficulty in getting qualified Indians who could meet civil service regulations for major posts. "We've had to rule out some," he said.

In his order of July 23 setting forth the authority of Crow as deputy commissioner, Morton conferred on him all the power held by the commissioner. In addition, he granted Crow the sole power to re-delegate authority, including that reserved for Bruce.

Crow confirmed that economic development contracts with Indian tribes were under the scrutiny of bureau auditors and the general accounting office. Some of these contracts, designed to enable Indian tribes to manage their own affairs, from real estate to schools, were promoted by activist Indians. The review stemmed from complaints by members of Congress that recent contracts were loosely drawn and may have violated federal procurement laws. "We have to define what we're trying to obtain by these contracts," Crow said.

There is no intention of "firing" William H. Veeder, a 60-year-old Indian water rights expert because he refused a transfer to Arizona. "We'll have to talk to him some more," Crow said in reply to questions about having engineered Veeder's transfer in an effort to silence his criticism that the Indians were being destroyed through failure of the government to protect Indian land and water rights.

Leahy Requests Rendering Plant Delay Building

Omaha (AP)—Mayor Eugene Leahy has asked National By-Products to delay for four months an application for a permit to construct a plant in the South Omaha Industrial Park.

Many residents have expressed opposition to the facility and some City Council members have said they are against construction of the rendering plant.

Mayor Leahy said he would form a citizens' committee to investigate ramifications of the rendering plant. It will consist of residents of the area, businessmen and civic leaders.

Bernard Finch Granted Parole In California

Sacramento, Calif. (UPI) — Dr. Bernard Finch, osteopath and surgeon sentenced to life in prison for the murder of his wife during a torrid love affair with his red-haired nurse in 1959, was ordered paroled Tuesday.

The California Adult Authority ruled Finch's parole would be effective Dec. 6. Twice previously denied parole, Finch, 53, currently is in the California Institution for Men at Chino. He did not appear at Tuesday's hearing.

Finch and Carole Tregoff, then a 22-year-old beauty who was both his mistress and a nurse at his hospital in West Covina, Calif., were convicted in three sensational trials, the last in 1961, of fatally shooting Barbara Jean Finch outside the Finch home July 18, 1959.

Both were sentenced to life imprisonment. Miss Tregoff was paroled May 1, 1969, after serving eight years and now works as a $125-a-week medical records clerk under an assumed name at Covina, Calif., which adjoins the town where the Finch hospital was located.

The first two trials of Finch and his red-haired paramour ended in hung juries. In the third trial, on March 27, 1961, they were both convicted of murder and both sentenced to life.

League Of Young Voters Sets Registration 'Targets'

The Nebraska League of Young Voters has decided to concentrate its voter registration drive among low income, minority and working youth and college, technical school and high school students.

Those will be the "targets for prime emphasis," the league announced Tuesday.

At its first meeting earlier this month, the league's board of directors authorized selection of a central staff to conduct day-to-day operations of the organization.

But no officer or staff member will be permitted to become involved in any way with the active campaign of any candidate for public office.

The board accepted the resignation of Dave Holst as temporary co-chairman.

Holst left so he could campaign for Democratic presidential aspirant Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana.

Hollywood (UPI) — Ann Noland will play a hippie in "Dirty Harry" which stars Clint Eastwood at Warner Bros.

Two Men Hurt In Plane Accident

Central City (AP) — Two men were reported in satisfactory condition at a Central City hospital Tuesday after their light plane nosed over after landing at the airport here.

They were identified as James Wheeler, 43, of Lexington, and John Fiala, 35, of Grand Island. The plane was registered to the Wheeler Farm Supply Co. of Grand Island.

Sheriff Dan Schneiderheinz said the small plane apparently nosed over after landing on sod at the edge of the runway late Monday.

Morton Restores All Powers Of Chief Of Indian Affairs

The New York Times

Washington — The Department of the Interior disclosed Tuesday that Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton had restored full power to the chief of the Bureau of Indan Affairs.

Morton amended his original order that had diluted the power of the Indian commissioner, Louis R. Bruce, and placed more authority in the hands of the new deputy commissioner, John O. Crow.

Morton is currently on a one-month tour of department projects in the West.

Bruce and Crow agreed, in a wide-ranging news conference on Indian problems, that Bruce was "still making all major policy decisions."

They sought to allay fears voiced publicly by young activists and reform-minded Indians in the bureau that the agency was being returned to "old line bureaucrats" and negating efforts to gain for Indians more voice in their own affairs.

Bruce denied that an effort was being made to silence the young Indians by the appointment of Crow and by a realignment of agency personnel.

Crow, he said, had met with activists and told them that their support and ideas were needed "all the way down the line."

"There is no question how I feel," Bruce said. "I'm trying to make some changes to help Indians. They want to be heard. They want more influence, more Indians in the bureau. I think we're filling those needs."

Of about 100 top jobs in the bureau, about 50 were held by Indians covering policy-making areas, Crow estimated. At the same time, Bruce said, there was some difficulty in getting qualified Indians who could meet civil service regulations for major posts. "We've had to rule out some," he said.

In his order of July 23 setting forth the authority of Crow as deputy commissioner, Morton conferred on him all the power held by the commissioner. In addition, he granted Crow the sole power to re-delegate authority, including that reserved for Bruce.

Crow confirmed that economic development contracts with Indian tribes were under the scrutiny of bureau auditors and the general accounting office. Some of these contracts, designed to enable Indian tribes to manage their own affairs, from real estate to schools, were promoted by activist Indians. The review stemmed from complaints by members of Congress that recent contracts were loosely drawn and may have violated federal procurement laws. "We have to define what we're trying to obtain by these contracts," Crow said.

There is no intention of "firing" William H. Veeder, a 60-year-old Indian water rights expert because he refused a transfer to Arizona. "We'll have to talk to him some more," Crow said in reply to questions about having engineered Veeder's transfer in an effort to silence his criticism that the Indians were being destroyed through failure of the government to protect Indian land and water rights.

Leahy Requests Rendering Plant Delay Building

Omaha (AP)—Mayor Eugene Leahy has asked National By-Products to delay for four months an application for a permit to construct a plant in the South Omaha Industrial Park.

Many residents have expressed opposition to the facility and some City Council members have said they are against construction of the rendering plant.

Mayor Leahy said he would form a citizens' committee to investigate ramifications of the rendering plant. It will consist of residents of the area, businessmen and civic leaders.

SMALLER THAN USUAL?

Rudolph Fencil of 2400 No. Main says his tomatoes, grown from seed obtained in Germany by a friend several years ago, are smaller than usual this year because it has been so dry. The largest one weighs three pounds and was measured at more than 22 inches around. A retired American Stores employe, Fencil has been an ardent gardener for more than 40 years. He saves his seed from year, uses no artificial fertilizer and waters regularly. (Star Photo)

Bernard Finch Granted Parole In California

Sacramento, Calif. (UPI) — Dr. Bernard Finch, osteopath and surgeon sentenced to life in prison for the murder of his wife during a torrid love affair with his red-haired nurse in 1959, was ordered paroled Tuesday.

The California Adult Authority ruled Finch's parole would be effective Dec. 6. Twice previously denied parole, Finch, 53, currently is in the California Institution for Men at Chino. He did not appear at Tuesday's hearing.

Finch and Carole Tregoff, then a 22-year-old beauty who was both his mistress and a nurse at his hospital in West Covina, Calif., were convicted in three sensational trials, the last in 1961, of fatally shooting Barbara Jean Finch outside the Finch home July 18, 1959.

Both were sentenced to life imprisonment. Miss Tregoff was paroled May 1, 1969, after serving eight years and now works as a $125-a-week medical records clerk under an assumed name at Covina, Calif., which adjoins the town where the Finch hospital was located.

The first two trials of Finch and his red-haired paramour ended in hung juries. In the third trial, on March 27, 1961, they were both convicted of murder and both sentenced to life.

League Of Young Voters Sets Registration 'Targets'

The Nebraska League of Young Voters has decided to concentrate its voter registration drive among low income, minority and working youth and college, technical school and high school students.

Those will be the "targets for prime emphasis," the league announced Tuesday.

At its first meeting earlier this month, the league's board of directors authorized selection of a central staff to conduct day-to-day operations of the organization.

But no officer or staff member will be permitted to become involved in any way with the active campaign of any candidate for public office.

The board accepted the resignation of Dave Holst as temporary co-chairman.

Holst left so he could campaign for Democratic presidential aspirant Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana.

Hippie Role Cast

Hollywood (UPI) — Ann Noland will play a hippie in "Dirty Harry" which stars Clint Eastwood at Warner Bros.

Two Men Hurt In Plane Accident

Central City (AP) — Two men were reported in satisfactory condition at a Central City hospital Tuesday after their light plane nosed over after landing at the airport here.

They were identified as James Wheeler, 43, of Lexington, and John Fiala, 35, of Grand Island. The plane was registered to the Wheeler Farm Supply Co. of Grand Island.

Sheriff Dan Schneiderheinz said the small plane apparently nosed over after landing on sod at the edge of the runway late Monday.

Riders, Mounts Impress Judge At County Fair

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Judges continued to evaluate the merits of horses, open class beef cattle and hundreds of handicraft items ranging from paintings to 20 flea powder electric motors at the Lancaster County Fair Tuesday.

Seemingly endless numbers of well-mounted, attractively uniformed 4-H riders rode around and around the ring in the big arena at the State Fairgrounds as the judges placed them.

"I have never seen so many good horses and so many excellent riders at a county fair and the real sportsmanship of the competitors has been outstanding," said Mick Helberg, Hayes County agent from Hayes Center.

Purple Quality

Helberg commented several times during the show that he was putting horses in the blue group that would win a purple ribbon at other fairs.

The demonstrations of how to wash and set up lambs by young club members drew good crowds. The highlight of the morning show in the 4-H arena was the dog show with even larger crowds at the horse show in the main fair arena.

Some 1,800 4-H members plus a goodly number of adult open class exhibitors are entered in the fair. Many of them entered several items.

Many of the club members are inner city youngsters far removed from the traditional calf and lamb members. Horse members are often from city clubs who somehow manage to find a place to keep a horse in or near the city.

Uniformly Attired

Exhibitors are uniformly attired in white shirts, blue jeans and Western hats with good solid leather boots.

"We don't want them showing livestock in tennis shoes or barefoot. It is too easy to get stepped on," explains Lancaster County Agent Cyril Bish.

The exhibits will remain open to the public until 9 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday. Exhibitors may pick up their exhibits Friday morning.

Wednesday's schedule includes sheep and swine judging starting at 8 a.m. and a dairy show starting at noon.

Clothing, home living, health and safety demonstrations will be presented starting at 8:30 a.m., continuing until 4:30 p.m.

The beef cattle will be judged Thursday and the final event will be a parade of purple winners with the presentation of trophies and awards. Finals of the judging contests will also be a part of the Thursday evening program.

Society Honors Three Lincolnites

Three Lincoln men were honored at the 26th annual meeting of the Soil Conservation Society of America in Columbus, Ohio.

Oliver J. Scherer, a geologist with the Department of Agriculture, received a commendation award "for dedicated service in soil and water conservation."

Ray C. Kubie was named a fellow of the SCSA. Kubie is an assistant area conservationist for the Department of Agriculture in Lincoln.

The third Lincoln man cited was Felix Summers, an illustrator for the Soil Conservation Service. Summers was cited "for contributions to the society in the form of artwork for special publications and the society's magazine."

Sherman's Show Set

Hollywood (UPI) — The new Bobby Sherman comedy series scheduled for next season will be titled "Getting Together."

Colin Wins Support For One Of Three Motions At Meeting

Lancaster County Commissioner Robert Colin Sr. found support Tuesday from the other two commissioners for only one of the three motions he made at the regular county board meeting.

His motion that all county departments use standard requisition and purchase order forms was approved with the amendment that a supplier also could attach his own form.

But two other Colin motions, one dealing with two-inch letters marking county-owned vehicles and the other calling for new bidding and purchasing procedures, were challenged by Commissioners William Grossman and Kenneth Bourne.

2-Inch Letters

Colin said departments should be reminded to have their vehicles marked "Lancaster County" with two-inch letters because many are not complying with a previous, similar decision.

Bourne, however, said county unmarked vehicles were being marked Tuesday and Grossman said he never agreed the lettering should be two inches high.

"I think you're making a big issue out of nothing," Grossman told Colin. Grossman said a formal letter is not needed to remind departments to mark vehicles.

Colin's motion calling for new purchasing practices said the county should advertise for bids on purchases and some services amounting to more than $5,000, or acquire supplier lists for purchases between $100-$5,000.

'Antiquated'

Present county purchasing procedures are as "antiquated as the horse and buggy," Colin said. He remarked that securing bids by telephone "is obsolete and not fair to anybody."

Grossman agreed that the use of supplier lists probably would be a good idea and save time, but he said he didn't agree that bids should be sought for all supplies costing more than a certain price.

Grossman also said he had considered employing a purchasing agent, but gave up the idea because it was too expensive and there was a possibility the county would contract with the city for purchasing supplies.

Example Cited

Colin used County Engineer Walter Hoppe's purchase of road graders pursuant to a long-standing procedure of going to a single Lincoln supplier as an example of poor purchasing policy.

Colin said the grader purchase was never discussed with him.

"That's a bald-faced lie," said Grossman. "What are you trying to do, mislead us? The order was brought to you, we consulted you, we talked about the price with you, everything was discussed with you."

Colin said the only discussion occurred when County Atty. Paul Douglas was called in to read a statute on procedures required for approving the road grader purchase. Colin said the only person he talked with was the supplier, who asked if he would "go along" with the purchase.

"I said I would not, and Bourne told me 'it only takes two to make a purchase,'" said Colin.

Judge Dismisses Suit Demanding Police Damages

Federal District Judge Warren K. Urbom has dismissed a suit charging the Lincoln Police Department with false arrest and malicious prosecution.

Urbom ruled, according to court records Tuesday, that a municipal corporation is not a "person" within the meaning of the federal civil rights act, and thus not a proper party defendant.

The suit was brought by Cecil L. Smith of Lincoln and asked $180,000 damages and the purging of his arrest from official records.

Smith, who was arrested and arraigned on charges of sodomy, assault with intent to commit sodomy and armed robbery, was imprisoned for 24 days in lieu of an $8,000 bond before the charges were dismissed.

Bankers Wait For Official Guidance

©The New York Times

London — Bankers, politicians and tourists alike went through another day of troubled uncertainty Tuesday.

President Nixon's open invitation to other countries to raise the value of their currencies in relation to the dollar still received no response, as banks waited for official guidance.

Cabinet meetings were called for Wednesday in France, West Germany, Italy and Switzerland. The Common Market scheduled what should be an extremely important meeting of its council of ministers in Brussels Thursday.

The British government continued to press for an early international conference of monetary officials to stabilize the situation. But in Paris the American Under Secretary of the Treasury, Paul Volcker, said "I anticipate no large conference."

American tourists in London found their dollars effectively devalued by 5% Tuesday. American Express finally gave way to the pressure in mid-morning. Instead of the official rate of $2.40 to the pound, holders of travelers cheques or dollar notes had to pay $2.52.

But that tourist rate need not have anything to do with the dollar values that may emerge when the present turmoil subsides. Banks and American Express were simply changing small dollar amounts as an accommodation for stranded Americans.

The outlook for exchange rates remains extremely confused, and financial officials are studying the many alternatives.

Various countries might decide individually to let their currencies float against the dollar in the market place. That would lead to many different changes — the mark up by so much in dollar terms, the franc something else, and so on.

Or, the six Common Market countries could decide to keep the relationships among their currencies fixed and float against the dollar as a unit. Or there could be the attempt at agreed international revaluations, the solution Britain evidently favors.

One financial expert said Tuesday night that "the experts are as bewildered as anyone. Its like going into a strange room in the dark. You don't know where the lights are or what will happen when they go on."

The main Foreign Exchange Market, in London, remained closed Tuesday.

The Zurich market opened, but even its astute dealers seemed at a loss to know what to do in the absence of official guidance. The dollar fell only slightly there from its level of last Friday.

The gold market was allowed to open briefly again in London but showed little change, with gold sticking near Friday's figure of $43.

In Common Market circles, stress is being put on the need for a "European" stand — one agreed by The Six. One man put it that "this is the moment of truth: if we cannot agree now, when can we?"

Bitterly Opposed

The French were bitterly opposed to the floating of the mark and are likely to continue resisting any idea of a joint float by market currencies. The Germans, on the other hand, would not want to peg the mark at a level so low that it would entice the money men again and start another influx of dollars into Germany.

The Germans and the Dutch, whose guilder has also been floating, are especially angry at the 10% import surcharge imposed by Nixon. With their currency values up on the float, they argue, they face effective discrimination of 18 and 15%, respectively, in exports to the U.S.

The British, for their part, would like to coordinate their moves with The Six. They want to look "European" rather than tied to the Americans as Britain approaches entry into the Common Market.

But the British feel strongly that, in any general rearrangement of exchange rates, the pound should go up very little in relation to the dollar — and certainly not as much as the common market currencies.

The British balance of payments is strong now, but the expectation is that market entry will impose a heavy drain. Officials want to keep the pound relatively low in value to make British exports highly competitive.

OEP Issues Partial List Of Freeze Guidelines

Washington (AP) — The Office of Emergency Preparedness issued Tuesday a partial list of official answers to questions it has received on President Nixon's executive order calling for a wage, price and rent freeze.

The OEP said the following answers were approved by the Cost of Living Council established by Nixon Sunday night when he ordered the price-wage freeze.

Q. Are apartment rents included in the freeze?

A. Yes.

Q. Are prices of commodities, such as used cars, antiques, and resales of housing included in the freeze?

A. Yes.

Q. Are fees for professional services such as doctors and lawyers included?

A. Yes. No increases in rates or fees for particular services are permitted during the freeze.

Q. How does the freeze affect people who work on commission or piece rate?

A. The commission rate or piece rate cannot be increased over that existing in the base period.

Q. Will the wage-price freeze apply to insurance rates?

A. Yes.

Q. Are rates charged by common carriers and public utilities included in the freeze?

A. Yes.

Q. Are wholesale and retail prices included in the freeze?

A. Yes.

Q. Are stock and bond prices and interest rates included in the freeze?

A. No.

Q. Are price increases that have already been announced to take effect in the future subject to the freeze?

A. Yes, all price increases must be controlled.

Q. Are deferred wage or salary increases which have been negotiated to take effect in the future permitted by the freeze?

A. No.

Q. Are future cost-of-living increases built into wage contracts or provided by management exempt?

A. No. There will be no cost-of-living increases during the 90-day freeze.

Q. Are increases in pensions permitted to take effect?

A. Yes, these are not payments for services rendered.

Q. Are previously announced increased tuition rates for the 1971-72 school year permitted by the freeze?

A. Yes. These are considered transaction prices, since commitments have been made and there are a number of cases where payments have been made.

Q. If farm prices of "raw agricultural products" are exempt, does this exemption of raw products follow through to retail?

A. Yes.

Q. At what point do controls apply to agricultural products?

A. At the point of initial processing.

Q. Are state and local tax rates frozen during this period?

A. No.

Q. In cases where surcharges or other sales or excise taxes have been increased, is the ceiling for the price paid by the customer including these taxes raised by a like amount?

A. Yes. The price the customer pays is equal to the base, which remains unchanged during the ceiling, plus these taxes.

Q. Are wage increases under apprenticeship contracts approved by the Department of Labor frozen?

A. Such increases may be permitted only in accordance with the terms of the apprenticeship agreement up to and including the top step of the agreement. Increases beyond that step are prohibited under the freeze.

Q. How will rent ceiling be determined for units not previously rented before freeze date?

A. Standard should be general prevailing rents for comparable units in the immediate area.

Q. How do you price new products?

A. Use the price of the most nearly comparable product sold by your closest comparable competitor.

Q. How will wages and salaries be determined for new jobs?

A. Scales will be determined on the basis of comparable jobs within the affected business or firm. If no comparability exists within such entities, such scales will be determined on the basis of comparable jobs in nearby firms.

Q. Should records be maintained for other than the specified base period if other period is used to establish prices?

A. The order is interpreted to require this.

Q. How does one apply for relief under the current authority?

A. Orders will be issued shortly by OEP outlining procedures to be followed at the regional service and compliance centers.

Q. What should an individual be advised to do if he alleges that he has been overcharged?

A. Regional Service and Compliance Centers will be responsible for receiving and processing these complaints.

Q. Will any action be taken to investigate the charge. If so, by whom?

A. Yes, by OEP.

Q. Can an individual institute an action to recover an overcharge?

A. Not under the executive order.

Q. Should inquirers be informed that a freeze order will be issued by the council?

A. The executive order is the freeze order. Supplemental orders under the policy guidance of the Cost of Living Council will be issued by OEP.

Q. What action should the rate-making agencies take with respect to suspension, rejection or general orders relating to tariffs which would otherwise increase rates including retroactive or proposed?

A. None.

Ford Accepts Price Freeze

Detroit (AP) — Ford Motor Co., dropping plans to seek exemptions on some models from President Nixon's wage and price freeze, announced Tuesday an across-the-board rollback of 1972 prices to 1971 levels.

The decision was announced by Ford president Lee A. Iacocca.

A Ford spokesman declined to give specific reason for the change, saying only, "We've been looking at the situation for the past 48 hours and decided to go across the board."

Earlier in the day, John Naughton, vice president and general manager of Ford Division, told newsmen at the firm's 1972 model preview that Ford would seek exemptions for some completely new 1972 models and clarification of government policy on Ford's partially foreign built minicar, Pinto.

He said Ford had made a "very heavy expenditure" in extensively revising some models particularly Torino, Thunderbird, Continental Mark IV and Comet.

Major components of the Pinto, particularly the engines and transmissions, are foreign-built and possibly subject to the 10% important surtax ordered by President Nixon Sunday.

General Motors Corp., which has put its new cars on sale at 1972 prices prior to the official Sept. 23 introduction date, announced Monday that it was rolling all prices back to 1971 levels at least for the 90-day freeze period. Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Corp. had not announced 1972 prices when the freeze was ordered.

Work-Study Planned

New York (UPI) —A pilot program introducing junior high school students to the realities of the working world as an inducement to continue their education is being prepared by Eastern Washington State College for the Pacific Northwestern Bell Telephone Co.

OEP Office Is Opened In Kansas City

Kansas City (AP) — The Office of Emergency Preparedness established an office in Kansas City Tuesday to oversee President Nixon's wage and price control program in Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska.

Federal officials said a news conference to discuss effects on the area of the wage-price freeze would be held Wednesday at 2 p.m. in the temporary OEP office at the old Federal Building, 911 Walnut, Kansas City.

Francis X. Tobin, regional director from OEP's Washington staff, arrived in Kansas City Tuesday to take charge of the new office, which a Department of Health, Education and Welfare spokesman said would have about a dozen employes borrowed from other federal agencies.

In a news release, Tobin said the office would be involved with two concerns immediately: the 90-day freeze on prices and wages called for by the President, and "a second stage of price-wage stabilization in which transition is accomplished from the temporary freeze to the restoration of free markets without inflation."

Details of that second stage will be worked out by the cost of living council, the release said.

Enrichment Offered

Towson, Md. (UPI) —Towson State College's "college in escrow" program provides outstanding high school seniors with the opportunity to enrich their backgrounds with courses not offered at the high school level. Students admitted to the program with a B or better average can earn up to 12 credits in Towson's evening division.

4 Cuban Athletes Ask For Asylum

Bogota, Colombia (UPI) — All four Cubans who defected from that country's team at the VI Pan American Games in Cali have asked for political asylum in Panama, it was reported Tuesday.

The Panamanian embassy in Bogota said Jose Diaz Hernandez, a fencer, and his girl friend, Zulma Bregado, a gymnast, showed up in Bogota after hiding out in a city on Colombia's north coast after defecting from the Cuban team.

Two other Cuban defectors, Juan Lopez Diaz and Luis Viera Hernandez, trainers, left Bogota for Panama Monday, the embassy said.

Riders, Mounts Impress Judge At County Fair

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Judges continued to evaluate the merits of horses, open class beef cattle and hundreds of handicraft items ranging from paintings to 20 flea powder electric motors at the Lancaster County Fair Tuesday.

Seemingly endless numbers of well-mounted, attractively uniformed 4-H riders rode around and around the ring in the big arena at the State Fairgrounds as the judges placed them.

"I have never seen so many good horses and so many excellent riders at a county fair and the real sportsmanship of the competitors has been outstanding," said Mick Helberg, Hayes County agent from Hayes Center.

Purple Quality

Helberg commented several times during the show that he was putting horses in the blue group that would win a purple ribbon at other fairs.

The demonstrations of how to wash and set up lambs by young club members drew good crowds. The highlight of the morning show in the 4-H arena was the dog show with even larger crowds at the horse show in the main fair arena.

Some 1,800 4-H members plus a goodly number of adult open class exhibitors are entered in the fair. Many of the club members are inner city youngsters far removed from the traditional calf and lamb members. Horse members are often from city clubs who somehow manage to find a place to keep a horse in or near the city.

Uniformly Attired

Exhibitors are uniformly attired in white shirts, blue jeans and Western hats with good solid leather boots.

"We don't want them showing livestock in tennis shoes or barefoot. It is too easy to get stepped on," explains Lancaster County Agent Cyril Bish.

The exhibits will remain open to the public until 9 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday. Exhibitors may pick up their exhibits Friday morning.

Wednesday's schedule includes sheep and swine judging starting at 8 a.m. and a dairy show starting at noon.

Clothing, home living, health and safety demonstrations will be presented starting at 8:30 a.m., continuing until 4:30 p.m.

The beef cattle will be judged Thursday and the final event will be a parade of purple winners with the presentation of trophies and awards. Finals of the judging contests will also be a part of the Thursday evening program.

Society Honors Three Lincolnites

Three Lincoln men were honored at the 26th annual meeting of the Soil Conservation Society of America in Columbus, Ohio.

Oliver J. Scherer, a geologist with the Department of Agriculture, received a commendation award "for dedicated service in soil and water conservation."

Ray C. Kubie was named a fellow of the SCSA. Kubie is an assistant area conservationist for the Department of Agriculture in Lincoln.

The third Lincoln man cited was Felix Summers, an illustrator for the Soil Conservation Service. Summers was cited "for contributions to the society in the form of artwork for special publications and the society's magazine."

Colin Wins Support For One Of Three Motions At Meeting

Lancaster County Commissioner Robert Colin Sr found support Tuesday from the other two commissioners for only one of the three motions he made at the regular county board meeting

His motion that all county departments use standard requisition and purchase order forms was approved with the amendment that a supplier also could attach his own form.

But two other Colin motions one dealing with two-inch letters marking county-owned vehicles and the other calling for new bidding and purchasing procedures, were challenged by Commissioners William Grossman and Kenneth Bourne.

2-Inch Letters

Colin said departments should be reminded to have their vehicles marked "Lancaster County" with two-inch letters because many are not complying with a previous, similar decision.

Bourne, however, said county unmarked vehicles were being marked Tuesday and Grossman said he never agreed the lettering should be two inches high.

"I think you're making a big issue out of nothing," Grossman told Colin Grossman said a formal letter is not needed to remind departments to mark vehicles

Colin's motion calling for new purchasing practices said the county should advertise for bids on purchases and some services amounting to more than $5 000, or acquire supplier lists for purchases between $100-$5.000

'Antiquated'

Present county purchasing procedures are as 'antiquated as the horse and buggy," Colin said He remarked that securing bids by telephone "is obsolete and not fair to anybody"

Grossman agreed that the use of supplier lists probably would be a good idea and save time, but he said he didn't agree that bids should be sought for all supplies costing more than a certain price.

Grossman also said he had considered employing a purchasing agent, but gave up the idea because it was too expensive and there was a possibility the county would contract with the city for purchasing supplies

Example Cited

Colin used County Engineer Walter Hoppe's purchase of road graders pursuant to a long-standing procedure of going to a single Lincoln supplier as an example of poor purchasing policy

Colin said the grader purchase was never discussed with him

"That's a bald-faced lie," said Grossman. "What are you trying to do, mislead us? The order was brought to you, we consulted you, we talked about the price with you, everything was discussed with you."

Colin said the only discussion occurred when County Atty Paul Douglas was called in to read a statute on procedures required for approving the road grader purchase Colin said the only person he talked with was the supplier, who asked if he would 'go along' with the purchase

"I said I would not, and Bourne told me 'it only takes two to make a purchase,'" said Colin

Judge Dismisses Suit Demanding Police Damages

Federal District Judge Warren K. Urbom has dismissed a suit charging the Lincoln Police Department with false arrest and malicious prosecution.

Urbom ruled, according to court records Tuesday, that a municipal corporation is not a "person" within the meaning of the federal civil rights act, and thus not a proper party defendant.

The suit was brought by Cecil L Smith of Lincoln and asked $180.000 damages and the purging of his arrest from official records.

Smith, who was arrested and arraigned on charges of sodomy, assault with intent to commit sodomy and armed robbery, was imprisoned for 24 days in lieu of an $8,000 bond before the charges were dismissed

Bankers Wait For Official Guidance

©The New York Times

London — Bankers, politicians and tourists alike went through another day of troubled uncertainty Tuesday.

President Nixon's open invitation to other countries to raise the value of their currencies in relation to the dollar still received no response, as banks waited for official guidance.

Cabinet meetings were called for Wednesday in France, West Germany, Italy and Switzerland. The Common Market scheduled what should be an extremely important meeting of its council of ministers in Brussels Thursday.

The British government continued to press for an early international conference of monetary officials to stabilize the situation But in Paris the American Under Secretary of the Treasury, Paul Volcker, said "I anticipate no large conference."

American tourists in London found their dollars effectively devalued by 5% Tuesday. American Express finally gave way to the pressure in midmorning. Instead of the official rate of $2.40 to the pound. holders of travelers cheques or dollar notes had to pay $2.52.

But that tourist rate need not have anything to do with the dollar values that may emerge when the present turmoil subsides. Banks and American Express were simply changing small dollar amounts as an accommodation for stranded Americans.

The outlook for exchange rates remains extremely confused, and financial officials are studying the many alternatives.

Various countries might decide individually to let their currencies float against the dollar in the market place. That would lead to many different changes — the mark up by so much in dollar terms, the franc something else, and so on.

Or, the six Common Market countries could decide to keep the relationships among their currencies fixed and float against the dollar as a unit. Or there could be the attempt at agreed international revaluations, the solution Britain evidently favors.

One financial expert said Tuesday night that "the experts are as bewildered as anyone. Its like going into a strange room in the dark. You don't know where the lights are or what will happen when they go on."

The main Foreign Exchange Market, in London, remained closed Tuesday.

The Zurich market opened, but even its astute dealers seemed at a loss to know what to do in the absence of official guidance. The dollar fell only slightly there from its level of last Friday.

The gold market was allowed to open briefly again in London but showed little change, with gold sticking near Friday's figure of $43

In Common Market circles, stress is being put on the need for a "European" stand — one agreed by The Six. One man put it that "this is the moment of truth: if we cannot agree now, when can we?"

Bitterly Opposed

The French were bitterly opposed to the floating of the mark and are likely to continue resisting any idea of a joint float by market currencies. The Germans, on the other hand, would not want to peg the mark at a level so low that it would entice the money men again and start another influx of dollars into Germany.

The Germans and the Dutch, whose guilder has also been floating, are especially angry at the 10% import surcharge imposed by Nixon. With their currency values up on the float, they argue, they face effective discrimination of 18 and 15%, respectively, in exports to the U.S.

The British, for their part, would like to coordinate their moves with The Six. They want to look "European" rather than tied to the Americans as Britain approaches entry into the Common Market.

But the British feel strongly that, in any general rearrangement of exchange rates, the pound should go up very little in relation to the dollar — and certainly not as much as the common market currencies.

The British balance of payments is strong now, but the expectation is that market entry will impose a heavy drain. Officials want to keep the pound relatively low in value to make British exports highly competitive.

OEP Issues Partial List Of Freeze Guidelines

Washington (AP) — The Office of Emergency Preparedness issued Tuesday a partial list of official answers to questions it has received on President Nixon's executive order calling for a wage, price and rent freeze.

The OEP said the following answers were approved by the Cost of Living Council established by Nixon Sunday night when he ordered the price-wage freeze.

Q. Are apartment rents included in the freeze?

A. Yes.

Q. Are prices of commodities, such as used cars, antiques, and resales of housing included in the freeze?

A. Yes.

Q. Are fees for professional services such as doctors and lawyers included?

A Yes No increases in rates or fees for particular services are permitted during the freeze

Q. How does the freeze affect people who work on commission or piece rate?

A. The commission rate or piece rate cannot be increased over that existing in the base period.

Q. Will the wage-price freeze apply to insurance rates?

A. Yes.

Q. Are rates charged by common carriers and public utilities included in the freeze?

A. Yes.

Q. Are wholesale and retail prices included in the freeze?

A. Yes.

Q. Are stock and bond prices and interest rates included in the freeze?

A. No

Q. Are price increases that have already been announced to take effect in the future subject to the freeze?

A. Yes, all price increases must be controlled.

Q. Are deferred wage or salary increases which have been negotiated to take effect in the future permitted by the freeze?

A No.

Q. Are future cost-of-living increases built into wage contracts or provided by management exempt?

A. No. There will be no cost-of-living increases during the 90-day freeze

Q. Are increases in pensions permitted to take effect?

A. Yes, these are not payments for services rendered

Q. Are previously announced increased tuition rates for the 1971-72 school year permitted by the freeze?

A. Yes. These are considered transaction prices. since commitments have been made and there are a number of cases where payments have been made.

Q. If farm prices of "raw agricultural products" are exempt, does this exemption of raw products follow through to retail?

A Yes

Q. At what point do controls apply to agricultural products?

A At the point of initial processing.

Q. Are state and local tax rates frozen during this period?

A. No.

Q. In cases where surcharges or other sales or excise taxes have been increased, is the ceiling for the price paid by the customer including these taxes raised by a like amount?

A Yes. The price the customer pays is equal to the base, which remains unchanged during the ceiling, plus these taxes.

Q. Are wage increases under apprenticeship contracts approved by the Department of Labor frozen?

A. Such increases may be permitted only in accordance with the terms of the apprenticeship agreement up to and including the top step of the agreement. Increases beyond that step are prohibited under the freeze.

Q. How will rent ceiling be determined for units not previously rented before freeze date?

A Standard should be general prevailing rents for comparable units in the immediate area.

Q. How do you price new products?

A. Use the price of the most nearly comparable product sold by your closest comparable competitor

Q. How will wages and salaries be determined for new jobs?

A. Scales will be determined on the basis of comparable jobs within the affected business or firm. If no comparability exists within such entities, such scales will be determined on the basis of comparable jobs in nearby firms

Q. Should records be maintained for other than the specified base period if other period is used to establish prices?

A. The order is interpreted to require this.

Q. How does one apply for relief under the current authority?

A Orders will be issued shortly by OEP outlining procedures to be followed at the regional service and compliance centers.

Q. What should an individual be advised to do if he alleges that he has been overcharged?

A. Regional Service and Compliance Centers will be responsible for receiving and processing these complaints.

Q. Will any action be taken to investigate the charge. If so, by whom?

A. Yes, by OEP.

Q. Can an individual institute an action to recover an overcharge?

A. Not under the executive order.

Q. What action should the rate-making agencies take with respect to suspension, rejection or general orders relating to tariiffs which would otherwise increase rates including retroactive or proposed?

A. None.

Q. Should inquirers be informed that a freeze order will be issued by the council?

A. The executive order is the freeze order. Supplemental orders under the policy guidance of the Cost of Living Council will be issued by OEP.

Ford Accepts Price Freeze

Detroit (AP) — Ford Motor Co., dropping plans to seek exemptions on some models from President Nixon's wage and price freeze, announced Tuesday an across-the-board rollback of 1972 prices to 1971 levels.

The decision was announced by Ford president Lee A. Iacocca.

A Ford spokesman declined to give specific reason for the change, saying only, "We've been looking at the situation for the past 48 hours and decided to go across the board."

Earlier in the day, John Naughton, vice president and general manager of Ford Division, told newsmen at the firm's 1972 model preview that Ford would seek exemptions for some completely new 1972 models and clarification of government policy on Ford's partially foreign built minicar, Pinto.

He said Ford had made a "very heavy expenditure" in extensively revising some models particularly Torino, Thunderbird. Continental Mark IV and Comet.

Major components of the Pinto, particularly the engines and transmissions, are foreign-built and possibly subject to the 10% important surtax ordered by President Nixon Sunday.

General Motors Corp., which has put its new cars on sale at 1972 prices prior to the official Sept. 23 introduction date, announced Monday that it was rolling all prices back to 1971 levels at least for the 90-day freeze period. Chrysler Corp and American Motors Corp. had not announced 1972 prices when the freeze was ordered.

Work-Study Planned

New York (UPI) —A pilot program introducing junior high school students to the realities of the working world as an inducement to continue their education is being prepared by Eastern Washington State College for the Pacific Northwestern Bell Telephone Co.

OEP Office Is Opened In Kansas City

Kansas City (AP) — The Office of Emergency Preparedness established an office in Kansas City Tuesday to oversee President Nixon's wage and price control program in Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska.

Federal officials said a news conference to discuss effects on the area of the wage-price freeze would be held Wednesday at 2 p.m in the temporary OEP office at the old Federal Building, 911 Walnut, Kansas City.

Francis X. Tobin, regional director from OEP's Washington staff, arrived in Kansas City Tuesday to take charge of the new office, which a Department of Health, Education and Welfare spokesman said would have about a dozen employes borrowed from other federal agencies.

In a news release, Tobin said the office would be involved with two concerns immediately: the 90-day freeze on prices and wages called for by the President, and "a second stage of price-wage stabilization in which transition is accomplished from the temporary freeze to the restoration of free markets without inflation."

Details of that second stage will be worked out by the cost of living council, the release said.

Enrichment Offered

Towson, Md (UPI) —Towson State College's "college in escrow" program provides outstanding high school seniors with the opportunity to enrich their backgrounds with courses not offered at the high school level. Students admitted to the program with a B or better average can earn up to 12 credits in Towson's evening division.

4 Cuban Athletes Ask For Asylum

Bogota, Colombia (UPI) — All four Cubans who defected from that country's team at the VI Pan American Games in Cali have asked for political asylum in Panama, it was reported Tuesday

The Panamanian embassy in Bogota said Jose Diaz Hernandez, a fencer, and his girl friend, Zulma Bregado, a gymnast, showed up in Bogota after hiding out in a city on Colombia's north coast after defecting from the Cuban team

Two other Cuban defectors, Juan Lopez Diaz and Luis Viera Hernandez, trainers, left Bogota for Panama Monday, the embassy said

Coaches Offer Solutions

Nothing in recent years has caused coaches of big-time college football teams to speak out with more anger than recent NCAA proposals to cut costs in athletics by reducing football scholarships and putting grants-in-aid on a need basis.

But the coaches have not just simply said "Don't." They have offered alternatives. Three of the more vocal are the Big Eight trio of Nebraska's Bob Devaney, Colorado's Eddie Crowder and Oklahoma's Chuck Fairbanks.

Tuesday, we looked at their reactions to the "need' proposal. Today, their reactions to why their is a financial crisis and their solutions:

Devaney, whose blood pressure goes about two points above that of Fairbanks and about four above the calmer Crowder when the subject is broached, charges, "Football at many schools is supporting 10 other sports, building programs and intramural programs.

"Yet, when they start looking for ways to cut costs, they say, 'Let's cut back on football.' I'm getting tired of football taking the brunt of things.

"They should let the students and administration decide what sports they want that aren't paying their own way and if they want 'em, let them subsidize them. When the Big Eight athletic directors met earlier this summer on the financial problem, there wasn't one conference school in financial trouble that wasn't trying to support either a building program or an intramural department from athletic receipts."

Cut Back On Scholarships

One of the NCAA proposals, in addition to the "need" formula, is to cut back on the number of football scholarships.

"The ones, who want to do that are the SMU's," claims Crowder. "Instead of trying to build up to compete with Texas, they want to drag Texas down to their level."

"All they want to do by cutting scholarships is to put the Big Eight in a class with Colby or Tufts," charges Devaney."

"The University of Oklahoma serves the people of Oklahoma," says Fairbanks, "and the people of Oklahoma don't want people in other parts of the country telling us what to do with our program.

"We'll take our own measures to live within our means. If we can't afford something, we won't get it, but just because I can't live in a $50,000 house doesn't mean I should be telling someone, who can afford to do so, that he can't."

All three coaches are upset that the only coach on the NCAA committee is John Bateman of Rutgers. "And if you can, tell me that the problems of Rutgers are the same as our at Nebraska," Devaney says.

Need For Classes

One solution, the coaches suggest, is to put college football teams into classes.

"If I can't afford to live in a $50,000 house, then I'd better move into a house I can afford," says Fairbanks, "the same thing with college football teams. If I can't compete with certain teams, I should find teams that I can compete with.

"Let the schools decide whether they want to try to compete with Texas, Ohio State and the other big-time teams or if they want to compete with another lower level which they can afford."

Crowder thinks there should be some realignment of conferences.

"TCU, SMU, Baylor and Rice are entirely different than the others in the Southwest Conference," he points out. "Let them play each other and play Tulane and Arkansas State outside the league.

"Then let Texas and Arkansas play the likes of LSU."

"There's a need to put teams into classes," asserts Devaney. "Separate those who want to play big-time football from those who simply want a high grade croquet program."

Pros Not The Problem

Much of the blame for the financial crisis has been placed on competition from the pros, but Devaney and Crowder dispute this theory.

"Schools that are suffering financial problems are suffering because people aren't buying tickets," Crowder admits. But he says it's not because of competition from profootball.

"The problem of pro football is overplayed," he says. "Pro football is not hurting the colleges. Playing poorly has more to do with the financial bind than the pros."

Devaney argues, "You don't see the colleges playing those 2-0 and 6-3 games. You see those on Sunday afternoons.

"On Saturday afternoon, the colleges are playing 35-21 games and they're doing that because they've got good players playing on offense and on defense and they've got 'em because of scholarships."

In conclusion, Devaney offers challenges to two groups — faculty representatives and the press.

"Faculty representatives should be visiting with their football coaches and athletic directors," he says, "because they don't know anything about the needs of a football program.

"I don't tell them how to teach their classes and they shouldn't be telling a football coach how to run his football program without first consulting with him.

"And you writers should get off your butts and say whether you want big-time college football to continue the way it is — exciting — or whether you want us to go back to the three yards and a cloud of dust days."

Cage Merger Aided By Dismissal Of Suits

San Francisco (AP) — Twelve teams of the American and National basketball associations have agreed to dismiss suits against the leagues, helping to pave the way for the planned merger of the ABA and the NBA.

At a hearing Monday before U.S. District Court Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli, the teams agreed to dismissal of the suits "with prejudice," meaning they cannot be reinstated.

Teams accepting the court order were Kentucky, Indiana and Dallas of the ABA and Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Detroit, New York, Los Angeles, Seattle and San Diego, which is now Houston, of the NBA.

Frederick Furth, San Francisco attorney for the ABA, said he expects authorization in the future from the ABA holdouts against dismissal.

In the NBA, Atlanta, Philadelphia and the Golden State Warriors also refrained. The Warriors had sued because star forward Rick Barry jumped to the Oakland Oaks, now the Virginia Squires.

Gable Selected

Annapolis, Md. (AP) — Dan Gable, a former Iowa State Big Eight wrestling champion, has been chosen as a member of the United States wrestling squad that will take part in the World Championships, beginning Aug. 27, at Sofia, Bulgaria. Gable will compete in the 149 pound class

Nixon Tells Blue He's 'Most Underpaid Player'

. . . NEW WAGE POLICIES MEAN VIDA'S GAS SUPPLY MAY DRY UP SOON

Washington (AP) — President Nixon met with Vida Blue at the White House Tuesday and promptly called the sensational lefthander pitcher of the Oakland Athletics "the most underpaid player in baseball."

The 22-year-old Blue, Manager Dick Williams, Owner Charles O. Finley and the Oakland team paid a 15-minute call on the president and were impressed with his knowledge of baseball and the players.

"He's really a sports fan and he knows his baseball," said Williams. "He had a comment about every one of us.

"The president said, perhaps prematurely, that we're going to win it all," he said.

Nixon talked also to Catfish Hunter about the perfect game he pitched in 1968, asked John Odom how he got his nickname "Blue Moon," and told Sal Bando, "You're to the A's what Jim Fregosi is to the Angels."

The President, who manages to see two or three games a season, had special comments for Blue, who has won 22 and lost 4 this season for the Athletics, runaway leaders of the American League west.

After being told that Blue had just celebrated his 22nd birthday, the president said he wanted the Mansfield, La., native to win at least 23 games next year, 24 the following season and so on until he reaches 30 years old.

Team captain and third baseman Bando asked Nixon if the president's new economic policies, enunciated Sunday, meant "that Mr. Finley doesn't have to give us a raise next year."

Nixon smiled and didn't answer the question. He merely turned to Blue and said: "It means he can't give you any more gas for your car."

Blue makes $13,000 a year but after his early successes, Finley gave him a $10,000 Cadillac. Blue complained to the boss that the car was fine but "that thing is going to take more than I make in a year to drive, what with upkeep and gas."

So Finley forked over a credit card.

After commenting about the gas, Nixon said smiling: "You must be the most underpaid player in the game. Who is the lawyer for this club? I would hate to negotiate your contract next year."

Finley said afterward the president didn't have to tell him Blue was underpaid. "I already knew that," he said.

Blue gave Nixon an Oakland Athletics' green and yellow cap after which the president replied: "They aren't going to like us in Baltimore."

Blue said afterwards: "I'm happy to meet the president. I've gone on some tours in this city but I had never made it here to the White House before. I'd love to come back."

LINCOLNITES ELIMINATED

Omahans Clip Bankers, 14-0

. . . GATEWAY PREVAILS

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Hastings — The golden chariot that carried Lincoln's First National Bank to the semifinals of the state American Legion Class A baseball tournament finally ran out of gas.

Manager Willie Weisbrook's weary, undermanned pitching corps was banged for 16 hits by pre-tourney favorite Omaha Gateway here Tuesday night while being buried, 14-0.

"After the high school record of these Southeast High kids," Weisbrook said, "a lot of people didn't think we could win the area tournament and then felt sure they'd come up here and lose two straight. They gave their all, but we just didn't have enough pitching to play every night."

Larry Vasholz, who finished on the hill for the Bankers, made his fourth appearance in as many nights.

The Capital City club faced the Metro City champs in three of their five state tourney games.

After opening with a victory over North Platte Friday, First National suffered its first loss to Gateway in this double elimination affair.

The Lincoln nine then bounced back with victories over host Hastings and Gateway to stay alive.

But the final outing was no contest.

Gateway scored the only run it needed in the second inning on third baseman Don Wichman's triple and single by leftfielder Rick Sacco.

Wichman, with a three-for-four performance, two runs scored and two RBI, shared batting honors for the winners with first baseman Rick Walstrom, who was three-for-five, tallied four times and also had a pair of RBI.

First National starter Mike Gordon actually kept the Lincoln entry in the game for four innings, though he allowed another pair of Gateway runs in that frame on a hit batsman, single, an error and a sacrifice fly.

But the Bankers could do nothing with the offerings of Gateway ace righthander Jim Benak. Before he gave way to reliever Steve Hultquist in the seventh inning in order to save some pitching eligibility for tonight's championship clash against Grand Island, First National managed but two singles.

Centerfielder Bob Martens singled in the first inning with two men out and promptly stole second base as the Bankers looked like they might repeat Monday night's upset triumph. But Benak struck out the next man to end the threat.

The other safety, by third baseman Pat Nelson, came after two were out in the fifth frame. By then Gateway held a 6-0 lead, and if that wasn't enough the Metro club sent ten men to the plate in the seventh to tally five more times.

The Gateway win set up a rematch between Gateway and Grand Island. The two teams played a 13-inning marathon Sunday night before Gateway squeezed out a 5-4 win.

Lincoln's victory over the previously unbeaten Omaha entry Monday night left the three clubs with one loss each. That required a flip of a coin, which Grand Island won, to gain a bye into tonight's finale.

The prize for tonight's winner, in a game starting at 8, is a berth in the Midwest Regionals at Williston, N.D., starting next Wednesday.

Lincoln Clubs Win Openers In Softball

Defending champion Kearney Co-Op and two Capital City Triple A clubs eked out tight, one-run wins Tuesday night in the opening round of the Nebraska State Men's Fast Pitch Softball Tournament at Ballard Field.

Citizens State Bank got things off on the right foot for local teams with a 2-1 triumph over Grand Island Pizza Hut. Lyle Hiatt's two-out double in the fourth plated all the runs Joel Wagoner needed for the win. Chuck Herbst tossed a two-hitter for the losers.

Bob's Tavern kept the string going for Lincoln crews with a 4-3 win over Oasis Bar of Columbus. Ron Peet tallied the winning run in the eighth on Darryl Ogden's single. Marv McKay picked up the win in relief.

But Kearney spoiled the chances for a clean sweep with a 2-1 victory over Meginnis Ford on a run in the bottom half of the seventh. Two hits, a walk and Mike Inselman's sacrifice fly to center plated the winning run.

Big Eight Will Begin Press Day

Kansas City (AP) — It's picture and interview day today for five Big Eight Conference football teams.

Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Kansas State and Oklahoma State will get the jump on the other teams, both in their day for the news media and the start of workouts. All five squads start drills Thursday.

Nebraska, the nation's top ranked team and Big Eight champion, will stage its photo-to-interview session Thursday and launch practice Friday. Oklahoma's initial workout is Aug. 23. The Sooners hold picture day Saturday. Iowa State holds its day for the news media Aug. 25 and begins work the following day.

All Big Eight clubs except Oklahoma and Iowa State open their seasons Sept. 11. The Sooners and Cyclones play their first games a week later.

Two drills daily are set for all eight teams for varying periods. For the first three days, the players will be clad in shorts. After that, they don pads and start heavy drills.

Estelle's Home Run Topples Royals, 9-5

Omaha (AP) — Dick Estelle's grand slam homer in the third inning gave Evansville a 9-5 victory and a sweep of a four-game American Association series against Omaha Tuesday night.

Pitcher Estelle's blast greeted Lloyd Gladden, who replaced Jerry Cram on the mound for Omaha after a walk and two hits in the third.

Weak Ankles To Be Ready For South

Kearney — Lincoln East's Kent Reckewey was back on the bench again at the South basketball camp Tuesday, still favoring a sprained ankle.

However both head coach Paul Forch and his assistant, Jim Smith, say the rest is merely a precautionary measure and that Reckewey will be ready to go Friday night when the South meets the North at Lincoln's Pershing Auditorium.

Smith also said Hastings' center Paul Thomas and Pawnee City's Paul Thiemann will be going at full speed by Friday. Both Thomas and Thiemann had also been suffering from sprained ankles.

At Tuesday's practice, the South worked on breaking a full-court press and blocking out on defensive rebounding.

Forch singled out play by Thiemann, Papillion's Doug Kelley and Benedict's Lee Richardson.

The South will continue two-a-day practices through Thursday before heading eastward on Friday afternoon.

Turkey Permits Can Be Sought Starting Friday

Applications for turkey permits for Nebraska's 1971 fall season will be accepted by the Game and Parks Commission immediately after the commissioners set regulations for the hunt at a meeting in Lincoln this Friday.

The initial application period runs through September 3 and is open to all residents 16 and older. A drawing will be held on September 9 to decide which hunters will get permits in oversubscribed units. Nonresidents and residents alike may purchase remaining permits on a first-come, first-served basis, starting September 10.

Permit fees are $5 for residents and $15 for nonresidents. Application forms are available from permit vendors, conservation officers, and Game and Parks Commission offices.

Haywood Sparks Win

Monticello, N.Y. (AP) — Spencer Haywood of the Seattle SuperSonics poured in 20 points for the Red Auerbach-coached East team to pace a 99-89 victory over the AL Attles-coached West squad in the 14th annual Maurice Stokes memorial game Tuesday night.

The 6-foot-9 Seattle cornerman was unanimously voted the game's Most Valuable Player Award.

The $16,000 raised through the sale of tickets boosted the total amount of money raised over the 14-year period to $142,000. Part of the money raised Tuesday night is going to defray the cost of memorial to Stokes, the former Cincinnati Royals' star who was stricken with encephalitis in 1958. He died 15 months go.

Obstacles Huge Against Gibson

Cincinnati (AP) — Fireballing Bob Gibson heads into a maze of obstacles tonight in the only chance of his outstanding career to duplicate Johnny Vander Meer's double no-hit feat.

The veteran St. Louis righthander, who hurled his first no-hitter Saturday night, will be facing Cincinnati left-hander Don Gullett, who has never lost a game in Cincinnati. Gullett also allowed only one hit in eight innings in his last outing.

The Reds have had two no-hitters pitched against them this year. No major league club has ever been the victim of three no-hitters in a single season. The Reds have also won nine of their last 13 contests.

Sullivan To Succeed Whitworth In LPGA

Kansas City (AP) — Cynthia Sullivan of Harrisburg, Pa., was elected president of the Ladies Professional Golf Association at its annual meting Tuesday and will succeed Kathy Whitworth, the tour's leading money-winner.

Other officers chosen were Judy Rankin, Midland, Tex., vice president; Linda Craft, Jacksboro, Tex., secretary; Penny Zavichas, Pueblo, Colo., treasurer.

Blacks Undergo Tests For Sickle Cell Anemia

. . . ATHLETES AID IN SEEKING CURE

Pittsburgh (AP) — Carnival sideshows and amusements were coupled with serious business Tuesday in suburban East Hills as hundreds of blacks underwent blood tests for sickle cell anemia.

The fair was sponsored by the Black Athlete Foundation for Sickle Cell Research, formed last May to raise money to help find a cure for the disease, which mostly afflicts blacks and usually causes death at an early age.

Among those outside the testing tent was Pittsburgh Pirates pitcher Dock Ellis, one of 32 black athletes who donated $1,000 each to start the fund drive.

Ellis, 26, has "sickle cell trait," a non-fatal disease which has some of the symptoms of sickle cell anemia, said the Pirates' team physician, Dr. Joseph Finegold.

"Dock may show a little bleeding now and then and his blood count may go down, but all it takes is some iron pills to get it back up again," said Dr. Finegold.

"Otherwise, he is as normal as anybody else and no special treatment is needed."

Sickle cell trait should be detected, however, Dr. Finegold added, because when two people who have it marry there is a greater likelihood their children may have the serious sickle cell anemia, in which blood cells take the shape of sickles.

Ellis, who has a 17-6 pitching record this season, confirmed he has had spells in which he felt faint and passed blood.

"I had one a couple of weeks ago," he said, adding that he did not have sickle cell anemia. "If I did, I'd probably be dead."

Others beside Ellis in the Black Athletes Foundation include boxer Muhammed Ali, Willie Stargell of the Pirates, basketball star Connie Hawkins, and football star Leroy Kelly.

The group not only raises money for sickle cell research and testing but also for treatment, which entails frequent blood transfusions.

The fair in Pittsburgh runs for three days and an estimated 5,000 blacks will be tested. Similar fairs are planned for other cities.

Senior Lead To Cowdery

Norfolk (AP) — Defending champion Ben Cowdery of Omaha shot an even-par 72 Tuesday for the first-round lead in the Nebraska Men's Senior Golf Tournament at the Norfolk Country Club.

Cowdery, competing in the 60 to 64 age bracket, had a two-stroke lead over Cecil Hatfield of Falls City in over-all competition. Hatfield's 74 was low in the 65 to 69 field.

Other leaders after 18 holes in the 54-hole competition included P. M. Anderson of Omaha, 75 in the 50 to 54 group; Maurice Olson of Omaha, 76 in the 55 to 59 group, and Clarence Isaacson of Norfolk, 81 in the 70 to 74 division.

Carl Bolt of Schuyler with a 101 was three strokes better than C. H. Hosler of Fullerton in the 75 and over group, in which they were the only competitors.

Frank Wanek of Gordon, who shot an 83 in the 50 to 54 bracket, used a four-iron to score a hole in one on the 185-yard third hole, the third of his career.

Senators Thwart A's Record Visions

. . . WIN STREAK OF ROAD GAMES SPOILED AFTER 12 STRAIGHT

By Associated Press

Heavy stickwork by Don Mincher and towering Frank Howard halted the Oakland A's four games short of the American League record of 16 straight triumphs on the road and provided the Washington Senators with an 8-1 victory Tuesday night.

Howard banged out his 21st home run of the season and Mincher drove in four runs with a homer and a single.

In other American League action, the New York Yankees swept a doubleheader 2-0 and 8-5 from the Kansas City Royals, California shaded Boston 4-3, Chicago nipped Detroit 6-5 in the opener of a doubleheader, Cleveland edged Minnesota 3-2 and Baltimore upended Milwaukee 3-2.

In the National League, Cincinnati defeated St. Louis 5-3, Atlanta downed Chicago 5-4 and Houston overpowered Pittsburgh 6-5.

Danny Cater and Thurmon Munson singled home runs as the Yanks clipped the Royals 2-0 in the first game.

Felipe Alou drove home Ron Swoboda with his fifth homer of the season to ignite the seventh-inning Yankee rally after the Royals had built a 4-3 lead.

Thurmon Munson then walked and Gene Michael singled, followed by Murcer's blast, his 22nd home run of the season.

Vada Pinson's leadoff homer in the eighth inning carried the Indians past the Twins and Steve Huntz clouted his first two homers of the season as the White Sox slipped past the Tigers.

A four-run first inning ignited by Jim Spencer's bases-loaded double helped the Angels to their victory over the Red Sox and Ellie Hendricks' leadoff homer in the final inning lifted the Orioles past the Brewers.

Johnny Bench rapped his 23rd homer of the season with two away in the last of the ninth to power the Reds over the Cardinals and Cesar Cedeno touched off a five-run seventh stanza with a two-run single as the Astros dumped the Pirates. Pinch-hitter Zoilo Versalles smacked a home run over the left field wall in the ninth, giving the Braves their triumph over the Cubs.

Steve Huntz hit a pair of home runs including a three-run, game-winning shot in the eighth inning of the opener, and doubled and scored what proved to be the winning run in the second game, sparking the Chicago White Sox to a 6-5, 4-1 doubleheader sweep over Detroit.

Claude Osteen hurled a three-hitter and also doubled and singled, leading Los Angeles to a 4-0 victory over New York.

Ernie McAnally pitched a four-hitter and started a four-run Montreal rally with a single as the Expos walloped San Diego 11-0 Tuesday night in a game spiced by a brawl involving Ron Hunt.

Gaylord Perry pitched a seven-hitter for his seventh victory in eight decisions as the San Francisco Giants beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5-1 and maintained their 6½ game lead over Los Angeles in the National League West.

Antelope List In Panhandle Stays Level

Antelope numbers in the Panhandle, Nebraska's primary pronghorn range, are at about the same level as last year, according to an aerial survey just completed by Game and Parks Commission biologists.

Following 13 days of flying, the biologists estimated the Panhandle's antelope population at about 3,850, just 4 percent under last year's figures. Sand Hills antelope units were not included in the survey, because pronghorns there are less numerous and not as well distributed.

Data on the four Panhandle management units include: Box Butte, about 1,680 antelope, up 42 percent; North Sioux, 1,300, down 38 percent; Garden, 700, change, and Cheyenne, 170, up 185 percent.

The 185 percent increase in the Cheyenne Unit shows antelope there are staging a comeback from a low of about 60 animals in 1970. No permits for that unit were issued for 1971 to allow further increases in the herd.

The kid-doe ratio reflects the rate of reproduction and is considered fair to good for this year. A higher ratio, such as the 74 kids per doe spotted in 1968, is deemed excellent for Nebraska pronghorns.

Maynard Scores At York Rodeo

York (AP) — Ralph Maynard of Eagle Butte, S.D., won the saddle bronc riding event in the second annual York Rodeo that ended Tuesday night.

Maynard, recent winner of more than $1,067 in this event at Sidney, Iowa, marked a 69 in scoring and picked up $207.

The all-around cowboy title went to Red Bland, Trent, Tex., who won the calf roping event in :09.8 and pocketed $368.

The best time in steer wrestling was turned in Tuesday night by Bob Perkins of Spring Town, Tex., :03.3, good for $356.

Bareback riding winner with 66 points Jay Himes of Beulah, Colo. His check came to $254. Doug Wilson of Sidney, Neb., and Bob Currie of Tarkio, Mo., tied for first in bull riding with 68 points, each winning $264.

Beverly Nutter of Thedford, won the second go-round in barrel racing with a :17.7 time, good for $41.

Average winner in this event was JoAnn Stevens of Polk, Neb., with :35.4 seconds in two runs, worth $1.

South Puts On Final Touches For Saturday

Crete (AP) — The South Shrine football players were occupied with offensive and defensive play-polishing activities Tuesday as Coach Ken Parish let up on contact work in preparation for Saturday's game in Lincoln.

They were "pretty good" workouts, Parish said, and added that the offense is "about ready." He said he was unable yet to list tentative starters, pending condition reports on some of his injured players.

Parish said contact work probably would come to an end today.

The coach said Reg Wagner, middle guard from Lincoln Northeast, had been sent home with an injury and definitely will not play Saturday.

North All-Stars Work On Steaks, Offensive Game

Wayne — A steakfry sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce was the main event of the day Tuesday at the North training camp.

Each all-star was paired with a member of the Chamber of Commerce during a picnic dinner at the city park. A session of horseback riding is planned for this afternoon.

North coach Roger Higgins of Omaha Cathedral cut the team's practice schedule back to two per day Tuesday, and set the team to work on offensive rebounding, fast breaks, and its offense.

Higgins said that the remainder of the week in preparation for Friday night's all-star contest in Lincoln would be spent on "polishing the frill parts, I guess you might say. We're going to work on a control game, out-of-bounds plays, and resume working on our press while polishing our offense. We want to concentrate on getting down our timing."

The North mentor singled out Tom Anderson of Arlington, Ken Maresh of Lincoln Northeast, and Dave Peterson of North Platte for their showings in Tuesday's sessions.

Foster Scores TKO In Third Round Win

Miami Beach (AP) — Veteran Bob Foster scored a third round technical knockout Tuesday night over Vern McIntosh, who had only gone 10 rounds once in his career.

Foster, World Boxing Council light-heavyweight champion, decked McIntosh with a short right late in the first round. But the bell prevented a knockout.

North Has Bad Day In Lincoln

Fremont (AP) — Coach Dallas Dyer expressed disappointment at Tuesday's performances in practice and named a tentative North starting lineup for Saturday's Shrine football game in Lincoln.

Dyer took his squad to Lincoln for a workout on Coliseum artificial turf Tuesday. He said his recently graduated high schoolers were awed by the situation, and it was "not a very good workout." Neither were later sessions at Midland College, Dyer said.

Dyer said either Ray Burgess of Arlington or Mike Pirtle of Creighton Prep would start at quarterback. Other backs probably will be Ron Loewenstein of Grand Island, Ritch Bahe of Fremont and Gary Schmidt of Grand Island Catholic.

Offensive linemen will include Larry Honke of Columbus Scotus and Kim Thomas of Pierce at tackle, Tim McGuire of Creighton Prep and Scott Warner of Gering at guard, and center Ken Janssen of Gordon.

As tentative defensive line starters, Dyer listed Mike Kelley of Blair and John McDermott of Omaha Benson, Charles Chevalier of Omaha Rummel or Dick Peetz of Sidney and Bob Vering of Fremont Bergan and Tom Vegt of Fremont.

Tentative linebackers are Ed Yeutter of Lexington and Tom Theirolf of rFemont Bergan. The probable defensive backs are Glen Gumb of Fremont, George Kyros of Grand Island, Tom Zimmerman of Columbus and Bob Meyer of Scribner.

Halfback Jim Wingender of Creighton Prep and linebacker Bob Peterson of Ord, both injured, were on the doubtful list for the annual charity game.

Coaches Offer Solutions

Nothing in recent years has caused coaches of big-time college football teams to speak out with more anger than recent NCAA proposals to cut costs in athletics by reducing football scholarships and putting grants-in-aid on a need basis.

But the coaches have not just simply said "Don't." They have offered alternatives. Three of the more vocal are the Big Eight trio of Nebraska's Bob Devaney, Colorado's Eddie Crowder and Oklahoma's Chuck Fairbanks.

Tuesday, we looked at their reactions to the "need' proposal. Today, their reactions to why their is a financial crisis and their solutions:

Devaney, whose blood pressure goes about two points above that of Fairbanks and about four above the calmer Crowder when the subject is broached, charges, "Football at many schools is supporting 10 other sports, building programs and intramural programs.

"Yet, when they start looking for ways to cut costs, they say, 'Let's cut back on football.' I'm getting tired of football taking the brunt of things.

"They should let the students and administration decide what sports they want that aren't paying their own way and if they want 'em, let them subsidize them. When the Big Eight athletic directors met earlier this summer on the financial problem, there wasn't one conference school in financial trouble that wasn't trying to support either a building program or an intramural department from athletic receipts."

Cut Back On Scholarships

One of the NCAA proposals, in addition to the "need" formula, is to cut back on the number of football scholarships.

"The ones, who want to do that are the SMU's," claims Crowder. "Instead of trying to build up to compete with Texas, they want to drag Texas down to their level."

"All they want to do by cutting scholarships is to put the Big Eight in a class with Colby or Tufts," charges Devaney."

"The University of Oklahoma serves the people of Oklahoma," says Fairbanks, "and the people of Oklahoma don't want people in other parts of the country telling us what to do with our program.

"We'll take our own measures to live within our means. If we can't afford something, we won't get it, but just because I can't live in a $50,000 house doesn't mean I should be telling someone, who can afford to do so, that he can't."

All three coaches are upset that the only coach on the NCAA committee is John Bateman of Rutgers. "And if you can, tell me that the problems of Rutgers are the same as our at Nebraska," Devaney says.

Need For Classes

One solution, the coaches suggest, is to put college football teams into classes.

"If I can't afford to live in a $50,000 house, then I'd better move into a house I can afford," says Fairbanks, "the same thing with college football teams. If I can't compete with certain teams, I should find teams that I can compete with.

"Let the schools decide whether they want to try to compete with Texas, Ohio State and the other big-time teams or if they want to compete with another lower level which they can afford."

Crowder thinks there should be some realignment of conferences.

"TCU, SMU, Baylor and Rice are entirely different than the others in the Southwest Conference," he points out. "Let them play each other and play Tulane and Arkansas State outside the league.

"Then let Texas and Arkansas play the likes of LSU."

"There's a need to put teams into classes," asserts Devaney. "Separate those who want to play big-time football from those who simply want a high grade croquet program."

Pros Not The Problem

Much of the blame for the financial crisis has been placed on competition from the pros, but Devaney and Crowder dispute this theory.

"Schools that are suffering financial problems are suffering because people aren't buying tickets," Crowder admits. But he says it's not because of competition from profootball.

"The problem of pro football is overplayed," he says. "Pro football is not hurting the colleges. Playing poorly has more to do with the financial bind than the pros."

Devaney argues, "You don't see the colleges playing those 2-0 and 6-3 games. You see those on Sunday afternoons.

"On Saturday afternoon, the colleges are playing 35-21 games and they're doing that because they've got good players playing on offense and on defense and they've got 'em because of scholarships."

In conclusion, Devaney offers challenges to two groups — faculty representatives and the press.

"Faculty representatives should be visiting with their football coaches and athletic directors," he says, "because they don't know anything about the needs of a football program.

"I don't tell them how to teach their classes and they shouldn't be telling a football coach how to run his football program without first consulting with him.

"And you writers should get off your butts and say whether you want big-time college football to continue the way it is — exciting — or whether you want us to go back to the three yards and a cloud of dust days."

Cage Merger Aided By Dismissal Of Suits

San Francisco (AP) — Twelve teams of the American and National basketball associations have agreed to dismiss suits against the leagues, helping to pave the way for the planned merger of the ABA and the NBA.

At a hearing Monday before U.S. District Court Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli, the teams agreed to dismissal of the suits "with prejudice," meaning they cannot be reinstated.

Teams accepting the court order were Kentucky, Indiana and Dallas of the ABA and Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Detroit, New York, Los Angeles, Seattle and San Diego, which is now Houston, of the NBA.

Frederick Furth, San Francisco attorney for the ABA, said he expects authorization in the future from the ABA holdouts against dismissal.

In the NBA, Atlanta, Philadelphia and the Golden State Warriors also refrained. The Warriors had sued because star forward Rick Barry jumped to the Oakland Oaks, now the Virginia Squires.

Annapolis, Md. (AP) — Dan Gable, a former Iowa State Big Eight wrestling champion, has been chosen as a member of the United States wrestling squad that will take part in the World Championships, beginning Aug. 27, at Sofia, Bulgaria. Gable will compete in the 149 pound class

Nixon Tells Blue He's 'Most Underpaid Player'

. . . NEW WAGE POLICIES MEAN VIDA'S GAS SUPPLY MAY DRY UP SOON

Washington (AP) — President Nixon met with Vida Blue at the White House Tuesday and promptly called the sensational lefthander pitcher of the Oakland Athletics "the most underpaid player in baseball."

The 22-year-old Blue, Manager Dick Williams, Owner Charles O. Finley and the Oakland team paid a 15-minute call on the president and were impressed with his knowledge of baseball and the players.

"He's really a sports fan and he knows his baseball," said Williams. "He had a comment about every one of us.

"The president said, perhaps prematurely, that we're going to win it all," he said.

Nixon talked also to Catfish Hunter about the perfect game he pitched in 1968, asked John Odom how he got his nickname "Blue Moon," and told Sal Bando, "You're to the A's what Jim Fregosi is to the Angels."

The President, who manages to see two or three games a season, had special comments for Blue, who has won 22 and lost 4 this season for the Athletics, runaway leaders of the American League west.

After being told that Blue had just celebrated his 22nd birthday, the president said he wanted the Mansfield, La., native to win at least 23 games next year, 24 the following season and so on until he reaches 30 years old.

Team captain and third baseman Bando asked Nixon if the president's new economic policies, enunciated Sunday, meant "that Mr. Finley doesn't have to give us a raise next year."

Nixon smiled and didn't answer the question. He merely turned to Blue and said: "It means he can't give you any more gas for your car."

Blue makes $13,000 a year but after his early successes, Finley gave him a $10,000 Cadillac. Blue complained to the boss that the car was fine but "that thing is going to take more than I make in a year to drive, what with upkeep and gas."

So Finley forked over a credit card.

After commenting about the gas, Nixon said smiling:

"You must be the most underpaid player in the game. Who is the lawyer for this club? I would hate to negotiate your contract next year."

Finley said afterward the president didn't have to tell him Blue was underpaid. "I already knew that," he said.

Blue gave Nixon an Oakland Athletics' green and yellow cap after which the president replied: "They aren't going to like us in Baltimore."

Blue said afterwards: "I'm happy to meet the president. I've gone on some tours in this city but I had never made it here to the White House before. I'd love to come back."

LINCOLNITES ELIMINATED

Omahans Clip Bankers, 14-0

. . . GATEWAY PREVAILS

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Hastings — The golden chariot that carried Lincoln's First National Bank to the semifinals of the state American Legion Class A baseball tournament finally ran out of gas.

Manager Willie Weisbrook's weary, undermanned pitching corps was banged for 16 hits by pre-tourney favorite Omaha Gateway here Tuesday night while being buried, 14-0.

"After the high school record of these Southeast High kids," Weisbrook said, "a lot of people didn't think we could win the area tournament and then felt sure they'd come up here and lose two straight. They gave their all, but we just didn't have enough pitching to play every night."

Larry Vasholz, who finished on the hill for the Bankers, made his fourth appearance in as many nights.

The Capital City club faced the Metro City champs in three of their five state tourney games.

After opening with a victory over North Platte Friday, First National suffered its first loss to Gateway in this double elimination affair.

The Lincoln nine then bounced back with victories over host Hastings and Gateway to stay alive.

But the final outing was no contest.

Gateway scored the only run it needed in the second inning on third baseman Don Wichman's triple and single by leftfielder Rick Sacco.

Wichman, with a three-for-four performance, two runs scored and two RBI, shared batting honors for the winners with first baseman Rick Walstrom, who was three-for-five, tallied four times and also had a pair of RBI.

First National starter Mike Gordon actually kept the Lincoln entry in the game for four innings, though he allowed another pair of Gateway runs in that frame on a hit batsman, single, an error and a sacrifice fly.

But the Bankers could do nothing with the offerings of Gateway ace righthander Jim Benak. Before he gave way to reliever Steve Hultquist in the seventh inning in order to save some pitching eligibility for tonight's championship clash against Grand Island, First National managed but two singles.

Centerfielder Bob Martens singled in the first inning with two men out and promptly stole second base as the Bankers looked like they might repeat Monday night's upset triumph. But Benak struck out the next man to end the threat.

The other safety, by third baseman Pat Nelson, came after two were out in the fifth frame. By then Gateway held a 6-0 lead, and if that wasn't enough the Metro club sent ten men to the plate in the seventh to tally five more times.

The Gateway win set up a rematch between Gateway and Grand Island. The two teams played a 13-inning marathon Sunday night before Gateway squeezed out a 5-4 win.

Lincoln's victory over the previously unbeaten Omaha entry Monday night left the three clubs with one loss each. That required a flip of a coin, which Grand Island won, to gain a bye into tonight's finale.

The prize for tonight's winner, in a game starting at 8, is a berth in the Midwest Regionals at Williston, N.D., starting next Wednesday.

Big Eight Will Begin Press Day

Kansas City (AP) — It's picture and interview day today for five Big Eight Conference football teams.

Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Kansas State and Oklahoma State will get the jump on the other teams, both in their day for the news media and the start of workouts. All five squads start drills Thursday.

Nebraska, the nation's top ranked team and Big Eight champion, will stage its photo-interview session Thursday and launch practice Friday. Oklahoma's initial workout is Aug. 23. The Sooners hold picture day Saturday. Iowa State holds its day for the news media Aug. 25 and begins work the following day.

All Big Eight clubs except Oklahoma and Iowa State open their seasons Sept. 11. The Sooners and Cyclones play their first games a week later.

Two drills daily are set for all eight teams for varying periods. For the first three days, the players will be clad in shorts. After that, they don pads and start heavy drills.

Estelle's Home Run Topples Royals, 9-5

Omaha (AP) — Dick Estelle's grand slam homer in the third inning gave Evansville a 9-5 victory and a sweep of a four-game American Association series against Omaha Tuesday night.

Pitcher Estelle's blast greeted Lloyd Gladden, who replaced Jerry Cram on the mound for Omaha after a walk and two hits in the third.

Weak Ankles To Be Ready For South

Kearney — Lincoln East's Kent Reckewey was back on the bench again at the South basketball camp Tuesday, still favoring a sprained ankle.

However both head coach Paul Forch and his assistant, Jim Smith, say the rest is merely a precautionary measure and that Reckewey will be ready to go Friday night when the South meets the North at Lincoln's Pershing Auditorium.

Smith also said Hastings' center Paul Thomas and Pawnee City's Paul Thiemann will be going at full speed by Friday. Both Thomas and Thiemann had also been suffering from sprained ankles.

At Tuesday's practice, the South worked on breaking a full-court press and blocking out on defensive rebounding.

Forch singled out play by Thiemann, Papillion's Doug Kelley and Benedict's Lee Richardson.

The South will continue two-a-day practices through Thursday before heading eastward on Friday afternoon.

Lincoln Clubs Win Openers In Softball

Defending champion Kearney Co-Op and two Capital City Triple A clubs eked out tight, one-run wins Tuesday night in the opening round of the Nebraska State Men's Fast Pitch Softball Tournament at Ballard Field.

Citizens State Bank got things off on the right foot for local teams with a 2-1 triumph over Grand Island Pizza Hut. Lyle Hiatt's two-out double in the fourth plated all the runs Joel Wagoner needed for the win. Chuck Herbst tossed a two-hitter for the losers.

Bob's Tavern kept the string going for Lincoln crews with a 4-3 win over Oasis Bar of Columbus. Ron Peet tallied the winning run in the eighth on Darryl Ogden's single. Marv McKay picked up the win in relief.

But Kearney spoiled the chances for a clean sweep with a 2-1 victory over Meginnis Ford on a run in the bottom half of the seventh. Two hits, a walk and Mike Inselman's sacrifice fly to center plated the winning run.

Turkey Permits Can Be Sought Starting Friday

Applications for turkey permits for Nebraska's 1971 fall season will be accepted by the Game and Parks Commission immediately after the commissioners set regulations for the hunt at a meeting in Lincoln this Friday.

The initial application period runs through September 3 and is open to all residents 16 and older. A drawing will be held on September 9 to decide which hunters will get permits in oversubscribed units. Nonresidents and residents alike may purchase remaining permits on a first-come, first-served basis, starting September 10.

Permit fees are $5 for residents and $15 for nonresidents. Application forms are available from permit vendors, conservation officers, and Game and Parks Commission offices.

Haywood Sparks Win

Monticello, N.Y. (AP) — Spencer Haywood of the Seattle SuperSonics poured in 20 points for the Red Auerbach-coached East team to pace a 99-89 victory over the AL Attles-coached West squad in the 14th annual Maurice Stokes memorial game Tuesday night.

The 6-foot-9 Seattle cornerman was unanimously voted the game's Most Valuable Player Award.

The $16,000 raised through the sale of tickets boosted the total amount of money raised over the 14-year period to $142,000. Part of the money raised Tuesday night is going to defray the cost of memorial to Stokes, the former Cincinnati Royals' star who was stricken with encephalitis in 1958. He died 15 months go.

Sullivan To Succeed Whitworth In LPGA

Kansas City (AP) — Cynthia Sullivan of Harrisburg, Pa., was elected president of the Ladies Professional Golf Association at its annual meting Tuesday and will succeed Kathy Whitworth, the tour's leading money-winner.

Other officers chosen were Judy Rankin, Midland, Tex., vice president; Linda Craft, Jacksboro, Tex., secretary; Penny Zavichas, Pueblo, Colo., treasurer.

Obstacles Huge Against Gibson

Cincinnati (AP) — Fireballing Bob Gibson heads into a maze of obstacles tonight in the only chance of his outstanding career to duplicate Johnny Vander Meer's double no-hit feat.

The veteran St. Louis righthander, who hurled his first no-hitter Saturday night, will be facing Cincinnati left-hander Don Gullett, who has never lost a game in Cincinnati. Gullett also allowed only one hit in eight innings in his last outing.

The Reds have had two no-hitters pitched against them this year. No major league club has ever been the victim of three no-hitters in a single season. The Reds have also won nine of their last 13 contests.

Flordia Miss Trying Out Forward Passes

. . . COULDN'T MAKE CHEERLEADING SQUAD

Hollywood, Fla. (AP) —Jan Coelho didn't make cheerleader so the pretty high school senior spent the summer catching forward passes and showed up at football tryouts. She wants to be quarterback.

Playing it straight, Hollywood Hills High School football coach Dick Saltrick politely accepted her physical examination and insurance forms. The 90 male gridders in formation for calisthenics moved over to make room for the 6-foot girl in a tailored white blouse, navy shorts and sneakers.

Miss Coelho, 17-year-old editor of the high school newspaper, did the prescribed jumping jacks, pushups, situps and sprints. Spartan fans who witnessed the first day of practice said the long-haired brownette kept up with the best of them.

"I've never been so tired in my life," the panting Miss Coelho said later Monday as she wiped sweat from her eyes.

"My neck is killing me. Any girl who would go out for football has to be out of her mind." Does that mean she's quitting?

"Heck no!" came the emphatic reply. "I don't know how long Coach Saltrick will put up with me but you can bet I'll be out at practice at 8 a.m. sharp every morning."

She kept her word and was back at the practice field Tuesday morning.

"I know I'm at a disadvantage —and that has nothing to do with being a girl," the 157-pounder said. "I'm disadvantaged because of my lack of experience. If I had started playing football as a freshman I think I might be able to compete with some of the boys.

"But I've been practicing throwing and catching passes this summer and I think I'm in good shape. I don't know the plays or formations yet but I'm learning. And the players are being just beautiful to me.

"Oh, they've kidded me about needing a haircut and sharing the locker room but it's all in fun and some have really tried to show me how to do things. I think they're genuinely interested in me as a football player," the shapely rookie said.

The eldest of three sisters and two brothers, Miss Coelho's participation in high school football wouldn't have been permitted last year under Florida High School Activities Association Rules. But this summer the rules were changed to delete a section which banned girls from high school gridirons, basketball courts and baseball diamonds.

"Frankly, I was reluctant to give her a tryout but this week of practice is spent in conditioning and we don't have any body contact," Saltrick said. "Besides, I remember she baked brownies for the players last season so I said 'what the heck.' "

NFL Cardinals Need New Pep In Ground Game

Lake Forest, Ill. (AP) — Coach Bob Hollway took a long look Tuesday at the St. Louis Cardinals running game as the Big Red hustled through a two-hour workout.

The Cardinals could gain only 78 yards on the ground in Saturday's 16-14 preseason victory over Houston. MacArthur Lane led the Big Red rushers with 35 yards in 14 carries.

In contrast, quarterback Jim Hart completed 16 of 31 passes for 251 yards in the win over the Oilers.

"I feel we need improvement in our running game," Hollway said. "We've put a lot of effort into it in the last two days and added some new plays."

Pete Beathard is scheduled to start at quarterback when St. Louis visits Washington Saturday night.

—PLUS EIGHT STRAIGHT—

Twins' Perry Loses Cy Young Touch

Minneapolis-St. Paul (AP) — Bill Rigney came up with a line that got his ace right-hander, Jim Perry, fired up early this season.

"You're not looking much like Cy Young," Rigney told the Minnesota Twins' pitcher during one visit to the mound.

Perry worked himself out of the jam and then ran his record to 12-6 by June 30. It looked like the 34-year-old pitcher was well on his way to his third straight 20-victory season.

But now the mention of Cy Young just points up what kind of year the Twins and Perry are suffering through.

Perry, winner of the Cy Young Award as the outstanding pitcher in the American League for his 1970 record of 24-12, has not won a game since June 30. He has lost eight straight while his record has dropped to 12-14.

"He doesn't appear to be pitching differently," Rigney said. "If you check the statistics, you can see base on balls have hurt him. And there's the other things — home runs. One compounds the other."

Perry had walked 83 men and grooved 27 home runs through his last start Sunday, a 7 5 loss to Detroit. Through all of last year, Perry walked 57 and gave up 20 homers.

In addition, while the Twins have deteriorated into a fifth place team in the West division after winning two straight years, their bullpen has not been functioning well.

Minnesota relievers have posted only one save since June 30, 18 all season. Perry has six complete games. Last year he went the distance 13 times.

"I feel I'm pitching as well as I did last year. I've had some hard luck," Perry said. "It seems I'm always pitching on defense. We're either behind or the score is tied. I'd like to pitch offensively for a change. I'm not blaming my teammates. It's just been that kind of year."

Rigney said, "he had a hard session early in the year, looked like he was being too careful. But he got back to challenging the hitters and started winning again."

Rigney also agreed that Perry has had some hard luck, noting one game against Boston where his pitcher hurled eleven shutout innings with the Twins losing in the 13th.

"I'll throw a pitch," said Perry, "that I think is a good one. But they'll hit it or it's a ball. I'll throw a pitch I think they got to hit on the ground and they hit it up in the air.

"The important thing is that I'm healthy and I know I'm giving a hundred per cent. I'm just going to keep plugging and try to pick up four or five straight."

Trevino Named Hickok Nominee For July Feats

New York (AP) — Golfer Lee Trevino is the July winner in the race for the 22nd annual Hickok Professional Athlete of the Year Award, it was announced Tuesday.

Trevino gained his second straight monthly victory on the strength of his triumph in the British Open. Other monthly winners have been tennis player Rod Laver, golfer Jack Nicklaus, heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, basketball star Lew Alcindor and auto race driver Al Unser.

ABA's 5th Year To Start Oct. 13

New York (AP) — The American Basketball Association opens its fifth season on Wednesday, Oct. 13, with the defending champion Utah Stars hosting the Denver Rockets at Salt Lake City.

Six leading college players of last season will make their pro debut in the ABA during the first week of the regular season that ends March 29.

Club Uniforms Stolen From Legion Midgets

Adrian Fiala, coach of the Lincoln KOLN & KGIN-TV American Legion Midget baseball team, said Tuesday that his team's white jerseys and blue socks were stolen from his car sometime between 11:30 p.m. Monday and 6 a.m. Tuesday.

Fiala, who has contacted the Lincoln Police Department, urges anyone having information in connection with the theft to contact either him or the police. A reward will be offered.

Cornhusker Club Finishes First At Pikes Peak

The Cornhusker Track Club team fared well in the last two weeks in long distance events in Colorado.

Sunday, the team, comprised of Lincoln's Tom Snyder and Ken Katzer, Katzer's brother Dennis of Naper, and Lou Fritz, former Peru standout, won the Pikes Peak Marathon when Ken Katzer finished 2nd, Fritz 11th, Dennis Katzer 12th and Snyder 13th among 165 that started the race.

The previous weekend the same team finished third at Littleton in the National AAU 15-kilometers race.

Orioles Will Tour Japanese Circuit

Tokyo (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles will arrive in Japan Oct. 21 for a series of 18 games against Japanese teams, it was announced Tuesday.

The Orioles will play mainly the Tokyo Yomiuri Giants, champions of the Japan World Series in 1970. The Orioles will be the 10th American major league team to visit Japan since 1945.

Eagles Jam Stadium, Plus Traffic, Etc.

. . . PRO EXHIBITION THRONG BECOMES MIXED BLESSING

Philadelphia (AP) — Philadelphia built a big $50 million 65,358-seat stadium and found Monday night, when it was filled for the first time, it couldn't get people in and out without chaos.

"We had problems," said Bud Vye, stadium superviser in what has to be an understatement.

Many fans missed the entire first half of the Philadelphia Eagles-Buffalo Bills National Football League exhibition game. bottled up in traffic.

Other thousands were trapped an hour and longer in parking lots, on bumper-to-bumper highways, and bridges clogged wall-to-wall with autos after the Eagles racked up a slick 34-28 victory before the sellout, cheering crowd.

The smart folks hiked it for a couple of miles to the nearest subway to get out of the mammoth traffic jam.

The official attendance was 65,358 — accounting for every seat — but there were hundreds of others who stood. They crashed the gates and fences to get in after waiting futiley in lines for several hours for tickets that weren't there.

"They tell me they turned away around 8,000," Vye said. Some harrassed cops on duty thought it was much more.

Police Commissioner Joseph F. O'Neill blamed the snafu on too many cars for too few parking spaces, inconsiderate motorists and street construction that forced detours.

"This is a beautiful stadium, if you manage to get through traffic to see it," said Mondie Novelli, 43, of suburban Wayne who arrived an hour late, just in time to catch the second half.

"First there was two hours on the Schuylkill Expressway, and then I spent 35 minutes in line at the will call office to pick up my tickets.

"Rough? I think some of the fans had a rougher time fighting through the traffic than our running backs did fighting through the Buffalo line."

Veterans Stadium opened this spring for Philadelphia Phillies' baseball, a year later than expected. The National League club has had only one sellout, on opening day, when 55,000 filled the place but everything was orderly. For football 10,000 more seats are rolled out onto the field.

Blacks Undergo Tests For Sickle Cell Anemia

. . . ATHLETES AID IN SEEKING CURE

Pittsburgh (AP) — Carnival sideshows and amusements were coupled with serious business Tuesday in suburban East Hills as hundreds of blacks underwent blood tests for sickle cell anemia.

The fair was sponsored by the Black Athlete Foundation for Sickle Cell Research, formed last May to raise money to help find a cure for the disease, which mostly afflicts blacks and usually causes death at an early age.

Among those outside the testing tent was Pittsburgh Pirates pitcher Dock Ellis, one of 32 black athletes who donated $1,000 each to start the fund drive.

Ellis, 26, has "sickle cell trait," a non-fatal disease which has some of the symptoms of sickle cell anemia, said the Pirates' team physician, Dr. Joseph Finegold.

"Dock may show a little bleeding now and then and his blood count may go down, but all it takes is some iron pills to get it back up again," said Dr. Finegold.

"Otherwise, he is as normal as anybody else and no special treatment is needed."

Sickle cell trait should be detected, however, Dr. Finegold added, because when two people who have it marry there is a greater likelihood their children may have the serious sickle cell anemia, in which blood cells take the shape of sickles.

Ellis, who has a 17-6 pitching record this season, confirmed he has had spells in which he felt faint and passed blood.

"I had one a couple of weeks ago," he said, adding that he did not have sickle cell anemia. "If I did, I'd probably be dead."

Others beside Ellis in the Black Athletes Foundation include boxer Muhammed Ali, Willie Stargell of the Pirates, basketball star Connie Hawkins, and football star Leroy Kelly.

The group not only raises money for sickle cell research and testing but also for treatment, which entails frequent blood transfusions.

The fair in Pittsburgh runs for three days and an estimated 5,000 blacks will be tested. Similar fairs are planned for other cities.

Senior Lead To Cowdery

Norfolk (AP) — Defending champion Ben Cowdery of Omaha shot an even-par 72 Tuesday for the first-round lead in the Nebraska Men's Senior Golf Tournament at the Norfolk Country Club.

Cowdery, competing in the 60 to 64 age bracket, had a two-stroke lead over Cecil Hatfield of Falls City in over-all competition. Hatfield's 74 was low in the 65 to 69 field.

Other leaders after 18 holes in the 54-hole competition included P. M. Anderson of Omaha, 75 in the 50 to 54 group; Maurice Olson of Omaha, 76 in the 55 to 59 group, and Clarence Isaacson of Norfolk, 81 in the 70 to 74 division.

Carl Bolt of Schuyler with a 101 was three strokes better than C. H. Hosler of Fullerton in the 75 and over group, in which they were the only competitors.

Frank Wanek of Gordon, who shot an 83 in the 50 to 54 bracket, used a four-iron to score a hole in one on the 185-yard third hole, the third of his career.

North All-Stars Work On Steaks, Offensive Game

Wayne — A steakfry sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce was the main event of the day Tuesday at the North training camp.

Each all-star was paired with a member of the Chamber of Commerce during a picnic dinner at the city park. A session of horseback riding is planned for this afternoon.

North coach Roger Higgins of Omaha Cathedral cut the team's practice schedule back to two per day Tuesday, and set the team to work on offensive rebounding, fast breaks, and its offense.

Higgins said that the remainder of the week in preparation for Friday night's all-star contest in Lincoln would be spent on "polishing the frill parts, I guess you might say. We're going to work on a control game, out-of-bounds plays, and resume working on our press while polishing our offense. We want to concentrate on getting down our timing."

The North mentor singled out Tom Anderson of Arlington, Ken Maresh of Lincoln Northeast, and Dave Peterson of North Platte for their showings in Tuesday's sessions.

Foster Scores TKO In Third Round Win

Miami Beach (AP) — Veteran Bob Foster scored a third round technical knockout Tuesday night over Vern McIntosh, who had only gone 10 rounds once in his career.

Foster, World Boxing Council light-heavyweight champion, decked McIntosh with a short right late in the first round. But the bell prevented a knockout.

Senators Thwart A's Record Visions

. . . WIN STREAK OF ROAD GAMES SPOILED AFTER 12 STRAIGHT

By Associated Press

Heavy stickwork by Don Mincher and towering Frank Howard halted the Oakland A's four games short of the American League record of 16 straight triumphs on the road and provided the Washington Senators with an 8-1 victory Tuesday night.

Howard banged out his 21st home run of the season and Mincher drove in four runs with a homer and a single.

In other American League action, the New York Yankees swept a doubleheader 2-0 and 8-5 from the Kansas City Royals, California shaded Boston 4-3, Chicago nipped Detroit 6-5 in the opener of a doubleheader, Cleveland edged Minnesota 3-2 and Baltimore upended Milwaukee 3-2.

In the National League, Cincinnati defeated St. Louis 5-3, Atlanta downed Chicago 5-4 and Houston overpowered Pittsburgh 6-5.

Danny Cater and Thurmon Munson singled home runs as the Yanks clipped the Royals 2-0 in the first game.

Felipe Alou drove home Ron Swoboda with his fifth homer of the season to ignite the seventh-inning Yankee rally after the Royals had built a 4-3 lead.

Thurmon Munson then walked and Gene Michael singled, followed by Murcer's blast, his 22nd home run of the season.

Vada Pinson's leadoff homer in the eighth inning carried the Indians past the Twins and Steve Huntz clouted his first two homers of the season as the White Sox slipped past the Tigers.

A four-run first inning ignited by Jim Spencer's bases-loaded double helped the Angels to their victory over the Red Sox and Ellie Hendricks' leadoff homer in the final inning lifted the Orioles past the Brewers.

Johnny Bench rapped his 23rd homer of the season with two away in the last of the ninth to power the Reds over the Cardinals and Cesar Cedeno touched off a five-run seventh stanza with a two-run single as the Astros dumped the Pirates. Pinch-hitter Zoilo Versalles smacked a home run over the left field wall in the ninth, giving the Braves their triumph over the Cubs.

Steve Huntz hit a pair of home runs including a three-run, game-winning shot in the eighth inning of the opener, and doubled and scored what proved to be the winning run in the second game, sparking the Chicago White Sox to a 6-5, 4-1 doubleheader sweep over Detroit.

Claude Osteen hurled a three-hitter and also doubled and singled, leading Los Angeles to a 4-0 victory over New York.

Ernie McAnally pitched a four-hitter and started a four-run Montreal rally with a single as the Expos walloped San Diego 11-0 Tuesday night in a game spiced by a brawl involving Ron Hunt.

Gaylord Perry pitched a seven-hitter for his seventh victory in eight decisions as the San Francisco Giants beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5-1 and maintained their 6½ game lead over Los Angeles in the National League West.

South Puts On Final Touches For Saturday

Crete (AP) — The South Shrine football players were occupied with offensive and defensive play-polishing activities Tuesday as Coach Ken Parish let up on contact work in preparation for Saturday's game in Lincoln.

They were "pretty good" workouts, Parish said, and added that the offense is "about ready." He said he was unable yet to list tentative starters, pending condition reports on some of his injured players.

Parish said contact work probably would come to an end today.

The coach said Reg Wagner, middle guard from Lincoln Northeast, had been sent home with an injury and definitely will not play Saturday.

North Has Bad Day In Lincoln

Fremont (AP) — Coach Dallas Dyer expressed disappointment at Tuesday's performances in practice and named a tentative North starting lineup for Saturday's Shrine football game in Lincoln.

Dyer took his squad to Lincoln for a workout on Coliseum artificial turf Tuesday. He said his recently graduated high schoolers were awed by the situation, and it was "not a very good workout." Neither were later sessions at Midland College, Dyer said.

Dyer said either Ray Burgess of Arlington or Mike Pirtle of Creighton Prep would start at quarterback. Other backs probably will be Ron Loewenstein of Grand Island, Ritch Bahe of Fremont and Gary Schmidt of Grand Island Catholic.

Offensive linemen will include Larry Honke of Columbus Scotus and Kim Thomas of Pierce at tackle, Tim McGuire of Creighton Prep and Scott Warner of Gering at guard, and center Ken Janssen of Gordon.

As tentative defensive line starters, Dyer listed Mike Kelley of Blair and John McDermott of Omaha Benson, Charles Chevalier of Omaha Rummel or Dick Peetz of Sidney and Bob Vering of Fremont Bergan and Tom Vegt of Fremont.

Tentative linebackers are Ed Yeutter of Lexington and Tom Theirolf of rFemont Bergan. The probable defensive backs are Glen Gumb of Fremont, George Kyros of Grand Island, Tom Zimmerman of Columbus and Bob Meyer of Scribner.

Halfback Jim Wingender of Creighton Prep and linebacker Bob Peterson of Ord, both injured, were on the doubtful list for the annual charity game.

Antelope List In Panhandle Stays Level

Antelope numbers in the Panhandle, Nebraska's primary pronghorn range, are at about the same level as last year, according to an aerial survey just completed by Game and Parks Commission biologists.

Following 13 days of flying, the biologists estimated the Panhandle's antelope population at about 3,850, just 4 percent under last year's figures. Sand Hills antelope units were not included in the survey, because pronghorns there are less numerous and not as well distributed.

Data on the four Panhandle management units include: Box Butte, about 1,680 antelope, up 42 percent; North Sioux, 1,300, down 38 percent; Garden, 700, change, and Cheyenne, 170, up 185 percent.

The 185 percent increase in the Cheyenne Unit shows antelope there are staging a comeback from a low of about 60 animals in 1970. No permits for that unit were issued for 1971 to allow further increases in the herd.

The kid-doe ratio reflects the rate of reproduction and is considered fair to good for this year. A higher ratio, such as the 74 kids per doe spotted in 1968, is deemed excellent for Nebraska pronghorns.

Maynard Scores At York Rodeo

York (AP) — Ralph Maynard of Eagle Butte, S.D., won the saddle bronc riding event in the second annual York Rodeo that ended Tuesday night.

Maynard, recent winner of more than $1,067 in this event at Sidney, Iowa, marked a 69 in scoring and picked up $207.

The all-around cowboy title went to Red Bland, Trent, Tex., who won the calf roping event in :09.8 and pocketed $368.

The best time in steer wrestling was turned in Tuesday night by Bob Perkins of Spring Town, Tex., :03.3, good for $356.

Bareback riding winner with 66 points Jay Himes of Beulah, Colo. His check came to $254. Doug Wilson of Sidney, Neb., and Bob Currie of Tarklo, Mo., tied for first in bull riding with 68 points, each winning $264.

Beverly Nutter of Thedford, won the second go-round in barrel racing with a :17.7 time, good for $41.

Average winner in this event was JoAnn Stevens of Polk, Neb., with :35.4 seconds in two runs, worth $1.

Associate Director Of St. Elizabeth Named

SISTER BARBARA ANN

Named To St. E's

A former provincial of the Sisters of St. Francis of Colorado Springs has been named associate director of St. Elizabeth Health Center in Lincoln.

Executive Director Jack Stiles of St. E's announced the appointment Tuesday of Sister M. Barbara Ann Braun, who replaces Sister M. Antonette Miskol as associate director.

Sister Antonette has been named associate director of shared management and development services for the Sisters of St. Francis, sponsoring corporation of St. Elizabeth one of eight hospitals operated or sponsored by the order.

Sister Antonette is former administrator of the Lincoln hospital, serving as chief executive until Stiles was named executive director. Her office will be in Colorado Springs.

Sister Barbara Ann holds a bachelor's degree in nursing education and a master's degree in hospital administration.

She has been a supervisor and clinical instructor in materntiy nursing and pediatric nursing, and a coordinator of maternal and child health nursing at St. Joseph Hospital in Omaha. And she is a former director of the St. Francis Hospital School of Nursing in Grand Island.

Her professional activities include serving as secretary and treasurer of the Federation of Franciscan Sisters of the United States.

4th Floor Galley Equipped By St. Elizabeth Auxiliary

Patients on the east end of St. Elizabeth Health Center's fourth floor will get meals that are as hot as any other patients in the building, thanks to the hospital auxiliary.

A $10,000 gift from the auxiliary has financed completion of an additional food service "galley" on the east end of the floor, bringing it up to par with the other two patient floors, each of which has two such facilities.

Executive Director Jack Stiles said when the building was designed the room was built, but the galley was not equipped, perhaps because of the newborn care area on that end of the loor.

"We subsequently decided we needed the extra galley," Stiles said Tuesday at a luncheon with auxiliary members.

The galleys on each floor serve as final preparation areas for foods which are prepared in the hospital's kitchen on the first floor.

Entrees are flash frozen after preparation, transported via automatic cart to the galleys and then cooked to completion in the microwave ovens on the patient floors.

The new galley will cut down the time and distance between preparation of the food in the new galley and patients, since the patients will now be closer to the final food preparation area.

Integration Sought

New York (UPI) —An experimental early childhood education class established to remove the barriers of integration will be held at Illinois State University. Enrollment will place 10 pupils from middle class backgrounds with five pupils from disadvantaged families in an effort to eliminate pupil isolation at the beginning of their formal education.

100 Backers Of Chambers Attend Meet

Omaha (AP) — About 100 supporters of Eddie Chambers turned out for a meeting of the Omaha School Board.

Chambers is the former Omaha Technical Junior High School counselor whose contract was not renewed by school authorities. The school board upheld the action at a closed meeting.

Half of those attending Monday night had to stand through the routine 90-minute meeting before being invited to speak.

George Crenshaw, a director of services for Greater Omaha Community Action, said the board should meet in a larger place "to accommodate the growing number of people becoming interested in school board actions."

Another speaker, Mrs. Charlotte Shropshire, accused School Superintendent Owen Knutzen of having a grudge against State Sen. Ernest Chambers, a brother of Eddie Chambers.

Some of those attending carried placards. One of them read, "Now Is the Time to Lose Hart," referring to School Board President Joseph M. Hart Jr. who presided at the meeting.

Jordan Silent About Getting 65 U.S. Jets

By United Press International

Jordan maintained silence Tuesday on reports that 65 U.S.-made F104 jet fighter-bombers were flown in secretly to bolster King Hussein's air force and that U.S. transport planes had ferried in cargoes of military supplies in recent weeks.

There was no official reaction thus far from Israel or other Arab states to the reports from western diplomatic sources in Beirut on Monday.

The border between Jordan and Syria, scene of three days of clashes between the armies of the two Arab nations last week, remained quiet for the fourth consecutive day. Both sides were reported to have massed troops and armor along the frontier since the fighting flared last Wednesday.

WELCOME TO KANSAS' THIRD LARGEST FAIR

Flordia Miss Trying Out Forward Passes

. . . COULDN'T MAKE CHEERLEADING SQUAD

Hollywood, Fla. (AP) —Jan Coelho didn't make cheerleader so the pretty high school senior spent the summer catching forward passes and showed up at football tryouts. She wants to be quarterback.

Playing it straight, Hollywood Hills High School football coach Dick Saltrick politely accepted her physical examination and insurance forms. The 90 male gridders in formation for calisthenics moved over to make room for the 6-foot girl in a tailored white blouse, navy shorts and sneakers.

Miss Coelho, 17-year-old editor of the high school newspaper, did the prescribed jumping jacks, pushups, situps and sprints. Spartan fans who witnessed the first day of practice said the long-haired brownette kept up with the best of them.

"I've never been so tired in my life," the panting Miss Coelho said later Monday as she wiped sweat from her eyes.

"My neck is killing me. Any girl who would go out for football has to be out of her mind." Does that mean she's quitting?

"Heck no!" came the emphatic reply. "I don't know how long Coach Saltrick will put up with me but you can bet I'll be out at practice at 8 a.m. sharp every morning"

She kept her word and was back at the practice field Tuesday morning

"I know I'm at a disadvantage —and that has nothing to do with being a girl," the 157-pounder said. "I'm disadvantaged because of my lack of experience. If I had started playing football as a freshman I think I might be able to compete with some of the boys.

"But I've been practicing throwing and catching passes this summer and I think I'm in good shape. I don't know the plays or formations yet but I'm learning. And the players are being just beautiful to me

"Oh, they've kidded me about needing a haircut and sharing the locker room but it's all in fun and some have really tried to show me how to do things. I think they're genuinely interested in me as a football player," the shapely rookie said.

The eldest of three sisters and two brothers, Miss Coelho's participation in high school football wouldn't have been permitted last year under Florida High School Activities Association Rules. But this summer the rules were changed to delete a section which banned girls from high school gridirons, basketball courts and baseball diamonds.

"Frankly, I was reluctant to give her a tryout but this week of practice is spent in conditioning and we don't have any body contact," Saltrick said. "Besides, I remember she baked brownies for the players last season so I said 'what the heck.' "

—PLUS EIGHT STRAIGHT—

Twins' Perry Loses Cy Young Touch

Minneapolis-St. Paul (AP) — Bill Rigney came up with a line that got his ace right-hander, Jim Perry, fired up early this season.

"You're not looking much like Cy Young," Rigney told the Minnesota Twins' pitcher during one visit to the mound.

Perry worked himself out of the jam and then ran his record to 12-6 by June 30. It looked like the 34-year-old pitcher was well on his way to his third straight 20-victory season.

But now the mention of Cy Young just points up what kind of year the Twins and Perry are suffering through.

Perry, winner of the Cy Young Award as the outstanding pitcher in the American League for his 1970 record of 24-12, has not won a game since June 30. He has lost eight straight while his record has dropped to 12-14.

"He doesn't appear to be pitching differently," Rigney said. "If you check the statistics, you can see base on balls have hurt him. And there's the other things — home runs. One compounds the other."

Perry had walked 83 men and grooved 27 home runs through his last start Sunday, a 7 5 loss to Detroit. Through all of last year, Perry walked 57 and gave up 20 homers

In addition, while the Twins have deteriorated into a fifth place team in the West division after winning two straight years, their bullpen has not been functioning well.

Minnesota relievers have posted only one save since June 30, 18 all season. Perry has six complete games. Last year he went the distance 13 times.

"I feel I'm pitching as well as I did last year. I've had some hard luck," Perry said. "It seems I'm always pitching on defense. We're either behind or the score is tied. I'd like to pitch offensively for a change. I'm not blaming my teammates. It's just been that kind of year."

Rigney said, "he had a hard session early in the year, looked like he was being too careful. But he got back to challenging the hitters and started winning again."

Rigney also agreed that Perry has had some hard luck, noting one game against Boston where his pitcher hurled eleven shutout innings with the Twins losing in the 13th.

"I'll throw a pitch," said Perry, "that I think is a good one. But they'll hit it or it's a ball. I'll throw a pitch I think they got to hit on the ground and they hit it up in the air.

"The important thing is that I'm healthy and I know I'm giving a hundred per cent. I'm just going to keep plugging and try to pick up four or five straight."

NFL Cardinals Need New Pep In Ground Game

Lake Forest, Ill (AP) — Coach Bob Hollway took a long look Tuesday at the St Louis Cardinals running game as the Big Red hustled through a two-hour workout.

The Cardinals could gain only 78 yards on the ground in Saturday's 16-14 preseason victory over Houston. MacArthur Lane led the Big Red rushers with 35 yards in 14 carries.

In contrast, quarterback Jim Hart completed 16 of 31 passes for 251 yards in the win over the Oilers.

"I feel we need improvement in our running game," Hollway said. "We've put a lot of effort into it in the last two days and added some new plays."

Pete Beathard is scheduled to start at quarterback when St. Louis visits Washington Saturday night.

Trevino Named Hickok Nominee For July Feats

New York (AP) — Golfer Lee Trevino is the July winner in the race for the 22nd annual Hickok Professional Athlete of the Year Award, it was announced Tuesday

Trevino gained his second straight monthly victory on the strength of his triumph in the British Open Other monthly winners have been tennis player Rod Laver, golfer Jack Nicklaus, heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, basketball star Lew Alcindor and auto race driver Al Unser.

Cornhusker Club Finishes First At Pikes Peak

The Cornhusker Track Club team fared well in the last two weeks in long distance events in Colorado.

Sunday, the team, comprised of Lincoln's Tom Snyder and Ken Katzer, Katzer's brother Dennis of Naper, and Lou Fritz, former Peru standout, won the Pikes Peak Marathon when Ken Katzer finished 2nd, Fritz 11th, Dennis Katzer 12th and Snyder 13th among 165 that started the race.

The previous weekend the same team finished third at Littleton in the National AAU 15-kilometers race.

Orioles Will Tour Japanese Circuit

Tokyo (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles will arrive in Japan Oct. 21 for a series of 18 games against Japanese teams, it was announced Tuesday.

The Orioles will play mainly the Tokyo Yomiuri Giants, champions of the Japan World Series in 1970. The Orioles will be the 10th American major league team to visit Japan since 1945.

ABA's 5th Year To Start Oct. 13

New York (AP) — The American Basketball Association opens its fifth season on Wednesday, Oct. 13, with the defending champion Utah Stars hosting the Denver Rockets at Salt Lake City.

Six leading college players of last season will make their pro debut in the ABA during the first week of the regular season that ends March 29.

Club Uniforms Stolen From Legion Midgets

Adrian Fiala, coach of the Lincoln KOLN & KGIN-TV American Legion Midget baseball team, said Tuesday that his team's white jerseys and blue socks were stolen from his car sometime between 11:30 p.m. Monday and 6 a.m. Tuesday.

Fiala, who has contacted the Lincoln Police Department, urges anyone having information in connection with the theft to contact either him or the police. A reward will be offered.

Eagles Jam Stadium, Plus Traffic, Etc.

. . . PRO EXHIBITION THRONG BECOMES MIXED BLESSING

Philadelphia (AP) — Philadelphia built a big $50 million 65,358-seat stadium and found Monday night, when it was filled for the first time, it couldn't get people in and out without chaos.

"We had problems," said Bud Vye, stadium superviser in what has to be an understatement.

Many fans missed the entire first half of the Philadelphia Eagles-Buffalo Bills National Football League exhibition game, bottled up in traffic.

Other thousands were trapped an hour and longer in parking lots, on bumper-to-bumper highways, and bridges clogged wall-to-wall with autos after the Eagles racked up a slick 34-28 victory before the sellout, cheering crowd.

The smart folks hiked it for a couple of miles to the nearest subway to get out of the mammoth traffic jam.

The official attendance was 65,358 — accounting for every seat — but there were hundreds of others who stood. They crashed the gates and fences to get in after waiting futiley in lines for several hours for tickets that weren't there.

"They tell me they turned away around 8,000," Vye said. Some harrassed cops on duty thought it was much more.

Police Commissioner Joseph F. O'Neill blamed the snafu on too many cars for too few parking spaces, inconsiderate motorists and street construction that forced detours.

"This is a beautiful stadium, if you manage to get through traffic to see it," said Mondie Novelli, 43, of suburban Wayne who arrived an hour late, just in time to catch the second half.

"First there was two hours on the Schuylkill Expressway, and then I spent 35 minutes in line at the will call office to pick up my tickets.

"Rough? I think some of the fans had a rougher time fighting through the traffic than our running backs did fighting through the Buffalo line."

Veterans Stadium opened this spring for Philadelphia Phillies' baseball, a year later than expected. The National League club has had only one sellout, on opening day, when 55,000 filled the place but everything was orderly. For football 10,000 more seats are rolled out onto the field.

Aid To Parochial Schools Defended

The New York Times

New York — Addressing an audience that included President Nixon, Terence Cardinal Cooke charged here Tuesday night that the denial of government aid to parochial schools is "unreasonable and discriminatory" and deprives Catholic parents of fundamental constitutional rights.

The Cardinal's speech, prepared for delivery at a Knights of Columbus banquet at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, was the first major response by a high-ranking member of the American Roman Catholic hierarchy to the recent Supreme Court decision on aid to parochial schools.

On June 28 the high court ruled in an 8-to-1 decision that state programs that reimburse Catholic and other parochial schools for instruction in nonreligious subjects are unconstitutional.

In his address Cardinal Cooke said that he was convinced that "despite the recent Supreme court decision, practical means can be found and will be found to assist the parents of nonpublic school children."

"As Catholic citizens of these United States, we call upon our fellow Americans for justice," he declared. "We call upon them not only for our constitutional rights but also for the governmental support which will enable our parents to exercise those rights."

Cardinal Cooke shared the dias with Nixon at the States Dinner of the 89th annual meeting of the Supreme Council of the Knights of Columbus. Some 2,500 delegates and others are here for the convention of the Catholic fraternal order, which has 1.2 million members and sponsors programs to aid orphans, the handicapped, the aged and others.

In his talk Cardinal Cooke, whose archdioces of New York is experiencing mounting deficits in its parochial school system, noted that Catholic elementary and high schools in this country educate 4.5 million children. He estimated that this means "an annual saving of a billion dollars a year to the American taxpayer."

The cardinal went on to state, however, that the greatest contributions of parochial schools are not financial but the fostering of a "true and worthwhile pluralism" and the providing of a large segment of the American population with a "spirit that goes beyond the material."

The cardinal concluded on an optimistic note, saying he believed that "whatever satisfactory solution is ultimately achieved by calm and cool minds, the great majority of our countrymen will respect and approve the efforts of their fellow Americans to preserve their right to freedom of choice in education."

Bank Of Lincoln Hearing Planned

A public hearing will be held at 9:30 a.m., Oct. 5, in the Department of Banking, 521 So. 14th, on the proposed charter of the Bank of Lincoln, 70th and O.

A hearing had previously been set for July 27, but was canceled.

Police Union Suit Filed To Force Fremont Action

A suit was filed with the State Court of Industrial Relations Tuesday, in an attempt to get the City of Fremont to recognize the International Brotherhood of Police Officers as a bargaining agent.

The suit was filed by the union, Local 132, asking that the court either order the city to recognize the union, or that the city allow an election to be held to decide the issue.

The union said the city so far has refused to either recognize the union or authorize an election to determine whether the union should represent the police department employes for collective bargaining purposes.

Italian Flag Knocked

Rome (AP) — A group of deputies want the red, white and green Italian flag changed. They say it looks too much like other countries' flags and is even identical to Mexico's.

Court Asked To Rule On LES Election

Attorneys for both the Lincoln Electric System and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers asked the State Court of Industrial Relations for a speedy decision on whether 80% of the system's employes must vote for union representation election to be valid.

LES maintains that before an election can be held, 50% of the employs must favor holding an election.

Also, LES contends 80% of its 209 employes must vote in favor of union representation.

Attorney David Weinberger of Omaha, representing the union, said only a simple majority need vote in favor of union representation for the election to be valid.

Columbus Pair Bound Over On Assault Charges

Columbus (AP) — Two men bound over to district court for trial on two charges of assault were free on $1,500 bond on each count Tuesday.

They are Jeffrey Rowlands and Jerry Kush, both 21 of Columbus. They were charged with two counts of felonious assault to do great bodily injury in connection with cases involving Robert Phundheller and Dallas Church.

Phundheller allegedly was assaulted the morning of Aug. 1 and Church that evening. Phundheller, of Phoenix, Ariz., was found Aug. 3 about a mile from the scene of the alleged assault, the victim of drowning. Phundheller had been playing with a band at a Columbus night club.

Officers said Church allegedly was assaulted at a drive-in restaurant.

McKelvey Fined, Put On Probation

Omaha (AP) — John I. McKelvey, 45, the postmaster at Falls City, was fined $100 in the Douglas County District Court for indecent exposure.

District Judge Patrick W. Lynch also placed him on one year's probation.

Nebraska Organized Labor Lists $19,188 Given To 3 '70 Democrats

Washington — Three 1970 Democratic candidates in Nebraska received a total of $19,188 from organized labor for their campaigns, according to a survey by Americans for Constitutional Action.

The national conservative political action committee said organized labor contributed more than $4 million to Senate, House and gubernatorial candidates during 1969-70.

Democrats received $4,153,747 and Republicans received $143,551, ACA said.

The figures "do not at all reflect the unions' total financial effort in the campaigns," ACA noted. "They are only those recorded as required by law."

Forty-four labor organizations recorded contributions nationally, according to ACA.

In Nebraska, Gov. J. James Exon received $6,150 from organized labor, ACA said.

Democratic senatorial nominee Frank Morrison received $5,250 and Second District congressional nominee John Hlavacek of Omaha received $7,788.

State Air Guard Unit Inspected, Gets Top Rating

A 31-man 12th Air Force inspection team from Bergstrom Air Force Base, Tex., has confirmed the Nebraska Air National Guard's C-1 operational readiness rating.

The team, headed by Col. B. W. Watts, conducted a no-notice operational readiness inspection of the 155 Tactical Reconnaissance Group (TAC) last weekend and confirmed that the unit meets the standards required for the rating which denotes the Air Force's highest state of readiness.

No-notice operational readiness inspections of Air National Guard units were begun only about a month ago.

Associate Director Of St. Elizabeth Named

SISTER BARBARA ANN

Named To St. E's

A former provincial of the Sisters of St. Francis of Colorado Springs has been named associate director of St. Elizabeth Health Center in Lincoln.

Executive Director Jack Stiles of St. E's announced the appointment Tuesday of Sister M. Barbara Ann Braun, who replaces Sister M. Antonette Miskol as associate director.

Sister Antonette has been named associate director of shared management and development services for the Sisters of St. Francis, sponsoring corporation of St. Elizabeth one of eight hospitals operated or sponsored by the order.

Sister Antonette is former administrator of the Lincoln hospital, serving as chief executive until Stiles was named executive director. Her office will be in Colorado Springs.

Sister Barbara Ann holds a bachelor's degree in nursing education and a master's degree in hospital administration.

She has been a supervisor and clinical instructor in maternity nursing and pediatric nursing, and a coordinator of maternal and child health nursing at St. Joseph Hospital in Omaha. And she is a former director of the St. Francis Hospital School of Nursing in Grand Island.

Her professional activities include serving as secretary and treasurer of the Federation of Franciscan Sisters of the United States.

4th Floor Galley Equipped By St. Elizabeth Auxiliary

Patients on the east end of St. Elizabeth Health Center's fourth floor will get meals that are as hot as any other patients in the building, thanks to the hospital auxiliary.

A $10,000 gift from the auxiliary has financed completion of an additional food service "galley" on the east end of the floor, bringing it up to par with the other two patient floors, each of which has two such facilities.

Executive Director Jack Stiles said when the building was designed the room was built, but the galley was not equipped, perhaps because of the newborn care area on that end of the loor.

"We subsequently decided we needed the extra galley," Stiles said Tuesday at a luncheon with auxiliary members.

The galleys on each floor serve as final preparation areas for foods which are prepared in the hospital's kitchen on the first floor.

Entrees are flash frozen after preparation, transported via automatic cart to the galleys and then cooked to completion in the microwave ovens on the patient floors.

The new galley will cut down the time and distance between preparation of the food in the new galley and patients, since the patients will now be closer to the final food preparation area.

Integration Sought

New York (UPI) —An experimental early childhood education class established to remove the barriers of integration will be held at Illinois State University. Enrollment will place 10 pupils from middle class backgrounds with five pupils from disadvantaged families in an effort to eliminate pupil isolation at the beginning of their formal education.

100 Backers Of Chambers Attend Meet

Omaha (AP) — About 100 supporters of Eddie Chambers turned out for a meeting of the Omaha School Board.

Chambers is the former Omaha Technical Junior High School counselor whose contract was not renewed by school authorities. The school board upheld the action at a closed meeting.

Half of those attending Monday night had to stand through the routine 90-minute meeting before being invited to speak.

George Crenshaw, a director of services for Greater Omaha Community Action, said the board should meet in a larger place "to accommodate the growing number of people becoming interested in school board actions."

Another speaker, Mrs. Charlotte Shropshire, accused School Superintendent Owen Knutzen of having a grudge against State Sen. Ernest Chambers, a brother of Eddie Chambers.

Some of those attending carried placards. One of them read, "Now Is the Time to Lose Hart," referring to School Board President Joseph M. Hart Jr. who presided at the meeting.

Jordan Silent About Getting 65 U.S. Jets

By United Press International

Jordan maintained silence Tuesday on reports that 65 U.S.-made F104 jet fighter-bombers were flown in secretly to bolster King Hussein's air force and that U.S. transport planes had ferried in cargoes of military supplies in recent weeks.

There was no official reaction thus far from Israel or other Arab states to the reports from western diplomatic sources in Beirut on Monday.

The border between Jordan and Syria, scene of three days of clashes between the armies of the two Arab nations last week, remained quiet for the fourth consecutive day. Both side, were reported to have massed troops and armor along the frontier since the fighting flared last Wednesday.

Auto Issues Pace Stock Market Rise

New York (AP) — Stock market prices Tuesday soared for their second straight day, paced by the auto issues.

Trading was the third heaviest in New York Stock Exchange history. Big Board volume totaled 26.79 million shares. On Monday, a record 31.73 million shares changed hands.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 10.95 to 899.90, bringing the rise over the past two days to nearly 43 points.

The strong upturn occurred in the face of heavy profit taking which caused prices to sag in early trading.

However, the market recovered its momentum about midday when General Motors opened with a whopping gain. It had not traded at all Monday due to a heavy influx of orders. The giant automaker closed up 9 points at 85¾.

Chrysler tacked on 2 to 32¾, Ford rose 6 to 69, and American Motors, the Big Board's most-active stock, gained 2 to 8¾. The motors were the four most heavily traded Big Board stocks, accounting for sizeable block trades.

The autos are expected to be among the major beneficiaries of President Nixon's new economic policies. Nixon announced a 10% surcharge on imports and proposed that the auto excise tax be ended. He also took steps to defend the dollar and ordered a 90-day wage-price freeze.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 common stocks rose 0.60 to 55.27.

Of the 1,685 stocks traded on the Big Board, 932 advanced and 536 declined. There were 76 new highs and 29 new lows.

The Associated Press 60-stock average jumped 3.4 to 321.4, with industrials up 7.6, rails up 2.3, and utilities off 1.2.

Mail order-retail and oils were mixed. Utilities and metals were lower. Other categories were up.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was up 1.23 at 99.99.

There were 196 blocks traded on the Big Board, matching Monday's record.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price change index gained 0.16 to 25.29. Of the 1,189 stocks traded, 622 advanced and 376 declined. Volume totaled 6.49 million shares, down from the 8.61 million shares traded Monday.

Corporate bonds were slightly higher.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Children Not Responsible For Parents' Liabilities

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

MERRYLE RUKEYSER
Automobile Accident

A woman in Butler, N.J. asks whether her children could be held responsible for her liability resulting from her automobile accident if the judgment exceeded the limits on her insurance policy.

I do not give legal advice. An attorney is expected to be familiar with the variables in each of the 50 states in which he operates.

In general a parent is responsible for the acts of minor children, but the principle does not operate in reverse. Accordingly, Mama, in not wanting to be a burden to her grown children, can relax. However, she would be well advised to confer with her insurance broker as to the cost of raising limits on her own liability insurance.

Q. — A 44-year-old professional man in Sioux City, Iowa, with a wife and three sons, writes: "I would like to receive your advice as to the best way to invest savings for the care of my children and our retirement. I realize this is hard to answer, but I certainly would appreciate your personal opinion on this matter. I have little time for investigating investments."

A.—There are better tools available these days for the unsophisticated investor. "Financial packages of convenience" include professionally supervised, automatically diversified mutual funds, closed end investment companies, common trust funds operated by banking institutions, individual investment counselling, revocable living trusts, and all varieties of custodial services. The professional acts for the "account and risk" of the customer. In investment there is no riskless adventure. Only charlatans and liars claim a lifetime record free of mistakes of judgment. I am mailing a list of no-load mutual funds and closed-end investment companies. Some of the latter,which sell at a discount below net asset value are a means of acquiring standard securities indirectly at less than the open market. On Mondays the Wall Street Journal lists closed-end funds, and shows the discount or premium at which each is selling.

Even though relying on specialists, he should do preliminary reading on investments at his library so that he can understand the language of his advisers.

Before investing, a family head should have cash reserves of at least $5,000, and should elect a high limit major medical policy. A father also needs to insure his earned income through life insurance. A self employed person can get tax deferral on up to $2,500 a year or 10% of his income under the Keogh Plan.

Q.—A Fairmont, Minn. reader writes: "I am looking for growth without substantial risk which I cannot afford." He has $20,000 in three Keystone funds and T. Rowe Price Growth and $35,000 in common stocks and bonds.

A.—It is wishful thinking to assume that any portfolio of investments is free of hazard. In a changing world, frequent review of holdings with expert advice is indicated. After seven months in the Arthur Lipper ratings, Keystone B-2 ranked 217th among some 517 mutual funds thus far this year and 416th for the past 12 months: Keystone S-1 ranked 172nd and 216th for the 12 months; and Keystone S-4 ranked 72nd this year and 59th for the 12 months. T. Rowe Price Growth stood 62nd thus far this year and 45th for the year to date.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with stamped, self addressed envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Others, to the extent time permits, will be handled by mail.)

Aid To Parochial Schools Defended

©The New York Times

New York — Addressing an audience that included President Nixon, Terence Cardinal Cooke charged here Tuesday night that the denial of government aid to parochial schools is "unreasonable and discriminatory" and deprives Catholic parents of fundamental constitutional rights

The Cardinal's speech, prepared for delivery at a Knights of Columbus banquet at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, was the first major response by a high-ranking member of the American Roman Catholic hierarchy to the recent Supreme Court decision on aid to parochial schools.

On June 28 the high court ruled in an 8-to-1 decision that state programs that reimburse Catholic and other parochial schools for instruction in nonreligious subjects are unconstitutional.

In his address Cardinal Cooke said that he was convinced that "despite the recent Supreme court decision, practical means can be found and will be found to assist the parents of nonpublic school children."

"As Catholic citizens of these United States, we call upon our fellow Americans for justice," he declared. "We call upon them not only for our constitutional rights but also for the governmental support which will enable our parents to exercise those rights."

Cardinal Cooke shared the dias with Nixon at the States Dinner of the 89th annual meeting of the Supreme Council of the Knights of Columbus Some 2,500 delegates and others are here for the convention of the Catholic fraternal order, which has 1 2 million members and sponsors programs to aid orphans, the handicapped, the aged and others.

In his talk Cardinal Cooke, whose archdioces of New York is experiencing mounting deficits in its parochial school system. noted that Catholic elementary and high schools in this country educate 4 5 million children. He estimated that this means "an annual saving of a billion dollars a year to the American taxpayer"

The cardinal went on to state, however, that the greatest contributions of parochial schools are not financial but the fostering of a "true and worthwhile pluralism" and the providing of a large segment of the American population with a "spirit that goes beyond the material."

The cardinal concluded on an optimistic note, saying he believed that "whatever satisfactory solution is ultimately achieved by calm and cool minds, the great majority of our countrymen will respect and approve the efforts of their fellow Americans to preserve their right to freedom of choice in education"

Police Union Suit Filed To Force Fremont Action

A suit was filed with the State Court of Industrial Relations Tuesday, in an attempt to get the City of Fremont to recognize the International Brotherhood of Police Officers as a bargaining agent

The suit was filed by the union, Local 132, asking that the court either order the city to recognize the union, or that the city allow an election to be held to decide the issue

The union said the city so far has refused to either recognize the union or authorize an election to determine whether the union should represent the police department employes for collective bargaining purposes

Italian Flag Knocked

Rome (AP) — A group of deputies want the red, white and green Italian flag changed They say it looks too much like other countries' flags and is even identical to Mexico s

Court Asked To Rule On LES Election

Attorneys for both the Lincoln Electric System and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers asked the State Court of Industrial Relations for a speedy decision on whether 80% of the system's employes must vote for union representation election to be valid.

LES maintains that before an election can be held, 50% of the employs must favor holding an election

Also, LES contends 80% of its 209 employes must vote in favor of union representation.

Attorney David Weinberger of Omaha, representing the union, said only a simple majority need vote in favor of union representation for the election to be valid

They are Jeffrey Rowlands and Jerry Kush, both 21 of Columbus They were charged with two counts of felonious assault to do great bodily injury in connection with cases involving Robert Phundheller and Dallas Church.

Phundheller allegedly was assaulted the morning of Aug 1 and Church that evening Phundheller, of Phoenix. Ariz , was found Aug 3 about a mile from the scene of the alleged assault, the victim of drowning Phundheller had been playing with a band at a Columbus night club

Officers said Church allegedly was assaulted at a drive-in restaurant

McKelvey Fined, Put On Probation

Omaha (AP) — John I McKelvey 45, the postmaster at Falls City, was fined $100 in the Douglas County District Court for indecent exposure.

District Judge Patrick W Lynch also placed him on one year's probation

Nebraska Organized Labor Lists $19,188 Given To 3 '70 Democrats

Washington — Three 1970 Democratic candidates in Nebraska received a total of $19,188 from organized labor for their campaigns, according to a survey by Americans for Constitutional Action

The national conservative political action committee said organized labor contributed more than $4 million to Senate, House and gubernatorial candidates during 1969-70.

Democrats received $4,153,747 and Republicans received $143,551, ACA said

The figures "do not at all reflect the unions' total financial effort in the campaigns," ACA noted "They are only those recorded as required by law."

Forty-four labor organizations recorded contributions nationally, according to ACA.

In Nebraska, Gov. J. James Exon received $6,150 from organized labor, ACA said.

Democratic senatorial nominee Frank Morrison received $5,250 and Second District congressional nominee John Hlavacek of Omaha received $7,788

State Air Guard Unit Inspected, Gets Top Rating

A 31-man 12th Air Force inspection team from Bergstrom Air Force Base, Tex , has confirmed the Nebraska Air National Guard's C-1 operational readiness rating.

The team, headed by Col. B W Watts, conducted a no-notice operational readiness inspection of the 155 Tactical Reconnaissance Group (TAC) last weekend and confirmed that the unit meets the standards required for the rating which denotes the Air Force's highest state of readiness

No-notice operational readiness inspections of Air National Guard units were begun only about a month ago

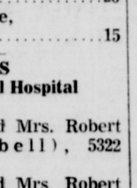
Consultant



More about Unilateral loss and CROS, or Contralateral Routing of Signals.

Heretofore, a possible hearing aid user has been denied simply on the basis of a quick process of elimination where would the aid be placed? . . . On the bad ear? Obviously, this is wrong because the ear is damaged beyond the point where a hearing aid would help. On the good ear? Again, this is wrong because it is too good to require amplified sound. Thus, the usual approach is to recommend a course in lip reading and the patient is sent home. He is rarely sent to the hearing aid dealer.

MAICO has worked out something of real help. Call 432-1967 or write me for an appointment at 713 Sharp Bldg., Lincoln, Nebr.

NU To Recognize Completion Of CLEP Exam

The College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln will now recognize successful completion of the College-Level Examination Program's General Examination as equivalent to earning academic credit in college.

The College-Level Examination Program (CLEP) is an activity of the College Entrance Examination Board. It is designed to measure knowledge acquired by a person through nontraditional methods of study as well as a formal college curriculum.

The General Examination, for which credit will now be given, includes five separate multiple-choice tests in the areas of English composition, humanities, mathematics, natural sciences and social sciences-history.

Auto Issues Pace Stock Market Rise

New York (AP) — Stock market prices Tuesday soared for their second straight day, paced by the auto issues.

Trading was the third heaviest in New York Stock Exchange history. Big Board volume totaled 26.79 million shares. On Monday, a record 31.73 million shares changed hands.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 10.95 to 899.90, bringing the rise over the past two days to nearly 43 points.

The strong upturn occurred in the face of heavy profit taking which caused prices to sag in early trading.

However, the market recovered its momentum about midday when General Motors opened with a whopping gain. It had not traded at all Monday due to a heavy influx of orders. The giant automaker closed up 9 points at 85¾.

Chrysler tacked on 2 to 32¾, Ford rose 6 to 69, and American Motors, the Big Board's most-active stock, gained 2 to 8¾. The motors were the four most heavily traded Big Board stocks, accounting for sizeable block trades.

The autos are expected to be among the major beneficiaries of President Nixon's new economic policies. Nixon announced a 10% surcharge on imports and proposed that the auto excise tax be ended. He also took steps to defend the dollar and ordered a 90-day wage-price freeze.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 common stocks rose 0.60 to 55.27.

Of the 1,685 stocks traded on the Big Board, 932 advanced and 536 declined. There were 76 new highs and 29 new lows.

The Associated Press 60-stock average jumped 3.4 to 321.4, with industrials up 7.6, rails up 2.3, and utilities off 1.2.

Mail order-retail and oils were mixed. Utilities and metals were lower. Other categories were up.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was up 1.23 at 99.99.

There were 196 blocks traded on the Big Board, matching Monday's record.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price change index gained 0.16 to 25.29. Of the 1,189 stocks traded, 622 advanced and 376 declined. Volume totaled 6.49 million shares, down from the 8.61 million shares traded Monday.

Corporate bonds were slightly higher.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Children Not Responsible For Parents' Liabilities

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

MERRYLE RUKEYSER
Automobile Accident

A woman in Butler, N.J. asks whether her children could be held responsible for her liability resulting from her automobile accident if the judgment exceeded the limits on her insurance policy.

I do not give legal advice. An attorney is expected to be familiar with the variables in each of the 50 states in which he operates.

In general a parent is responsible for the acts of minor children, but the principle does not operate in reverse. Accordingly, Mama, in not wanting to be a burden to her grown children, can relax. However, she would be well advised to confer with her insurance broker as to the cost of raising limits on her own liability insurance.

Q. — A 44-year-old professional man in Sioux City, Iowa, with a wife and three sons, writes: "I would like to receive your advice as to the best way to invest savings for the care of my children and our retirement. I realize this is hard to answer, but I certainly would appreciate your personal opinion on this matter. I have little time for investigating investments."

A.—There are better tools available these days for the unsophisticated investor. "Financial packages of convenience" include professionally supervised, automatically diversified mutual funds, closed end investment companies, common trust funds operated by banking institutions, individual investment counselling, revocable living trusts, and all varieties of custodial services. The professional acts for the "account and risk" of the customer. In investment there is no riskless adventure. Only charlatans and liars claim a lifetime record free of mistakes of judgment. I am mailing a list of no-load mutual funds and closed-end investment companies. Some of the latter,which sell at a discount below net asset value are a means of acquiring standard securities indirectly at less than the open market. On Mondays the Wall Street Journal lists closed-end funds, and shows the discount or premium at which each is selling.

Even though relying on specialists, he should do preliminary reading on investments at his library so that he can understand the language of his advisers.

Before investing, a family head should have cash reserves of at least $5,000, and should elect a high limit major medical policy. A father also needs to insure his earned income through life insurance. A self employed person can get tax deferral on up to $2,500 a year or 10% of his income under the Keogh Plan.

Q.—A Fairmont, Minn. reader writes: "I am looking for growth without substantial risk which I cannot afford." He has $20,000 in three Keystone funds and T. Rowe Price Growth and $35,000 in common stocks and bonds.

A.—It is wishful thinking to assume that any portfolio of investments is free of hazard. In a changing world, frequent review of holdings with expert advice is indicated. After seven months in the Arthur Lipper ratings, Keystone B-2 ranked 217th among some 517 mutual funds thus far this year and 416th for the past 12 months: Keystone S-1 ranked 172nd and 216th for the 12 months; and Keystone S-4 ranked 72nd this year and 59th for the 12 months. T. Rowe Price Growth stood 62nd thus far this year and 45th for the year to date.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with stamped, self addressed envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Others, to the extent time permits, will be handled by mail.)

NU To Recognize Completion Of CLEP Exam

The College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln will now recognize successful completion of the College-Level Examination Program's General Examination as equivalent to earning academic credit in college.

The College-Level Examination Program (CLEP) is an activity of the College Entrance Examination Board. It is designed to measure knowledge acquired by a person through nontraditional methods of study as well as a formal college curriculum.

The General Examination, for which credit will now be given, includes five separate multiple-choice tests in the areas of English composition, humanities, mathematics, natural sciences and social sciences-history.

Quinn Bests Studio

Hollywood (UPI) — Anthony Quinn won his battle with Universal to film most of the exteriors of his new hourlong video series, "The Man and the City," on location near Albuquerque, N.M.

But- DEAF INITELY

More about Unilateral loss and CROS, or Contralateral Routing of Signals.

Heretofore, a possible hearing aid user has been denied simply on the basis of a quick process of elimination where would the aid be placed? . . . On the bad ear? Obviously, this is wrong because the ear is damaged beyond the point where a hearing aid would help. On the good ear? Again, this is wrong because it is too good to require amplified sound. Thus, the usual approach is to recommend a course in lip reading and the patient is sent home. He is rarely sent to the hearing aid dealer.

MAICO has worked out something of real help. Call 432-1967 or write me for an appointment at 713 Sharp Bldg., Lincoln, Nebr.

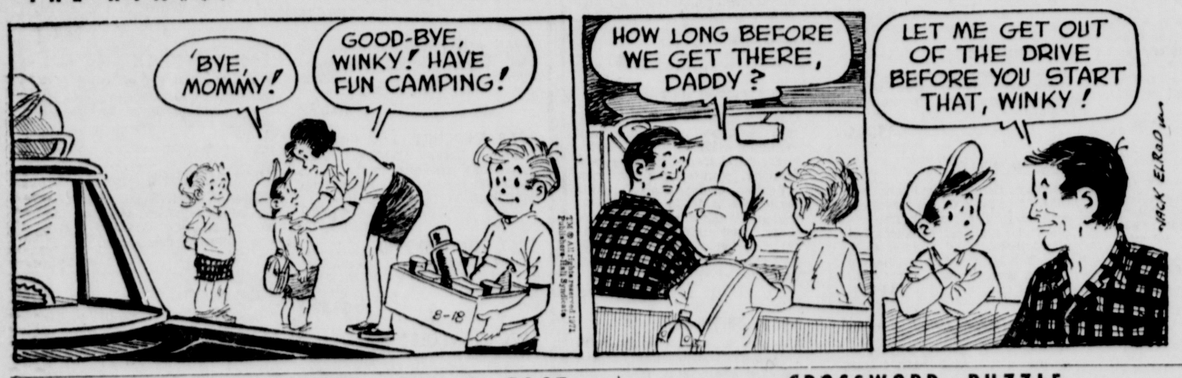
THE RYATTS



DID YOU KNOW THIS? IT'S A FACT:

More than 2,500 gallons of water may evaporate from an acre of forest in just one day.

☆ ☆ ☆

Many people buy spring water becuase they dislike the taste of tap water, especially in mixed drinks.

☆ ☆ ☆

The Missouri river is 2,466 miles long.

☆ ☆ ☆

Bottling spring water has become a $100 million a year industry in the United States.

To reach a neighboring United States city, Point Roberts, Wash., residents cross into Canada and re-enter at Blaine, Wash.

☆ ☆ ☆

Bluefield, W.Va., is called the air-conditioned city because of its height.

☆ ☆ ☆

Last year 565 New York City pedestrians were killed by automobiles.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

Here's How to Work It

One letter simply stands for another in this example, A is used for the three L's X for the two O's etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.

DID YOU KNOW THIS? IT'S A FACT:

More than 2,500 gallons of water may evaporate from an acre of forest in just one day.

☆ ☆ ☆

Many people buy spring water because they dislike the taste of tap water, especially in mixed drinks.

☆ ☆ ☆

The Missouri river is 2,466 miles long.

☆ ☆ ☆

Bottling spring water has become a $100 million a year industry in the United States.

To reach a neighboring United States city, Point Roberts, Wash., residents cross into Canada and re-enter at Blaine, Wash.

☆ ☆ ☆

Bluefield, W.Va., is called the air-conditioned city because of its height.

☆ ☆ ☆

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

Here's How to Work It

One letter simply stands for another in this example. A is used for the three L's X for the two O's etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A X Y D L B A A X R
to L O N G F E L L O W

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.
